THE EXPRESS SAVED.

By Edward J. Lawler.

From The New York Ledger.

"Is it true, John, that you are to bring in the express tomorrow night."

There was a world of solicitude in Mary Sexton's voice as she looked up into John Manning's face, her eyes showing, even more than her voice, the dread which had taken possession of her.

"It's true, Mary, darling, but have no fear. There are no road agents in these parts, nowadays, and I'm quite sure that the modern tramp has not pluck enough to wreck a train," and John smiled as he endeavored to reassure his sweetheart that there was no danger in connection with the trip.

"But Long lake is nearly full, and it was said this morning that the dam might break. In that case, there will be plenty of danger at Long lake pass," pursued Mary.

"Tush, little one, that's only the talk of a man who knows nothing about the dam. It's strong enough, and you need never fear about its breaking. Good-bye, sweetheart," he said, bending over and pressing his lips to hers.

But she still clung to him, loth to let him start, but he disengaged himself and stepped into the cab of his iron horse, pulled open the throttle, and slowly the train rumbled away in the darkness from Hornellsville station toward the mining camp in the mountains fifty miles away, which was the other terminus of the branch, leaving Mary on the platform, her eyes too bedimmed by tears to see her lover.

All that night and the next day a vague feeling of impending danger filled her heart, and her apprehension became more intense when rain began to fall in torrents early in the afternoon.

The D. L. and S. branch runs from Hornellsville to Mortality Camp, up in the mountains, fifty miles away. The first ten miles are down a steep grade and toward a narrow

Then the track is laid between two ranges Then the track is laid between two ranges of hills, the pass not being more than a mile across in its widest part. Just at the base of Long lake an immense body of water which furnished power to numbers of stamping mills close by in the pass, the road turns sharply to the right. To avoid tunneling the road then doubles completely, and runs back almost parallel, to its first course, to Downer's Bend, within two miles of Mary's home. Thus the first twenty odd miles of the road run in the shape of an elongated loop.

The branch then continues on an easy

The branch then continues on an earetch to Mortality Camp. The run from Hornellsville to the camp usually occupied mearly two hours, but the return trip could be made in a trifle over an hour and a half. Every one in Hornellsville knew Mary Sexton, but she was a constant lass, and she had smiles for no lover but the sturdy engineer, John Mauming, the friend of her youth, the man who for years had been almost a brother to her, for Mary was an orphan and had known to her, for Mary was an orphan and had known the tender solicitude of a parent only in early childhood.

It was only natural, therefore, that the station and the freighthouses were places of engrosing interest to her, and that after sie had acquired a knowledge of reading and writing she should solve the intricacies of telegraphy. She was an apt pupil, and for many months had been in the habit of relieving the regular day operator from time to time.

It was considerably after 8 o'clock in the evening when Mary left her home for the station, and though she knew she had to wait until 9:40 o'clock for John's train to return she could not rest easily while there was any doubt as to the solidity of Long Lake dam.

She stepped into the station a few minutes before the half hour, prepared to ask for the latest news, but she paused with surprise when she saw that the place was empty. She was still wondering whither the operator had gone, when her acute ear caught the call "Ky," repeated again and again with what seemed to be feverish rapidity. Without stopping to remove her shawl, she hastened to the instrument, opened the key and gave the answering "Dam at Long lake "Rely to go at ahy homent. Water even with top. Stampers have fied to high ground.

"HT" was the signature of the operator at the company's mills, just beneath the lake, and she recognized it instantly. Opening the key again, she rattled off:

"What time is the express due there?"

The reply came:

The reply came:
"In fifty minutes, or at 9;17. Tried to get Mortality Camp, but got no answer. If the train gets into the pass just as dam breaks, every one will be lost—"
The message abruptly ended, and Mary realized that something had caused the operator to leave his instrument. Instictively she saw the danger to John and the express. Though her heart throbbed like an engine, she lighted a red lantern, and hastened with a wild, unreasoning impulse from the station, and sped breathlessly through the street, hardly forming, in the frenzy of her physical exertion, an

breathlessly through the street, hardly forming, in the frenzy of her physical exertion, an outline of a plan.

"I have half an hour in which to reach Downer's Bend. John is due there at $2.57," she muttered to herself, and her face bespoke the determination she had reached. "I can reach the switch on the spur track at the Bend in that time. My lantern will slow up the express. I'll throw the switch. That'll send her up the spur toward the quarries at its end. She'll stop in twelve or fifteen car-lenths, after passing the switch, and so I'll save her from entering the pass."

She hurried along for many slowly passing minutes, unmindful of the storm which had drenched her, and likewise unmindful of the rough gravel which cut through her thin slippers and bruised her feet. Presently, above the roar of the rain and the wind, she heard the blast of a locomotive whistle. To her agonized mind, it seemed to scream, "Mary! Mary!" dying away in a long moan like that which comes from a person in pain.

But scarcely had the sound died in the distance, when she became aware of even a more horrid noise borne on the wind from the direction of the pass; a noise like that made by the crashing of trees in a gale. Again the whistle sounded, and its shrick pierced her heart like a knife. She quickened her frantic run. A few moments more and she was descending the hill which ended at Downer's Bend.

As she neared the switch, she snatched a moment to cast a look backward, and saw the bright gleam of the locomotive's headlight.

She swung the lantern around her head as she ran. In an instant she had thrown the switch; and even while her fingers were groping for the locking-pin, the locomotive dashed by.

She had looked up as it struck the switch-

She had looked up as it struck the switchrail, and saw John Manning's face in the window-slide of the cab; and even while she looked' she heard him cry:

Mary Sexton heard, dimly, the whistle for down brakes," the sound of escaping steam, the click of brake-clamps, and the sound of grinding iron; then she fainted.

Hornellsville New

Three months later the Hornellsville New Era contained this paragraph: MANNING-SEXTON.—In this city, July 6, by Rev. T. I. Plicer, MARY, daughter of the late David Sexton, to JOHN S. MANNING.

Fame and good reputation consists in doing the right thing in the right way at the right time. Generals are famous who led the way to victory. Orators are famous who led the way to victory. Orators are famous who touched the heart of the people. Smith's Tonic Syrup is famous because it has ever accomplished correct results. Used in the right way at the right time it invariably does the right thing. It never makes a failure. It never brings disappointment. It was invented by the eminent Dr. John Bull, of Louisville, Ky., as a substitute for quinine. It does its work even better than was expected. It has all the good qualities of quinine and none of its evil tendencies. It cures chills and fever, colds, influenza, la grippe, etc., even when quinine fails. It is pleasant to take, and children like it. It builds up a broken down constitution and fortifies it against the insidious attacks of broken down constitution and fortifies it not the insidious attacks of malarial influ-

FERTILIZERS IN NORTH CAROLINA The Supreme Court Makes a Decision of

RALEIGH. N. C., August 15.—[Special.]—In 1877 this state imposed a license tax of $500 on each brand or quality of commercial fertilizer whether manufactured in or out of this state. The fund thus secured was appropriated for the maintenance of a department of agriculture. The receipts have averaged about thirty-four thousand dollars annually. Much Importance dollars annually. dollars annually.

A few years ago an agricultural college was established and part of the fund was applied to its maintenance, while appropriations from it were also made to the departments of immigration, geology and labor statistics.

Last March the American Fertilizer Company Last March the American Fertilizer Company, of Norfolk, Va., offered to pay the tax under protest. The commission or of agriculture and the state treisurer declined to receive it. The sale of that company's fertilizer was then forbidden. Suit was at once brought by the company in the state courts and also in the federal court. The attorney general appeared for the state in the latter court, and great interest has been felt it the decision.

This was filed today by Judges Seymour and Boud. In their opinion they say that the statute imposing the tax is unconstitutional, as being repugnant to that section of the constitution which provides that congress alone shall regulate commerce between the states. It also sets forth that merce between the states. It also sets forth that the tax is excessive.

The decision was expected and will work no hardship upon the agricultural department or college. Both are provided for this year, as all conege. Both are provided for this year, as an the fertilizer companies, save four, have paid the toil. The legislature, which meets in January, will provide a remedy in the shape of a tax on each ton of fertilizer brought into the state. The latter system will yield from $45,000 to $50,000 annually, and its legality is unquestioned. The tax will be 25 cents per ton. The expense of collec-tion will be somewhat greater, as more inspectors will be necessary.

The decision was received with great interest coday, and some companies which have not done business in the state will probably come in and get what they can during the remainder of the

THE OUTLOOK EXCELLENT

For a Good Trade in the Fall-The Business Report.

NEW YORK, August 15.-R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Industries are doing rather less and speculators are doing more, but the volume of legitimate business is still large, exceeding last years at this season by 10 per cent, and the outlook for the fall trade is considered excellent at almost all commercial centers. The average prices of commodities has advanced more than 2½ per cent during the past week. Cotton has fallen 3-16, but is still so high that rchases are limited. purchases are limited.

A heavy decline appears in the weekly output of pig iron, which was 164,798 tons on August 1st against 175,727 tons on July 1st and 189,791 tons on June 1st. Prices show little change, though one large southern concern is reported to be cutting liberally. The demand for finished products is well sustained and some forms of plate iron are a little higher.

Reports from other cities are generally favorable, no complaint being anywhere made as to the volume of current business.

Money is saug and firm at old rates at Chicago, tighter at 7 to 8 per cent at 8t. Louis and in fair demand at about the usual rates elsewhere. About a million dollars has been sent west from this city during the week, and the treasury has taken in $1,700,000 more than it has paid out. But the Bank of England has gained $7,326,000 in gold, and while gold rises in premium at Buenos Ayres again, the foreign demand is not felt here at present. Exports of merchandise from New York present. Exports of merchandise from New York fall below last year's by 29 per cent for half of

Cancerous Sore PEYTONH. SNOOK

Alarming, Distiguring, and Painful, Cured in Five Months by the Cuticura Remedies,

For three years I was under medical treatment for a cancerous sore on my face, which was not only disagreeable, but disfiguring, and caused me much annoyance. In September, 1889, it had increased very much insize, and one side of my forehead was badly inflamed, so that I became very much alarmed. I was advised that the only remedy was to cut it out, and I was opposed to having this done. It was suggested by a friend to paint it with bluestone (sulphate of copper), and this I did every morning; and at the same time I used your CUTICURA every night; also washed with CUTICURA SOAP, and took the CUTICURA RESOLVENT two or three times per day. Five months have passed since I commenced the treatment, and it has proved a perfect success, and my sore has disappeared. It would be unjust if I did not acknowledge my cure, and this I do voluntarily, with the hope that it may benefit others suffering in a similar manner.

ALL FOR A DIME.

THE CHEAP TRANSPORTATION TO THE PLEASURE RESORTS.

The Four Street Railway Lines and the Magnificent Facilities That They Offer to Fresh Air Seekers.

Not "a shave and a shine," but-A jolly good time,

That is one of the many charms of life in Atlanta. The many pleasure resorts are in the easy reach of high and low, rich and poor, and men, women and children may enjoy these benefits at their own sweet will.

PONCE DE LEON. Out at Ponce de Leon everything is beau-

If you desire one of the most enjoyable excursions to the suburbs imaginable, just board horse cars-you can get on at West End, if you wish to-and hie away to Ponce

There is the beautiful park, with its velvety carpet of green grass, its rippling waters, bubbling springs and placid lake.

There the children may tumble on the grass, romp about the pavilion or enjoy the swinging under the trees. There are secluded walks and cozy nooks for moonstruck lovers. Boats on the lake, and blossoms in the summer woods.

And Pence de Leon water has become such an object of necessity that men make money peddling it on the streets by the jug full. It is delicious, too, cool, beautiful and sparkling. Over beyond the ridge is the bathing pond where, if you desire it, you can enjoy a real old-fashioned plunge from the bank and a swim in the cool, clear water.

This side of Ponce de Leon is Hartmann's little eden, "The Tyrol." There is no prettier spot than this in the state of Georgia. Within a few months this genius in landscape gardening has transformed one of the ugliest little knolls about the city into a thing of beauty and a joy forever.

The flowers, the miniature lakes, the splashing fountains and tinkling runs, with the benches in the shade of the trees, make this a most inviting spot indeed.

AT GRANT PARK. If you want to go out to Grant park and hear the music, or wander about in the beautiful woods, or lounge under the shade of the trees, or take a spell of rowing in Lake Abana, or amuse yourself at the Gress zoo, you have only to take the Fair street dummy, and in a few minutes it will set you down at the

There are so many things to see in and around the park that you can while away the entire afternoon there if you choose.

You can go down to that little bit of paradisian scenery, Little Switzerland, if you have a ticket, and you can wander among the grapevines burdened with the luscious fruitage of summer's prime, and then stroll around among the flower beds, take a boat ride on the lake or enjoy a chat with some congenial friend on one of the benches in the garden while you enjoy refreshments of various kinds.

Under the new regulations you can go there without fear of molestation or the contact of the rougher element. All these are excluded, and you can carry your wife, your sister or your sweetheart with the full assurance that you will find nothing disagreeable.

But should you wish to make a longer tour of it, there is Faith's park and the Soldiers' Home, still further away, far distant from the heat and dust of the city. Many persons go out there every Sunday for the sake of the restfulness and quietude of that locality.

Then, on the return trip, there is the Georgia avenue line, that brings you swinging around the circle, through one of the pleasantest portions of the city.

So much for the Metropolitan lines, that have all they can do every Sunday to transport the crowds of people to and from these favorite resorts. Yet they do it, and they accomplish the task in an admirable manner and on schedule time, as a general thing, despite the rush and the crush of Sunday travel OUT TO WESTWIRW.

By boarding the Broad street cars you can take a run out to the dummy line and then on which you can reach by the Atlanta and Edgewood electric line, and there is no pleasanter place than that lovely little resort snuggled among the hills of East Atlanta.

Of course it is not as big as Grant park, or even Ponce de Leon, but in its way it is just as enjoyable as these.

In fact, to the taste of many, it is even

You can get off at the various little spots, like Pendleton's park, and while away an hour or two very pleasantly.

Or, if you wish, you can go out o Berkeley and see the big engines that furnish the motive power for this magnificent system.

If the threatened boycott did no other good it certainly waked up the nation. Thousands of people who knew nothing about the Lodge bill and cared less, waked up and inquired what all this racket was about. The newspapers ventilated it freely, and while the northern press denounced the boycott, most of them denounced the Lodge bill, too, and so it is all right. When the devil comes at us with a torch, we must fight him with fire, but when the puts down his weapons we will put down ours—we are not hunting for another fight. We are the friendliest people on the Tace of the earth, but the north can't make us trade with them by force nor by threats. We won't even trade with our own people unless they are civil and polite and tote fair. Everybody claims the right to gratify their preferences and their prejudices. You can lead a horse to water but you can't make him drink. We are all more or less clannish. Nine times out of ten, a Baptist will trade at a Baptist's store, ten, a Baptist will trade at a Baptist's store, and so of the other denominations. The lawyers stick together, and so do the doctors, and have their fee bills like a trust, and if they sue you for professional service the whôle fraternity will swear to it. Labor unions put a trust on their wages and will strike and boycott to enforce them. The farmers would put a trust on their cotton if they could and make the world pay fifteen cents a pound for it. They are running the political machine and have boycotted all other trades and professions. They won't play with us any more. They are playing with Zach Hargrove, the high-arch-republican of this district, but they won't play with me. There are lots of republicans in the alliance and some of them were delegates to the conventions that nominated our members of the legislature and they've got things mixed up so that I don't know where I am nor whom I belong to. I feel like I'm just running about loose and no bell on. If somebody don't bell me I'll get lost sure. Zach is a friend of mine and told me the other day to be quiet and raise no runnyus and everything would work out all right. Zach has the Rome postoffice and is running the alliance but where am I? An old farmer told me in a whisper that the democracy had captured Zach and Palmer and a whole lot of republicans and it was done on the sly through the alliance and they would get 'em all before long and the niggers too, and burst that party wide open, but for the life of me I can't tell whetherithe alliance. Zach says it is all right and Livingston told me it would all be right if we outside democrats would behave, but somehow I don't understand the machinery. I'm behaving just as good as I can but I'm not calm and serene. Zach winks one eye at me and says "be quiet," and Livingston winks the other and says "be quiet," and Livingston winks the other and says "be quiet," and Livingston winks the other and says "be quiet," and Livingston winks the other and says but he said me of the profession of the profession of and so of the other denominations. The law-yers stick together, and so do the doctors,

He planned, but God disposes, partis ne knew and Gorman, too,

But did not know one Moses.

I asked a farmer where he found Moses, and he said, "in the bullrushes." But it don't matter where they found him, I'll bet he is a good man, for they say he has been a school teacher for ten years and had the biggest and best school in the county. That's a good sign. A man who can manage and control 150 children is no sardine. Hurrah for Moses. On the whole I don't feel so very bad. The Farmers' Alliance of Louisiana has choked off the lottery, and that's a good sign. The lawyers wouldn't do it, nor the bankers, and Sam Jones says the preachers wouldn't. Hurrah for the farmers! Old Father Haynie says they are not going to hurt me. He lives on the road that I used to travel, and his well is in the front yard, and that's a good sign—he don't hide his water. Old man Phelps was the friendliest man I ever saw, and his well was close to the front gate, and he had a trough outside so that you could water your horse, and his apple orchare was close by and he didn't like it if you didn't stop and drink and eat and water your horse. But did not know one Moses. horse, and his apple orenare was close by and he didn't like it if you didn't stop and drink and eat and water your horse. Father Haynie says if I had stuck to the farm they would have elevated me about this time. Yes, I reckon they would. They made me overseer of the public road while I was a farmer. He says if I will move book they'll elect me a constable. Thanks!

me about this time. Yes, I reckon they would. They made me overseer of the public road while I was a farmer. He says if I will move back they'll elect me a constable. Thanks!

But the skies are brightening—the clouds are clearing away. If we can make peace with the north it will beat everything else. I won't care a cent about party if we can have peace and be friends. I would be willing to sleep two in a bed with a republican if he was friendly to us. They write me all sorts of letters from up there, and I believe they are getting friendly. I got three today—one from a New York democrat, who says we made a great mistake in threatening the boycott, for it has defeated the Lodge bill with its bayonet clause; that we should have let them pass it, and it would have killed the republican party so dead it wouldn't even have a ghost.

Another letter is from an Indiana man who says: "God bless Bill Arp. His philosophy is cutting but it is sound. The force bill is an infamous outrage and we don't blame you for the threatened boycott. I am a northern man and a republican but I say 'God bless you. Hit them again.'"

The third letter was from a negro—a colored man—and he writes just like white folks. He writes from Markham, Va., and says: "I speak for myself and my people. We desire our white friends of the south to know that we want 'no force bill thrust upon us. It will prove our greatest curse, for it will stir up strife and our race will be the victims. Our true friends are the southern whites. There is no race problem between them and us, and never will be if the north will let us alone. We have long since found out that the north cares nothing for us. We are in the south to stay, and are doing well. What is good for the meline he will let us alone were the southern whites. There is no race problem between them and us, and never will be if the north will let us alone. We have long since found out that the north cares nothing for us. We are in the south to stay, and are doing well. What is good for the negro and if it he can get his naturalization papers and be somebody.

I would like to get back into the party if I'm fitten. But still the alliance treats me very kindly. And some of them hauls me wood just the same as ever and takes my silver dollar as kindly as he used to. Old Father Haynie says he will sell me corn and fodder at the town price. Livingston asked me if Dr. Felton was going to run for congress against Everett. I said I didn't know. Then he said if the doctor run he would be the worst beat man that ever run in the state of Georgia. "I'll come up there and take a hand in that fight myself," said he. Wouldn't that be fun. Our boys want to see it. The farmers have made splendid crops and they are in a fine humor, and we all want to see some fun. The doctor is a farmer and a patriot just like Evertt, and so the general verdiet is, "Let'em fight, let'em fight."

HAIR ON THE FACE, NECK, ARMS OR ANY PART OF THE PERSON

* MODENE * AND THE GROWTH POREVER DESTROYED WITHOUT THE SLIGHTEST INJUSY OF DISCOLORATION OF THE MOST DELICATE SEIN.—DISCOVERED BY ACCIDENT,

IN COMPOUNDING, an incomplete mixture was accidentally spilled on the back of the hand, and on washing afterward it was discovery and named it MODENS. It is perfectly pure, free from all injurious substances, and so simple any one can use it. It acts mildly but surely, and you will be surprised and delighted with the results. Apply for a few minutes and the hair disappears as if by magic. It has no resemblance whatever to any other preparation ever used for a like purpose, and no scientific discovery ever attained such wonderful results. IT CANNOT FAIL. If the growth be light, one application will remove it permanently; the heavy growth such as the beard or hair on moles may require two or more applications before all the roots are destroyed, although all hair will be removed at each application, and without the slightest injury or unpleasant feeling when applied or ever afterward. — MODENE SUPERCEDES ELECTROLISIS. —

—Recommended by all who have tested its merits—thest by spoke of refinement.

when applied or ever afterward. — Modern superfect in ury of unpleasant teeling when applied or ever afterward. — Modern superfects electrolysis. —

Recommended by all who have tested its morits—Used by people of refinement.

Gentlemen who do not appreciate nature's gift of a beard, will find a priceless boon in Modene, which does away with shaving. It dissolves and destroys the life principle of the hair, thereby rendering its future growth an utter impossibility, and is guaranteed to be as harmless as water to the skin. Young persons who find an embarrassing growth of hair coming, should use Modene to destroy its growth. Modene sont by mail, in safety secretly grivate. Postage stamps received the same as cash. The New Star in the East.

Scientists tell us the Star of Bethlehem will appear again soon; already there has appeared among the constellation a brighter and better Star in the medicinal world that ever shone for the afflicted. Those suffering from Seminal Weakness, Loss of Appetite, Blood Diseases, and especially weakly females, should use W. C.

Read what wonders it has done for Rev. J. W. Howard and wife:

My wife has been a constant sufferer for twenty years from what some physicians pronounced Rheumatism of the Liver, others Neuralgia of the Liver, while others said that it was Enlargement of the Liver and ulceration—all agreed the Liver was involved, though they differed as to the cause. She suffered most excruciating agony and no remedies afforded relief, until she was induced to try your wonderful cure. Three bottles completely restored her health and it affords me pleasure to testify to the good it has done her.

Very respectfully, REV. J. W. HOWARD.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, August 16.—The stock market today was extremely dull, but presented a decidedly strong front during most of the session, and material gains were scored in most of the stocks. The effects of the bad bank statement had been completely discounted, and while there was a slight reaction from the best prices, not a material movement resulted from its publication. The great feature of the day was silver certificates, for which there were large orders in the market from London. This served to stimulate the large trading in them for domestic account and on very large transactions the price was run up from 115½ to 117½, though a fractional reaction followed later. The railroad list was quiet in all its departments, but a strong tone reached everything with the exception of Missouri Pacific, which lagged all through the session and is almost alone in closing lower. Canada Pacific was a strong feature with Mexican Central and one or two other specialties, but advances scored was a strong feature with a lead a conserved one or two other specialties, but advances scored in active stocks were confined to fractional amounts in all cases. The bull feeling was very confident and buying on a limited scale in the absence of offerings of any amount served to carry everything up and in many cases the highest prices of the week were touched. The close was steady after partial reaction. Sales reached only 68.467 1 sted. and 11.550 unlisted.

NEW YORK, August 16—[Special.]—Sales in Liverpool are only 4,000 bales. Private cables report the East Indian markets as overstocked with port the East Indian markets as overstocked with goods bought in anticipation of the advance in sulver, and Manchester trade as less promising. Futures in Liverpool are 2@3 points lower, September being conspicuously weak, and numerous rumors current with regard to an abandonment of the buil movement. These, however, we regard as without foundation, and, considering the weakness of foreign advices, this market has shown considerable strength, August being some 6 points lower, while the more distant positions have only lost from 2@3 points. Port receipts are about 1,200 bales almost entirely new cotton. About 300 bales bales almost entirely new cotton. About 300 bales we hear have been bought for this market on the basis of 11% landed crop. Accounts in this morning's Chronicle are, as a rule, quite favorable. Its usual statement of the statistical situation is as follows: Crop in sight 5,183,831 bales, against 5,860,668 last year and 6,963,068 in 1888. Visible supply 1,142,145, against 957,438 last year and 984,939 in 1888. American 560,555, against 359,738 last year and 635,034 in 1888. Net stock at United States ports 44,964, against 67,591 and 150,634 in 1888.

NEW YORK, August 18.—The total visible supply of cotton for the world is 1,142,155 bales, of which 569,555 bales is American, against 957,306 bales and 557,738 bales respectively last year.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, August 16—Wheat—Trading was large, and the market again excited within a higher range of prices. The feeling was decidedly unsettled. The opening was unsettled and prices ½@½e higher, and later advanced to a point 1½e higher for September and 1½e higher for December than the opening prices, receded some and closed about 1¾e higher for September and 1½e higher for December than the closing figures of yesterday. yesterday.

Corn was fairly active and firmer. The better feeling was due largely to the advance in wheat and bad crop reports. The opening showed % advance, after which the market was inclined to be easier, but a better demand sprang up, and prices advanced rapidly $4.67%, reacted some, and closed with a gain for the day of $4.67%.

Oats were active and higher. The opening was ½c advance, but sold off ﷺ rallied 1c and closed steady at nearly outside figures.

Mess pork—A moderately active trade reported.

The opening sales were made at 10c advance, but prices receded 7%@10c. Later prices were advanced 25@30c, and the market closed steady. Lard—Considerable interest was mainfested. At the opening prices receded 2%c. Later prices advanced 12½@15c, and extreme figures were fully supported to the close.

Short ribs—Trading was quite active. At the opening sales were made at 2½@5 advance, but rather free offerings caused a like reduction Later prices railied 71/2@10c and closed compara-tively steady.

IN PRESENTING THIS MEDICINE TO THE PUBLIC, DR. BARRY

the discoverer, teels it proper to state that he has not acted hastily, nor without long and careful experiment and observation, to make sure that the remedy really possesses the medical properties which is claimed for it, and not without a conscientious hope and belief that it will accomplish great good and prove a blessing to women, far surpassing that of any other medicine ever before discovered.

DR. BARRY,-Dear Sir: The lady whose case I brought to your notice without knowing of your LUXOMNI, was promptly and greatly benefited by its use. The preparation was taken daily by her until after confinement, with the most satisfactory results. Its efficacy in her case, which involved much suffering, and awakened great anxiety and many fears for her life, is decided proof of its excellence.

REV. J. M. M. CALDWELL, Rome, Ga. DR. BARRY-Dear Sir: For a long time I have been a sufferer from a complicated trouble, and found no relief from my afflictions until I began the use of your excellent preparation, LUXOMNI. At first, had great doubts as to whether my condition would be benefited by its use, as there is a prejudice, not without foundation, towards all patent medicines. I was destined to be deceived, however, for from the first dose of the tea my spirits began to revive, and my strength gradually returned, and I can truly say that LUXOMNI has proven a boon to me.

MRS. M. J. REYNOLDS, Kilgore, Texas.

DR. BARRY-From my own personal knowledge I know where LUXOMNI has proven a great success. I consider it a valuable remedy. REV. N. KEFF SMITH, Atlanta, Ga.

New York, August 16.—[Special.]—Four additional theaters have been opened during the week, and at the Casino "The Brazilian" has politile given place to "Mme. Angot." On Monday Frank Murtha's lower Bowery theatre began its season by permitting Mr. George Edgar to produce a play called "The Banker," the work of Mr. James Schonberg, who is an industrious and clever newspaper writer. Mr. Edgar is on actor lever newspaper writer. clever newspaper writer. Mr. Edgar is an actor of the old school, conspicuously before the public some years ago. He is an artist of careful training and uncommon intelligence, who, it will be remembered, discovered and became the tutor of Miss Margaret Mather before Mr. J. M. Hill captured her. "The Banker" is something like Miss Braddon's "Aurora something like Miss Braddon's "Aurora Floyd," without the strong dramatic interest of that time worn novel. It is overburdened with dialogue, and is a tedious rather than a strong play. Mr. Edgar gave a conscientious performance, ably assisted by Mr. Harry Eytinge and Miss Emma Vader, and very badly by the rest of the company. "The Banker" will not achieve lasting success. Jacob's low-priced Third avenue theater opened its doors on Tuesday with a war drama, in which is an impersonal day with a war drama, in which is an impersona-tion of General U. S. Grant. Neither Gillette nor Bronson Howard need fear that the new war play, which is named "Fort Donelson," will interfere which is named "Fort Donelson," will interfere with "Held by the Enemy" or "Shenandoah,' and yet "Fort Donelson" is far from being a bad play, and is sure to meet with great success in the cheap-price theaters. The play was written by Professor Charles F. and Colonel George Dittmar. On Thursday Mr. Sol Smith Russell began a run at Daly's theater with Dion Bouci-cault's "The Tale of a Coat," produced last week at Philadelphia, and on the same exempts. "When at Philadelphia, and on the same evening "Mme. Angot" appeared on the stage at the Casino, relieving the giddy "Brazilian?" who has had very hard work during the summer in playing to the smallest audiences in any of the theaters that have kept their doors open. Dear old Broadway is again filled with actors, who came in from every point of the compass on Monday morning, nearly all of them to rehearse during the week. The cold wave which came with them has also given things theatrical a boom, and business for the week has peen excellent, "The Canuck" drawing heavlest.

Miss Rosina Vokes is making unusually ambitious preparations for the coming season. She has secured the rights of "The Silver Shield"—a three-act comedy—from the author, Sidney Grundy, whose recent successes have put him at the head of English comedy writers. It was a considerable success in England, but has never been played here, though Mr. Abbey had the intention of producing it during his occupancy of Wallack's theatre. In addition to "The Silver Shield" Miss Vokes has added several one-act pieces to her repertoire. One of these pieces is by Clyde Fitch, the young author of "Beau Brum-mel," and was purchased by her before the Madi-son/square success gave indications of his literary

Mrs. Leslie Carter, of the Chicago divorce courts, will appear this season in a play called "The Ugly Duckling." That is she will begin the season in that play.

Hoyt & Thomas will have four companies on the road next season, and a fifth not written by Mr. Hoyt. They are "A Midnight Bell," "A Brass Monkey," "A Texas Steer," "A Trip to Chinatown" and "A Silent Partner." Among Chinatown" and "A Silent Partner." Among the people engaged to appear in the different companies are: Flora Walsh, Lena Merville, Alice Walsh, Percy Haswell, Sadie Kirby, Alice Evans, Florence Roberts, Marie Hormby, Irene Murphy, George Richards, Eugene Canfield, Tom Murphy, Harry Conner, R. J. Dillon, Frank Lane, J. W. Hague, Will Harkins, Otis Harlan, George F. Marion, Harry Gilfoil and others. "A Press Monkey" will onen August 29d, at Loyell Brass Monkey," will open August 22d, at Lowell, Mass.; "A Midnight Bell," at Tacoma, Wash., August 28th; "A Texas Steer," at Columbus, O., September 1st; "A Trip to Chinatown," tur, Ill., September 18th, and "A Silent Partner," at Lawrence, Mass., September 29th.

"Mask of Life." which opens its season Septem-"Mask of Life," which opens its season September 8th, at the Grand opera house, New York, will be presented with the following cast: J. H. Gilmour, Frazer Coulter, O'Dell Williams, Frank Kendrick, Jerome F. Stevens, J. G. Glenny and Misses Annie Mayor, Adele Palmer, Emma Broasch and Josephine Plows-Day.

This play has more than ordinary interest to the property of Atlanta, It was presented here during the people of Atlanta. It was presented here during the preliminary season by the author, John A. Stevens, and everybody will remember the distinct and de-cided hit it made and the impression it left lehind. "The Mask of Life" is undoubtedly one of the "The Mask of Life" is undoubtedly one of the Brongest plays ever seen on the American stage. An additional item of interest to Atlanta is the presence in the cast of Miss Josephine Plows-Day, who is well known there. She is a sister of Mrs. Henry Knowles, who lived for some time in Atlanta and whose husband is known all through the south.

This is the last week of the De Wolf Hopper Opera Bouffe Company at the Broadway, the en-gagement closing next Saturday night, with a record of f07 consecutive performances. The 100th performance, last Monday night, was celebrated by the distribution of a very handsome souvenir, comprising photo-gravure portraits of the star, comprising photo-gravure portraits of the star, author and composer, and character pictures of all the principals in the company, neatly bound in book form. Marion Manola, by the way, did not present herself for duty that evening, as she had agreed when granted her vacation. The management, not being in a mood to be trifled with, accordingly sent her a peremptory notice of dismissal. In the meantime, Anna O'Kecfe is playing the glidly Marion's part, and playing it well, too. She acts Marion's part, and playing it well, too. She acts the role much better than Manola. While her voice may not be of so fine a quality, she pleases just the same. In fact, she never misses an encore in any of the musical numbers, and she fills those much-discussed tights better, too.

"The Crystal Slipper," at the Chicago opera house is doing a large business, and Louise Mon-tague, who is undoubtedly the most beautiful, dashing and vocally accomplished burlesque actress on the American stage today, has made an actress on the American stage today, has made an enormous hit by her chic, singing and gorgeons costumes. She was interviewed the other day and this is what she said: "What, do you imply by the question, what do I think about tights? Do you mean considered from a standpoint of looks, morality, health or what? If you mean how do I like the looks of tights, I should say in reply that it depends altogether upon the wearer. They can be an artistic delight to the eye or they can be quite the reverse. I can conceive of circumquite the reverse. I can conceive of circumstances under which it would be quite impossible for the nicest pair of tights to look well; then I can imagine circumstances under which very ordinary tights would become things of beauty, if not joys forever. It all depends, as I say, upon the wearer. As to the modesty of the custom of wearing tights on the stage I must say custom of wearing tights on the stage I must say that I think that depends upon the wearr, too. Tights can be worn modestly, just as dresses-can be worn immodestly. Now, don't you think so yourself? I don't believe that a woman was ever ever injured in her moral character fly wearing tights in roles where they were demanded. By the way, why is the subject of tights discussed so much? Why not ask if bare arms and shoulders are immoral? I don't see why one set of limbs should be discriminated against more than another. Is there any reason why a part of the leg covered with silk should be considered any more demoralizing than arms and shoulders uncovered? I don't see it."

The fact that Mr. Hobart Brooks, who will next Beason manage the tour of "The U. S. Mail," in which is an amiable buriesque on the postmaster general, has so annoyed Mrs. Benjamin Harrison that she has intimated to Mrs. Hobart Brooks, her niece, that further intercourse with the white house must be discontinued unless her husband leaves the theatrical profession. Baby Brooks, Mr. Brooks son, and Baby McKee are playmates, and unless Baby McKee kicks up a great big fuss because Baby Brooks is missing, the families will probably be estranged, as Mr. Brooks proposes to keep on the even tenor of his way, and boss "The U. S. Mail" at least for one season. Great hope is, however, placed in Baby McKee's lung power to accomplish results which no diplomat would dare even to suggest.

"Shenandoah," which is doubtless the greatest military comedy yet produced in America, will celebrate its first year of uninterrupted run, september sth. The company is at present playing at Chicago, where the one hundredth performance in that city will shortly take place, and the event commended by an elaborate and useful source. commemorated by an elaborate and useful souver-nir. The business that this sterling play has done in Chicago in spite of the tropical heat is really phenomenal, as the receipts averaged no weekless than 87,900. The anniversary performance to be given September 8th ,will take place at St. Louis and up to date, that is for the eleven months of its-run, "Shenandoah" earnings are $235,000. This is unparalleled in the history of the American drama. The south will get "Shenandoah" this season.

Miss Ada Deaves is finishing the last of her Miss Ada Deaves is finishing the last of her many dresses for "Two Old Cronies." It has a long train (in which Miss Deaves has not been seen for several years), and with it she will wear large clusters of diamonds. The dress is pink moire antique, and the diamond clusters are being set for her by a big firm of jewelers, who will also manufacture the jewelry, which is to be big and flash, and not to be used for any other purpose than for the part Miss Deaves will create. The earrings, brooch, necklace and fliger rings will contain 1,230 stones that will flash like a lighthouse in a dark night.

How the Great Republic Impressed Him. Theard last night a good story of William D. Howells and the early days of his service as United States consul at Venice, says a New York Star reporter. Through an unlucky accident he reached that city with a rip in his trousers, and almost his first duty was to visit a tailor and order a suit of clothes. The tailor was obsequiorder a suit of clothes. The tailor was obsequi-ousness itself, and Mr. Howells, then a very young man, was much struck with the disguished consideration with which his custom was received. On leaving the shop, however, he casually said to the cringing tailor that he was the United States consul, when the man's manner instantly changed, and he promptly said: "In that case, sir, you will kindly pay in advance."

DRY, COLD AIR.

The "Alaska" Refrigerator, the Choice of the People of the South.

There no longer exists in the minds of the public any doubt that the Alaska Refrigerator does produce dry, cold air in its provision chamber. A practical use for many years in various countries and climates has proved beyond question that its theory is correct.

The peculiar and scientific construction of the ALASKA creates a thorough and constant circulation, by which all vapors arising from foods in the provision chamber are condensed in the ice pan, and run off with the melting ice.

Most refrigerators are so constructed that vapors from various kinds of food are chilled to bead drops of water within the provision chamber Hence such refrigerators are always damp and "to frequently wipe the moisture from the pro-In the ALASKA no vapors are allowed to remain lives have been spent in the school-room, and who have educated many of the finest women of the South.

We profess to educate so as to qualify our graduates for any position in life. We do not neglect the ornamental, but we do not sacrifice the useful to the merely ornamental. If a young lady desires a thorough scholistic training, as well as the graces and accomplishments of a well-conudcted Boarding School, the Wesleyan offers her superior advantages at the lowest possible rates. The aim has been to reduce our prices to meet the demands of the people, and at the same time to offer increased advantages in the Literary, Scientific and Ornamental Departments of the College. There is no building, North or South, with more elegant accommodations as a Boarding School.

Considering the character of teachers, advantages offered, the home comforts provided, and the liberal arrangements for the Improvement of the pupils, it is impossible to give lower rates and maintain the financial safety of the College. With cheaper and fewer teachers, and more meagre provision for the comfort, safety and happiness of the pupils, we could offer lower rates, but in education the best is always the cheapest.

To ministers of the Gospel, willing to aid us, special advantages are offered.

For thoroughness, cheapness, safety and comfort, parents and guardians are earnestly invited to consider the claims of the Wesleyan. Write for Catalogue to

IN BLACK AND WHITE.

By Paul Grant.

Jim Gary stood moodily debating within himself how he could meet the heavy tax the sheriff would lend him a helping hand, as he had done with his plantations; for the carpet-bagger ruled in Carolina and "the bottom rail was on top." These plantations were situated near Charleston, and were very valuagitated state of the lately freed negroes. Gary had been unable to work them and they had literally been sold to pay the enormous taxes levied on them. They had been bought up for a song by a peculiarly sharp and unscrupulous carpet-bagger, the Hon. Ezra Pennefather, who now carried things with a high hand.

From wealth Gary was reduced to poverty all that was left him was his city residence, and now he began to fear that, too, must go. He had reasons to believe that Pennefather had set his eye on this place also, his property seeming much to the carpet-bagger's liking.

Jim had striven manfully to face the new order of things. His training had fitted him to be a planter, but that being impossible he had gladly taken any employment that would make his bread and support his old mother, and so far he had been able to do so in tolerable comfort.

But Gary had other troubles besides financial ones. While traveling for a firm he had made the acquaintance of Hope Snowden in Baltimore, and had fallen in love with her at first sight. This love became a wild infatuation when, regardless of consequence, he won her in return, and it made him indifferent to the fact that he was too poor to support a wife. But Gary was naturally buoyant and he felt sure that now his luck would change and something turn up to better his condition.

But, in the last few weeks, fortune had served him some very shabby tricks. First, Hope wrote him that she was coming to Charleston to stay with her guardian. Judge of his horror, when he learned that this person was the Hon. Ezra Pennefather! On hearing this, his mother vehemently opposed the match, declaring that it would be a disgrace to even associate with anyone of the carpet-bagger's family, and urged him to drop the girl's acquaintance at once. But this Gary could not do, though he fiatly refused to enter Pennefather's house. So the lovers' only meeting was to take long walks together. Before he had become reconciled to this style of courtship, Hope gave him shock number two, by confiding to him the disagreeable news that her guardian was urging upon her a match with his son, and her home was now anything but a pleasant one. Gary groaned as he realized that he could neither take her anything but a pleasant one. Gary groaned as he realized that he could neither take he as he realized that he could neither take her to his mother, nor keep up two establishments. What should he do?

Added to all these misfortunes came now this fresh one about his house; kow long could he keep this shelter over his mother's head? It seemed to Jim that nothing more could befall him, and he stood staring out of the window blessing carpet-baggers in general and Pennefather in particular.

"Tis no use standing here growling; I must go down town and see what I can do," he said, and hurried off. "Looks like the country is going to the dogs and I am a pioneer on the trip," he muttered, as he took his way along. "Who can I ask to lend me a good sum this morning? This Infernal carpetbag and negro legislature has plunged Carolina into such ruin that we are all too poor to kelp one another."

"Good mornin", Mr. James, "said no, in a lotty manner.

"Hello, Cato!" cried Jim, "what are you doing here? I thought you were in Columbia with the carpet-bag legislature."

"So I was, but at this present time I'se takin' pleasure befo' business. I'se on my weddin' trip."

"Indeed! and who is Mrs. Cato?"

"Mrs. Garce," said the negro, coolly, "was Angelique."

"Angelique?"

"She used to be Angeline, but since her return from Boston, where she has been studying music, she prefers to be called Angelique."

"Really! Pray present my compliments to

"Does you grudge me the name? Mr. James."
"Yes, I do," said Gary, "when you drag it through the mire in that carpet-bag legislature. You ought to be ashamed to disgrace the

You ought to be ashamed to disgrace the family name by being in the concern."
"Wouldn't you b'long to it?"
"No, I wouldn't."
"Well, then, don't you think it best that some born southerners should b'long to it to see that the carpet-baggers don't run away with averthing?".

with everything?',
"And you are the born southerner?"
"I'm a southerner of I is black."
"That's so," said Jim. "Now the question is, will you see to it that they don't run away is, will you see to it that they don't run away with everything?"

"Deed I will, Mr. James, for by the help of the Lord, I'll keep some for myself. I'se jis' bought my parents a handsome residence on Logan street. My mother don't like Angelique, and Angelique dosn't like her, so I'se 'bliged to keep' em apart."

Here was a droll coincidence with his own case, and Jim smiled to himself as he observed it.

It may be said here that Cato was the son of Daddy Cato and Maum Phillis, and they had been all owned by Mr. Gary. Old Cato had been coachman and Phillis cook, young Cato house boy, and Angeline, a bright mulatto girl, lady's maid. When freedom came she was sent north by a New England philanthropist to be educated, and the lady's maid developed into the fine lady.

Old Cato and his wife now made their living by jobhing while Cato In wort into politice.

Old Cato and his wife now made their living by jobbing, while Cato, Jr., went into politics and found them very profitable. He was several years older than Jim, and the latter had spent some of his leisure hours in his boyhood in teaching him to read and write. He was an unusually smart negro and this education had enabled him to climb to the top of the ladder where he was now the "Hon. Mr. Garae" and catting rich.

ladder where he was now the "Hon. Mr. Garee," and getting rich.
"I tries to do my duty to my parents, now I'se been converted, and become a preacher," the colored statesman continued.
"Oh! so you have taken orders?"
"Orders! Whose orders? I used to take your orders and old master's, when I b'longed to you, but now I'se free, I takes orders from nobody but the master os us all."
"Stick to that," said Jim, "and now tell me how long do you all propose to plunder the state?"

state?"
'I don't know, Mr. James," said the legis-"I don't know, Mr. James," said the legislator, calmly, "it remains with the white gentlemen to say how long the carpet-baggers will stay. All I know is, that so long as they do stay, I am going to get all I can, and so keep it out of their clutches. I serve my state to the best of my ability, and the only difference I see is, that now the money is in black hands 'stead of white ones."

"Strange, "but that does make a great difference," said Gary, dryly.

"What's the matter with you, Mr. James? You seem depressed," said Cato, politely.

"Naturally, when I am ruined. The very last piece of property I own, 'the house on Rutledge avenue, is going because I can't pay the taxes put upon it by your rascally carpetbag concern."

bag concern."
"Eh, eh? The ole house?" cried Cato, dropping his pompous manner. "Pon't you be troubled, Mass Jim," he added in sympathetic tones. "I can len' you as much as you want. I got a little bill [through the legislature t'other day by which I made lots o' money."

Gary groaned, "No thank you, Cato, I don't want any of that money."
"Pennefather said the measure would prove highly beneficious to the state, and we accordingly run it through together."
"Pernicious, you better say. I certainly don't want any money that that rascal is mixed on with."

"Do you know the gentleman?" asked the honorable legislator.
"To my cost. Hasn't he managed to gobble up all my plantations? Isn't he foremost in levying ruinous taxes, and foremost in buying up other people's property for a song? And hasn't he got his d—d eye on my house now?"

Cato was thunderstruck. "Laud! Mass James, tain't as bad as that!" he exclaimed. "Hush!" cried Gary, angrily. "Don't speak to me. "You negroes have no more sense than to play into the hands of these

He hurried off, leaving Cato speechless. A few hours later, as Gary left the office of a friend, with whom he was trying to negotiate a loan, an elegant carriage, drawn by a pair of handsome horses, dashed by him. Glancing up, he recognized in the occupants, seated in such splendor, Cato, Jr., and Angeline.

The Hon. Mr. Garee lifted his hat, and his wife smiled and bowed. Again the incongruity of their situations struck him. As he stood watching the prosperous couple, their carriage drew up at the residence of the Hon-Ezra Pennefather. Mr. and Mrs. Garee alighted and entered the house. Gary scowled. He wondered if Pennefather forced Hope to associate with all his political allies. Hope must not and should not live there. He must—he would—make some arrangement to take her thence.

Dady Cato and Maum Phillis had just moved into their new house, presented them by their prosperous son. It was really a mee place, and in the handsome rooms their humble belongings looked poor and scarity indeed. Plain as they were, they had gotten injured in the moving and Daddy Cato was now busy doctoring the leg of a chair.

He was a little old man with a mild, rather simple face, and was of the most insectful ten.

He was a little old man with a mild, rather simple face, and was of the most tpeaceful tendencies; at present he spent much of his time trying to keep the peace between his wife and his new daughter-in-law, not out of any affection for the latter, but out of respect for the son. Helnow stood with the broken leg of the chair in his hand, considering how he could mend it, when the door opened and his wife entered. She was a short, plump, black woman; her head was tied in a bandana handkerchief, and she wore another about her shoulders in the true orthodox style. Maum Phillis went every day to wait on her "old "Well, Cato," said she, "wha' you t'ink I see?"

"I dunno," said Daddy Cato, considering the broken charleg in his hand.
"I see my Cato an' Lina ride in a fine carriage tuh call on Mr. Penfedder!"

"He's a furriner," said Daddy Cato, as if explaining the matter.
"I dunkyer of he is; he's w'ite,"cried Maum Phillis. "Ole miss say he wuz a low cretur, and she tell me dat 'sociatin' wid him wun't do Cato any good."
"Cato knows his place wheneber he's wid de quality. Penfedder can't tun his head," said

"Well, Phillis, dat ent as foolish as it look," observed Daddy Cato. "Dat's nat'ral in Lina, fur her gran'farrah wuz a wegitable man—ole Gabe. wuz. I 'member w'en he use tuh cry constant tru disher town: 'Yuh caabbage, caabbage! Sweet puttetter, puttetter, puttetter, puttetter! Onion, onion, onion! Yes, ma'am, yuh yo' onion, onion, onion!" Here Daddy Cato exalted his voice in mimicry. "An' dat's de way Lina git de idy," continued the old man. "De onion juice do run in de blood, only she try tuh mek it mo' fine-lady; so she call it leek, which is delicater-like."

But this statement of the ebon philosopher

Angelique. She was a tall, fine-looking mulatto woman, very handsomely dressed.

'Yuh Angeline,' cried Daddy Cato, and in his desire to propitiate all parties, came near calling her Leek.

"How de do, old people," cried Angelique with airy condescesion, and a very pronouced Boston accent, which sounded drolly.

"Father Cato, Mother Phillis, I am glad to see you," and she held out two fingers of a gloved hand to Maum Phillis, who disdained to see them. "So this is your new house! Mr. Gary told me about it."

Maum Phillis winced; she could not bear to hear Angeline call Cato Mr. Gary. She told Daddy Cato afterwards she felt as if Lina "wuz sassin de fam'bly."

Daddy Cato afterwards she left as it Lina

"It could be made to look very nice," said Angolique, "with new furniture and a lot of ornaments. You ought to see the Pennefather's; it is just lovely! I mean to have mine similarly arranged."

Daddy Cato groaned and shook his head, and Maum Phillis sucked her teeth in speechless scorn. "Tryin' tuh do like she wuz w'ite!"

"Here," said Angelique, producing two "Area," said Angelique, producing two small bisque figures, "here are some articles of vertu, as the French say, that I brought from Boston to adorn your house."

"A-articles ob wirtu!" said Maum Phillis, "how can dem dolls be a-article of wirtu?"

Angelique smiled contemptuously.

Maum Phillis surveyed the two little figures with disfavor. Here Angelique interposed. "Those do not represent historical characters," said she, "but are simply a shepherd and shepherdess of Dresden china, and on that account valuable."

"No mine, dey wite is a wool gadderin'," cried Daddy Cato, a little crest-fallen that his King Solomon theory had fallen through, but trying to rally, "Eh, Angeline?"

'Lique, not line," corrected Mrs. Cato.

"Leek!"

"Lique is French," said Mrs Cato.

"I dunno nuttin 'bout French," said Maum her. He saw there was no time to be lost. How could he accomplish it? How communicate with her?

As he walked along in anxious musings, Daddy Cato's cry of "Ca'abbage, onion, onion, onion, yes ma'am, yuh yo' onton!" issuing from a very nice looking house, attracted his attention. All at once it occurred to him that this must be the residence appropriate by the attention. All at once it occurred to fill that this must be the residence presented by the Hon. Cato to his parents. Remembering the friendship that existed between the two leg-islators, he bethought him that Maum Phillis might get a note to Hope for him, and so rang

Daddy Cato answered it, and was filled with joy at sight of him, and, with the cry of "Yuh Mass Jeams!" proudly ushered him into his house. Here Maum Phillis gave "Sonny," as she called him, a rapturous greeting, for years ago she had been his nurse, and she still clung to this title as proof of it.

"Howdye do, Lina," said Gary, nodding to 'Howdye do. Mr. Gary," said Angelique, making a graceful bow.

"Mr. Garee!" cried Maum Phillis, turning on her in wrath. "Mr. Garee! How dare you call Mass Jim Mr. Garee? You huzzy, you!" Negroes make a very nice distinction. "Mass James" was the language of a slave, while Mr. James indicated the respect due from a freedman to his former owner. To call him Mr. Gary would imply social equality, or a repudiation of all former ties, and was, therefore, little short of an insult, and but seldom ventured on.

tle short of an insult, and but seldom ventured on.

But Gary was too full of anxiety to trouble himself about Lina's lack of courtesy. He called his ex-nurse into the adjoining room and, laying before her his troubles, begged her to take a note to Hope for him. Maum Phillis was at first secretly shocked to hear that Gary cared for any one of Pennefather's household. But her perfect faith in "Sonny" soon asserted itself and assured her he could do nothing wrong. She heard with rage of the carpet-bagger's rude behavior, and eagerly agreed to do all she could to thwart him. So she hurried off, delighted with the errand given her, and in a short time was back. By the connivance of the cook she had succeeded in seeing Hope and delivering Gary's note, entreating her to leave Pennefather's house the next day and meet him.

"She is sicher sweet chile!" cried Maum Phillis, "an' she cried so pityful! Oh! she is a mos' beautiful young lady!"

Negroes take a lively interest in white people's love affairs, and Maum Phillis was so full of Gary's troubles that she had to step into the next room and regale Daddy Cato, and so Angelique got the benefit, and unexpectedly came to the rescue. Approaching Gary she said in a persectly respectful manner:

"I can call on Miss Snowden, Mr. James "You!" cried Jim astonished.

Angelique smiled and nodded. Intriguing is delightful to the negro and Angelique, in spite of her education, was not above enjoy-

"Will you, really, Lina?"
"With much pleasure, Mr. James."
Daddy Cato listened to her with delight.
"Dey, now, Phillis, don't you see Angeline hab got feelin' ef she do call herself Leek!"
Before Maum Phillis could reply, Cato, Jr. entered. The honorable gentleman was not a little staggered when he learned of the proposed raid on Pennefather's house. "It will injure my prospects," said he.

from Hope, stating that her guardian threatened to keep her a close prisoner in his house until she consented to marry his son, and entreating her lover's assistance.

Much excited, Gary hurried to Pennefather's residence, but the servant who answered the bell refused to let him enter. Pennefather then himself appeared, and after a stormy interview slammed the door in his face, and full of impotent rage Gary left the carpetbagger's inhospitable doorstep. But as he walked he gradually cooled down, and began to ask himself seriously what he should do. He had to deal with a very unscrupulous man and one who had the legal advantage of him. He really had no right to hope unless he married her. He saw there was great when the servant brought up the cards of Mr. and Mrs. Cato Gary. They had called in the morning, and she had refused to see them. She was and she had refused to see them. She was about to do so a second time, when the idea occurred to her that perhaps they had some connection with the old woman who had just left her, so she hastened down to the parlor.

Nothing could exceed the elegance of Ar
gelique nor the dignity of Cato. Angeliqu soon drew out Gary's note. "I come as a embassador from Mr. James," said she

"Oh!" cried Hope after reading it, "how am to get out of here?"
"Where is Pennefather?" asked Cato. "He and his son are both out, but in their absence they have a negro man who acts as guard and allows no one to leave the house "Come to the door with me and Cato when we leave," suggested Mrs. Garee.

Hope stood irresolute.

"Trust in the Lord, miss," urged Angelique, "Trust in the Lord, miss," urged Angelique, relapsing into the vernacular of former days. Thus urged, Hope escorted her guests to the street door where stood the stout body guard. "Knock that low person down, Cato," whispered Angelique, valiantly thrusting her husband to the front.

But Cato, like his father, was a man of

But Cato, like his father, was a man of peace, and saw no reason to get into a scuffle. However, when the body guard unlocked the door he swung his ponderous weight against it and braced it back. "Walk out ladies," said he blandly.

"Not so," said the body guard, "dat's 'gainst de boss's orders. Miss Hope can't go out."

But Cato majestically waved him back.

"By the authority vested in me, the Hon. Cato Garee, member of the legislature of South Carolina, I command you to let her pass free, else pains and penalties shall be yours for contempt of the great state of South Carolina, in the person of me, her honorable representative."

"Good Laud!" cried the affrighted negro, "Good Laud!" cried the affrighted negro,
"what all dat you say?"
"I will be responsible to Mr. Pennyfather for the young lady; refer him to me," said the great legislator.

By this time Angelique had hurried Hope into the carriage. Cato followed them and they drove away.

"Well, I think I managed that very nicely," said Angelique complacently.

"Don't crow, Pennyfather will soon be on our track," said Cato. "Drive fast," he called to the coachman.

In a few moments they drew up at the residence of Daddy Cato, and the old couple met Hope with eager delight. Gary was now full of new perplexities. Where should he go to be married? and where should he take his bride? He and Hope sat in Maum Phillis's sitting room discussing what they should do. "First, we will go round to Rev. Mr. Gaston's and be married, that is the most important step," said Gary.

"Better sen' for him Mr. James," suggested Cato," and don't take the young lady on the street."

Get married in Daddy Cato's house! Gary winced, he did not fancy it at all. "I think we can safely venture out in a carriage to—"he began, when a tremendous ringing of the door bell interrupted him, and sent Cato out to see what was the matter.

He soon returned. "Mr. Pennefather is at the door, and he threatens that he will bring the police, but he will have the young lady. You had better make haste, Mr. James."

Hope shock like a leaf, while Gary stood horrified. What should he do?

"You can't get out now, Mr. James," said the consoling Cato, "for Pennefather stands ready to grab the young lady. Looks like he'll bust the do' down."

"Cato, you an all'ous "Il fight fur sonny 'fore dat ole furriner shill hab dis sweet chile," cried Maum Phillips excitedly.

"What do you mean?" cried Pennefather, and not waiting for an answer dashed into the room, and was about to seize Hope by the arm, when Gary interposed.

"Hands off! She is my wife!"

"Your wife! How long since?"

"Five minutes, by de clock," chimed in Daddy Cato. "I nuttuced putticular."

"And, pray, who performed the ceremony?"
Pennefather demanded.
"I did," said Cato, calmly.

"I did," said Cato, calmly.
"You! By what right?"
"By the right of both my civil and ministerial capacity," the legislator replied in a lofty tone. "The marriage is legal. We are all equal now, Mr. Pennefather."

all equal now, Mr. Pennefather."

The rage of the carpetbagger was boundless, but he was forced to quit the house, leaving his ward behind.

Gary now took Hope home and laid the case before his mother. The horror of Mrs. Gary language failed to express. But at last Hope's appeal that she was an orphan and could not help being, touched her. She insisted, however, that the "colored ceremony," as she called it, should be kept secret, and she had a very quite private wedding the next morning. Daddy Cato's entire family were present, and the old man was much delighted at the "white matrimony," as he termed it.

"Ole Miss gie de bride 'way herself! An' didn't she do it wid an air? Ah, Laud! blood will show! Now dat's de way fuh a Garee tuh be married, an' not by a po' nigger!"

"All the same my ceremony was a binding affair, and not to be sneezed at in the way of style," said Cato, Jr.

As Jim afterwards said, his marriage was most binding, as it was a contract in black and white.

It afterwards transpired that Mr. Pennefather's anxiety for his ward's marrigae with his son, arose from the fact that he had invested her funds most advantageously in southern property, Gary's plantations among others, and wished to secure it all for his son, as his ward would soon be of age. Thus in the end, Gray's lost property returned to him.

ORMEWOOD PARK is that beautiful tract of 100 acres just east of Grant Park and morth of the Confederate Veterans' Home property. It is within one-fourth unile of Grant Park, Little Switzerland and the dummy line as it goes around the park. The dummy line to the home runs for half mile through Ormewood, thus making every lot in the park very accessible. A large force of hands under the direction of Major Charles Boeckh' is now at work grading out avenues and drives. A beautiful avenue 80 feet wide, leading direct from Grant Park and the Boulevard, has already been graded through Ormewood, thus affording one of the most attractive drives around the eity. Drive out there this evening and see for yourself. Mr. Harry Woodward has just completed a handsome $4,500 residence at the head of Ormewood avenue, and several more of equal value will be creeted shortly by some of our best citizens. The entire 100 acres has been subdivided in the most advantageous manner, and the lots are from one-half to three acres each. No smaller lots will be sold. To those who will erect desirable residences we will sell these lots on most liberal terms, it being the object of the owners to build up this beautiful park with first-class houses rather than sell to speculators. DR. TALMAGE AT CHAUTAUQUA.

SIX THOUSAND PEOPLE PRESENT.

A Magnificent Lecture by the Great Preacher,

ON THE "SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL."

A Memorable Occasion in the History of Chautauqua.

Six thousand people! Such a concourse of people has seldom been seen in the state. The trains leaving Atlanta were crowded until standing room was not to

The great preacher prefaced his lecture with a glowing tribute to the memory of Henry Grady. He referred to Senator Colquitt and to Senator Brown as men eminently worthy of the high trust they held; as to Governor Gordon as a gallant gentleman, beloved and respected north as well as south.
"The School for Scandal."

"There are," said Dr. Talmage, "many schools in this world, founded by many different kinds of men; but the worst ever founded, was the 'School for Scandal,' and many more people have been and are still going to this school than to any other.

going to this school than to any other.

"Have you ever been scandalized? Scandal is the healthiest of all monsters, and travels faster than any other. It can go from New York to San Francisco in a few minutes. It has the fleetness of the lightning. It is found just behind the telegraph pole. It has the best olfactory nerves of any living thing. It is higher, longer, broader and deeper than anything else.

"No man can catch the scandalizers; neither the grand jury, the policeman, the bailiff nor any one else. They are a wretched set. It is astonishing how they learn the news. They can see further than anybody else. They can see through a key hole of the most diminutive size. They are found in their glory in villages of 1,000 or 2,000.

"The cranes, in a certain eagle-intested neighborhood, were accustomed to carry their young through this place, and the young would invariably cackle. They finally learned to put a stone in the mouth of their young to keep them from cackling and thus they were saved. Oh! that some people would put rocks into the mouths of some other people to keep them from cackling.

of some other people to keep them from cackling.

"What is better than the tongue when it is used right, and what worse when used evilly? A waiter was told to have a dinner of the best that England afforded, for the entertainment of a gathering of philosophers, and he brought tongue. When told by the irate host to have a dinner off the worst England afforded, he brought tongue. Tongue is the best and the worst thing in the world.

"Some men are born mean and can't help it. I know one man who used a wart on the back of his neck for a collar button, he was so mean.

I know one man who used a wart on the back of his neck for a collar button, he was so mean.

Not long since a good brother was too busily engaged to receive callers, but the servant said one, a street urchin, would not be refused. The little ragged boy forced his way into the presence of this wealthy gentleman, and said bravely: 'I want to borrow two dollars.' The gentleman was amazed that such an one should have the effrontery to make such a request. 'My mother is ill.' I have no way of making money, but if I had two dollars I could buy and sell papers and get a start, and I want you to lend it to me,' said the boy.

"I don't know; when I make it.' A few years afterwards, an elegantly dressed gentleman came into the same brother's office, and making himself known, returned the money with usury.

"That brother had a heart. He was not a mean man.

"We are thought that in this grand country.

"We are taught that in this grand country Why there never was a mean man.

'We are taught that in this grand country all are born equal. Why, there never was a greater untruth uttered. You might as well say all trees or all sheep are equal, which is an absurdity. Men are meansome of them. Let me tell you a circumstance which happened in the governor's mansion in Atianta. It was while Mr. Stephens was one of the noblest men of his age! A negro told me this. Mr. Stephens was ill, and was not expected to live.

"He said to his clerk, 'Bring me that yellow letter.' No,' said the clerk, 'You can wait until tomorrow for that.' 'No, I can't. I may not be living tomorrow. Bring the paper. It is asking the pardon of an old friendless negro woman. She has no friends. Let this be my last act, if need be. This woman has suffered enough.' The papers were brought, and across the paper was written, 'Pardoned. Alexander H. Stephens, Governor,' were brought, and across the paper was written, 'Pardoned. Alexander H. Stephens, Governor,'

"How grand to die this way! Magnificent! Magnificent!! I had rather die this way than go up in a chariot of fire, as did Elijah! Alexander Stephens was a good man."
By this time Dr. Talmage had spoken about one hour, when a train arrived from Atlanta, bringing 800 people.
"Why," said Dr. Talmage, "my friends are just getting here."
The tabernacle was overrun and many people had to stand up.

"Ah! my friends, we ought to be merciful.

After awhile we will be measured by our own yardstick. Oh, that word, mercy. It's as broad as—as heaven itself! There is no human mercy for a man or woman who has fallen. The is more mercy in the fangs of a rattlesnake the tooth of a hyena than in the human breast for a fallen woman. Mercy, mercy, why cannot we give mercy where we would have mercy? After awhile we will be measured by our own yardstick.

"It is a poor rule that can't work both ways. Why can't all the "Schools of Scandal" be turned to "Schools of Mercy"?

Dr. Talmage fooncluded with a reminiscent description of the battle field of Waterloo. It was a mignificent word picture.

He told of the progress of the battle at this point and that point, and finally how everything hinged on the arrival of reinforcements.

"Blucher came just in time!

"Napoleon's reinforcements never came!

"Come on, my men,' said the hero Ney. "Come, follow me, and see how the marshal of France can die?"

That was all there was left to do, for the battle was lost and won.

That was all there was left to do, for the battle was lost and won.

"Our lives," said the speaker, "are a Waterloo. What we need in many a crisis is reinforcement—not of human hands, but of the Lord God of Hosts. There is an ally that never falters; an ally that never betrays. His help can be had for the asking, and how many a life battle could be won if we only knew this—if we only remembered it—if we only trusted Him!"

DO NOT ACCEPT THIS PAGE AS PARTICULARS FOR IT'S ONLY A BIRD'S-EYE VIEW.

For some days we have hinted at a coming event. This morning you may scan the complete announcement. The when, the where, the how, and why of it, are thoroughly defined. It is quite extraordinary to plan and operate a great trade movement for the closing quarter of the dullest Summer month. But this attempt must be made now or never. Would you like to know the reason? The Blanket business demands large shelf and counter space. Our store is probably the equal in area of any in the South. But during the early rush of an active season there isn't a quare inch to spare. Not so now. Some stocks can be crowded—consolidated, and so several departments have yielded floorage, and we can thus command room for this important display. even without diminishing or dwarfing a single minor feature, or checking the material progress

Distant centres have been ransacked for lots that makers would sell at discount, way down prices. Profits were ignored and losses sustained in order to employ labor and maintain organizations intact during the unseasonable period. Eighteen manufacturers are represented. A critical examination will reveal surprising facts. The collection is free from trash and machine soiled stuff. It is an offering of fine, pure, substantial and honest goods. Reputable in every respect. With weight, width, length and thickness that you rarely ever see. In volume this special supply aggregates nearly Ten Thousand Dollars. We hesitate to make a comparison of prices. Each pair is within your reach at a large percentage below what they would cost us at wholesale if bought

Did you ever dream of a gigantic Blanket sacrifice just when a chill was beginning to creep into the nights? We think not. And yet here is one involving thousands of dollars in articles of bulk and value that will rapidly prove a stupendous success. To be sure the enterprise will amply justify itself as immense results must inevitably follow.

The whole departure is a marvel to dealers and a delight to consumers. Some kindly critic may call us daft for selling at the low prices. All right! Let him laugh that wins.

We shall vitalize the retail Blanket trade and reproduce last December's enthusiasm. A chief difference that divides this affair from all others is that it is not based upon a few marked down goods, but covers a proper fresh and superior assortment. The same that you are used to seeing at well-behaved, progressive stores in midwinter, and in many cases half the usual money

The brief existence of the sale should hasten hotel managers and out-of-town people, as a moderate purchase will more than pay the expense of a two hundred mile journey.

It is indeed an occasion of worth and moment—not trivial nor inconsequential, and must be quick, as we cannot allow it to conflict or interfere with the regular Autumn preparations.

The cool wave last week came like a Winter herald.

Naturally therefore Blankets are most opportune. Why lack comforts of this sort when styles are here to your heart's content, and their price and quality merits meet the wants of many a household. Remember particularly that the life of this sale will expire with this month. Begun, continued and ended in thirteen days is

An English contributor to the Forum affirms that Flax has not yet felt the full force and effect of Cotton competition. He advances the opinion that eventually Cotton will invade the territory now exclusively occupied by Flax.

The writer's prediction is absurd, and his theory the greatest fullacy ever propounded. Linen and Cotton recognize their relation to one another, and have quietly accepted their respective places. In a few fabrics they unite properly. The union is practically limited to bath Towels. Base adulterations may continue, but whenever tow or jute is mixed with good Linen the wear worth will be weakened. Fine skill is required to detect either of these defects. Our plan is to protect you from shams by selecting the best. We provide the knowledge to gather honest goods and to sell them cheaply. No guess-work about the service of anything offered here. If we say Linen it is Linen. You can buy with perfect confidence.

On these golden foundations our trade rests. A graceful dining table depends for elegance largely upon Linens. While much may be expended it is also true that for comparative little a refined taste may be gratified. Our assortment of the cheaper plain styles, and the very elaborate, ornate costly ones demonstrate that. You can hardly have an ideal of a Damask but its counterpart is here. Mellow, silky surfaces, artistic and quaint designs by the score, and the same small-price pay streak runs through them

In view of the low cost we must ask you to heed certain specific requests: The Linen will not be subject to exchange—do not ask it. Purchases must be delivered during the current week. Our spaces are over-crowded new. At present prices we cannot afford to carry the goods for future delivery.

THESE GOODS ARE THE UTMOST OUR GREAT BUYING POWER CAN ACCOMPLISH.

GRANNY HOAR'S CODFISH DIET

He Now Tries to Deny His Foolish Speech.

WASHINGTON, August 16 .- [Special.]-The republicans who are angry because even that hide bound and unscrupulous partisan Mathew Stanley Quay, balked on the force bill are indulging in all sorts of wild talk and frantic threats of what will happen to the aforesaid Quay if he persists in his wayward course. They even go so far as to $10,800,000, an increase of 130 per cent. Did the senator from Vermont, he asked, think that that was a mere local improvement? So as to Pamilico river, on which $45,000 had been expended, freight charges reduced between twelve and fifty per cent, and commerce developed to $4,000,000, an increase of sixty per cent.

Mr. Daniel demanded a separate vote on the amendment reducing the appropriation for declare that unless he withdraws his opposition to the bayonet bill they will read him out of the party. They whisper quietly that since the exposure of how he gutted the Pennsylvania treasury while he was treasurer of the Keystone state, he has been a tremendously heavy load to amendment, reducing the appropriation for Nansemond river, Virginia, from $10,000 to carry anyway, and say that this would be a good time to unload him. But Boss Quay is not disconcerted.

The Esupporters of the force bill can threaten all kinds of dark vengeances, the administration can protest until it is black in the face against the abandonment of its pet measure, but Quay and the seventeen republican senators who are with him in his determination to dump the bill overboard, will not falter.

Today Quay reintroduced his resolution merely extending the programme of legislation for this session, so as to include the anti-lottery and compound lard bills, but excluding the elections bill as before. Just before adjournment this evening he gave notice that he would call up the resolution for action next Tuesday.

This means that it will be passed no matter what Hoar and his crowd may do. The latter gentlemen are making frantic efforts to save the day. They are keeping the wires hot telegraphing for absent senators, known to be in favor of the elections bill, urging them to return immediately. hope to get enough of friends here to defeat the Quay men in caucus and lay down as radical a course as has yet been proposed, including a change of the rules, and an arbitrary exercise of power in order to secure the passage of their bill. But the Quay men say they are done with caucusing and the force bill crowd might as well throw up their hands as continue the fight and thus emphasize their defeat. Granny Hoar Is Cornered. Yesterday Senator Hoar made an eyasive statement in the senate regarding the charge of The Washington Post, to the effect that at a recent republican caucus he said that rather than have the force bill fail he would be willing to see all the factories in Massachusetts burned, the people forced to work for 50 cents a day and to live on a cold cod-fish diet. The Post comes back at Mr. Hoar today, and says editorially: Senator Hoar undertook to ride in on the tail end of Senator Quay's denial with one from him-self regarding a report of his speech in a recent caucus. The report of Senator Hoar's speech, as printed in The Post, rests on an entirely different foundation from the report of Senator Quay's speech, The Post is alone responsible for the report of Senator Hoar's "50 cents a day and cod-fish diet" ch. Senator Hoar's feint at a denial was w and flimsy—it was a mere bluff. He said the senators knew that the statements as to himself were mendacious. The senators don't know any such thing, and Senator Hoar cannot get thre senators to say so. As before stated The Pos It will gladly print what he himself will furnish as to what he did say, and it will, if Senator Hoar will get a card signed by Senators Sherman, His-cock, Allison, Teller and Haie, to the effect that its report of his speech was not substantially correct, admit that it was imposed on, and it will make ample apology to the gentleman with the threatened cod-fish constitutioney,

It is a matter of common gossip here that ex-Postmaster General Frank Hatton, effitor of The Post, wrote the original article quoting Mr. Hoar's words, and is prepared to back up his statements, if necessary, with affidavits from republican senators who were present when he made choice between the passage of the force bill and "650 cents a day and codfish diet" for the artisans in the Masacher setts manufactories.

It's a Hat Administration ing a quorum. Yesterday, when he was hard ed to find a quorum to pass the rotten pressed to find a quorum to pass the rotten Nat McKay claim, he sent a page into the hanging on pegs whose owners did not appear two, and it is said Reed counted these to fill

This fact was talked about on the floor of the house today, and some one suggested that it would be an accommodation to the "dude-sched dictator" to have a few old hats left on the desks of members in order that Reed could count the hats and thus be saved the necessity of beating the clock rooms for tangible evidence that absentees were still lingering about the capitol building.

No New Appointment Now.

The New York press which is controlled by Mr. Mr. Porter, superintendent of the census, has an editorial today in which the statement is made that the new congressional apportion-ment will not be made until the next session. There has been a report out for some time that the republican leaders would try to force the question before the close of the present session.

FOR IMPROVING THE STREAMS. The Senate on the River and Harbor Bill

Senator Quay's Resolution.

WASHINGTON, August 16.—The senate resumed consideration of the river and harbor bill. After further prolonged debate on the item for the improvement of Harlem river, Mr. Hawley's amendment providing that the bridges over the river should be solid and without draws or openings, was rejected. The committee's proposition was then agreed to with the understanding that the whole question would be fixed up in the conference was then proceeded with, on the amendments offered by individual senators.

In the course of discussion of an amendment offered by Mr. Bate, as to an improvement in Tennessee, Mr. Edmunds expressed the idea that an appropriation in bulk of $13,000,000 (half of the amount carried in the bill) would, with $5,000,000 unexpended out of the river and harbor bill of 1888, be amply sufficient for all really national works of internal improvement. He expected that it would turn out that on the 30th of June, 1891, the treasury would be $50,000,000 short, even if the duty were not taken off of sugar. In that state of things he was quite unwilling to bear his part of the responsibility of sending to the president a river and harbor bill appropriating $26,000,000 when there was already $5,000,000 unexpended out of the bill of 1888. He had intended to submit a proposition, such as he suggested, but he was convinced that it would be only wearying the patience of the senate without any good effect. THE DEATH OF AN ATLANTA MAN

And Suspicions That He Was Murdered.

DENVER, Col., August 16 .- [Special.]-A suicide in Leadville a few days ago of a girl in a notorious house has caused renewed activity on the part of the Denver police in ferreting out a mysterious death. Several years ago Edna Brackett, of Louisville, Ky., fell desperately in love with a young man named Bennett, whose home was in Atlanta, Ga., but was visiting Louisville. The young man returned the girl's affections and the day of the wedding was set. A short time before the proposed marriage, a former lover named Merriman called at the girl's house and proposed marriage, but was rejected. He shortly afterward called on Bennett and proposed a brilliant scheme for making money in the mines of Colorado. What the scheme was is not known, it being a pure invention of Merriman's.

Bennett, not being very wealthy, thought this was a great opportunity, and accordingly he requested his bride to postpone the marriage for six months, when he would be wealthy, and both could live happily. The happy day was postnoned. Five months later, Mr. Brackett, Edna's father, received a telegram from Merriman; dated Denver, saying that Bennett had lost his life in a mine at Leadville.

The body, he claimed, could not be brought home on account of the horrible mangled condition in which it was found.

Not doubting the man's story, Miss Brackett married Merriman, the couple moving to Denver. From the start he proved a cruel husband, often beating his wife andmaking false accusations. This treatment finally drove the girl away and she located in Leadville. Finding herself penniless she became an inmate of a house of ill-fame. Several months later she gave birth to s record his opposition to a rule which fixed a time for the previous question on the bill. He was in favor of the measure, but he thought that the house, and not the committee on rules, should determine the duration of the debate. The resolution was adopted, and consideration of the bill begun.

After a short debate, the bill was passed and the house adjourned. This must have reached the ears of Merriman who, about a week ago, managed to steal the child, afterwards leaving for parts' unknown. This last misfortune had such an effect upon the poor girl that on Thursday last she committed surcrue taking a dose of laudanum.

About the time Merriman claims Bennett was killed in the Leadville mine, an unknown body was found here in Cherry creek. The police have been unable to locate the murderer, but are now fully convinced that the unknown was Bennett and Mississippi valley, where about a seasonable temperature prevailed. The week was also the murderer Merriman.

THE QUESTION OF SUFFRAGE. The Mississippian's Devoting Their Time

JACKSON, Miss., August 16.-[Special.]-The Mississippi constitutional convention was not in session today but the franchise committee, consisting of thirty-five members, oc cupied the senate chamber in secret session.

It is understood they began their work by each member expressing his views on the suffrage plan for the constitution. Governor Alcorn is known to have spoken an hour, while Senator George's speech was longer. The only colored man in the convention is a memper of this committee.

That there will be some material, if not radical, changes in the franchise system of the state attempted now appears certain.

As to the validity of the enabling act on fundamental conditions upon which Missis-sippi was readmitted into! the union, which cribes that no educational or property qualifications shall ever be required as a preequisite for suffrage, there is much diversity of opinion among lawyers. If the convention oncedes that they are valid, it is more than possible that a committee may be appointed to go to Washington and ask congress to repeal

On the 4th of last June, this city was startled to hear of the elopement of Miss Corinne Neisler with one Charles G. Lamoine. Miss Neisler had met Lamoine in Atlanta where she was visiting friends, and formed a leep attachment for him. Her parents objected to the match, but under the pretense of attending the exercises of the unveiling of the Lee statue, the young lady went to Richmond, and there met Lamoine. Her parents were astonished to receive a telegram announcing her marriage in Boston Rumor is the meanwhile was rife. It was reported that Lamoine was a noted bigamist. Deplorable te relate these rumors appeared to be only too true.

Yesterday, in the city of Manchester, N. H., Charles G. Lamoine was arrested on a warrant sworn out on a charge of bigamy by Mrs. C. G. Lamoine, of Cincinnati, O., who has been on his track ever since he deserted her last April. Lamoine claims that his Cincinnati wife is the only one he is bound to by the marriage vows, but his wife says that he deserted her four months after the marriage and married Corinne Neisler, and that this

The result of the trial was that Lamoine was bride fined $19.62. The unfortunate lady telegraphed to her grief-stricken family today for money to come home on.

The young lady's family is among the best in Charlotte, respected by all and moving in the best circles. The shock comes upon them with crushing force. They have the sympathy of all the citizens of Charlotte, and what now seems to be such a dark cloud of affliction, it is hoped, will somewhat disappear when the idol of the family circle gets back to her southern home. She is expected tonight.

The Central Switchmen in Buffalo on a

BUFFALO,, N. Y., August 16.-The strike on the Central, which was supposed to be over, took a serious turn this morning, when at 3 'clock a. m., the switchmen on that road in this city, as well as the men of the West Shore road, went out in a body. The cause of this new complication, it is understood, originated yesterday afternoon. The yardmaster at Blackrock was ordered to send three men to the Exchange street depot to the places of others who went out a wock ago, which he did. Upon arriving at the depot and being told what was wanted of them, the Blackrock men declined to go to work, whereupon the yardmaster was called upon and requested to do something which, it was claimed, was in the nature of taking another man's place, and he declined. He was discharged and six others with him. This was laid before the executive committee of the switchmen, and a delegation from that organization went to Superintendent Burrows to talk to him upon the subject. But it is alleged he would have nothing whatever to do with them, refusing to discuss the subject. THE SWITCHMEN'S UNION The Switchmen's Union then called a meeting for last night, and after looking into the subject, a strike was ordered. THE RAILBOADERS' CLAIM. A carious claim set up by the railway men, was to the effect that the switchmen, as an organization, did not order this morning's strike. It is said the men made the refusal of Mr. Burrows to see the delegation a persons one, and went out of their own accord. This was mentioned to the switchman, who was met at East Buffalo, and his reply was:

"I don't think that is true, we were ordered to quit work at 3 o'clock this morning, and we are out. That's all I know about it."

He was arrested before any trouble ensued.

A Strike on the Rock Island.

GHICAGO, August 16.—The strike among the Rock Island switchmen at Forty-seventh street was renewed at 9 o'clock tonight, and all traffic was stopped. The cause of the trouble dates back forty-eight bours. A man named James Murphy was discharged by Yardmaster Carey for intoxication, it is alleged. Forty switchmen immediately struck and went back to work on the promise of Carey that Murphy would be reinstated. Last night Carey left orders that Murphy should not be set to work. As a consequence the men went out again. Freight trains could not move anywhere between the depot yards and Englewood. A Strike on the Rock Island.

FIGHTING A MAD DOG.

sational Experience Which a Cobb County Man Had.

MARIETTA, Ga., August 16 .- [Special.]-Mr. William Blair, from the lower part of this county, was in town today in quest of a madstone. He had quite a thrilling experience early yesterday morning at his home with quite a large and strange dog and bearing every evidence of having rabies. At an early hour Mr. Blair's attention was called to what seemed to be dogs fighting near the house, but, on going out, only found his own dog very much excited. Later on, however, he discovered lying in the road, not far from the house, a large black dog, and being atisfied that this was the dog that had been fighting his, he made an attempt to run him away by throwing at him.

Instead of running away the furious dog plunged at Mr. Blair, and before he could possibly get hold of anything to defend himself with the mad canine was grabbing at his throat.

In fighting the dog Mr. Blair thrust one of his hands into the dog's mouth which the furious animal clinched with all the strength of his jaws; but at the same time Mr. Blair man aged to get a hold on the animal's lower jaw and held it firmly until he could get hold of his pocket knife with the other hand. This accomplished, he cut the dog's throat killing him immediately. Mr. Blair is very much wrought up over the counter, and as two of his fingers were considerably lacerated by the dog's teeth he has fears of hydrophobia. He procured and applied to the wound a madstone, but it did not

M. McN. McKay, pastor of the Presbyterian church here, and one of the ablest ministers in the Atlanta presbytery, has received a unanimous call to the pastorate of the Fort Smith, Ark., church. Mr. McKay has not decided yet to accept the offer, but will visit Fort Smith during the coming week to see the field, and will then determine upon his course in the matter. Mr. McKay is an able man, a valued citizen, and we will regret it if he should decide to leave ns.

GRIFFIN, Ga., August 16.—[Special.]—J. A. Yatesnae, the white man inplicated in the forgery business with the negro some weeks ago, was tried this afternoon, convicted and sentenced to a term of years in the chaingang. His partner, John Morton, was also convicted and received a similar sentence. Partners in crime, they will wear the stripes together.

In THE CONSTITUTION'S report of the primary of Chattooga county recently held, it was stated that Colonel W. T. Irvine had a majority of 200 over Hop. W. M. Henry. It should have read 23 majority. Quite a difference.

SAVANNAH, Ga., August 16.—[Special.]—Savannah has one of the greatest of ethnological curiosities in America. It is a woman who is half white, half black. Patty Delight is her name. She is over sixty Patty is not of the ginger cake variety and never has been. She was born black—a fine specimen of the pure African. Today, though, were it not for the facial characteristics one would be in doubt as to whether she is a white woman who is becoming white. Every once in a while, colored men and wo-are found who have small, light patches on their persons.

These are always broadly heralded as startling instances of a change of color. Sometimes they are hired and put on exhibition in mu-

The whitest of them, though, is nothing compared with Patty Delight. Patty is abundant proof of the fact that if the Ethiopian cannot change her color, her color sometim changes of its own accord.

Patty's arms from the elbows down and her hands are as white as those of any blonde Caucasian in Savannah. They are not cream-colored, neither have they a dead, chalky ap-pearance. They are, to all appearance, the arms and hands of a white woman. One of her shoulders is also white, and her breast is as pure a white as the belle of a ballroom would desire. Of her feet the same, too, is

NEW COTTON COMING IN. Savannah's First Bale-The Crop Outlook

SAVANNAH, Ga., August 16.—[Special.]—W. W. Gordon & Co. received today from L. B. and F. Strickland, of Valdosta, the first bale of sea island cotten of this year's crop. The bale was grown by George W. Herndon, of Lowndes county, one of the largest and and most successful farmers of south Georgia. The preparation of the bale is good and it is well matured. It was classed as medium fine Florida, weighed 473 pounds and was sold to Messrs. Duckworth, Turner & Co. for 25 cents a pound.

The first bale of the crop of 1889 was received by Gordon & Co. from B. F. Strickland & Bro., of Valdosta, on August 24th, eight days later than the first bale of this season. It was also grown by Mr. Herndon.

The crop promised to be unusually large and fine until the rains began. Now the reports indicate that the crop will be one-fourth less than last year.

COTTON IN MORGAN.

The First Bale Comes in Earlier Than Last Year.

Madison, Ga., August 16 .- [Special.]-The first bale of new cotton was brought in today by Messrs. L. J. and W. L. Walton. It was ginned by Mr. P. V. Carbine, weighed 343 pounds, classed strict low middling and was sold to J. H. Rucker, exporter, for 13 cents. This is twelve days in advance of the Morgan's cotton crop will be the best in years. Madison is making great preparation s for handling the crop, and our receipts for the coming season will reach at least 30,000 bales.

PREPARATIONS FOR A BIG SHOW

The Floats Which Have Been Pron News of General Interest—Gossip and Personals.

Macon, Ga., August 16.-[Special.]-Maon's great trades' display continues to boom. Many new features connected with it turned up today that are highly interesting. In the first place, one man proposes to spend $1,000 in floats. That man is President Tom Troy, of the Macon

One of the city's leading tailors will also have an elegant float. He is Mr. M. Greenburg. He proposes having an elaborate float decorated with his finest fabrics. On fancifully decorated tables will be seated his force of tailors, elegantly dressed, but engaged in making other clothes.

Another float will be that of Mr. Joe Davenport, the well-known and enterprising perfume and table extractmanufacturer. He says he will have one that will not be surpassed, and he means what he says.

Mr. J. Van, the famous trunk manufacturer, has received his ugly woman for which he offered $2,000. Mr. Van signed a contract with her yesterday and put up a forfeit of $100. He says her face will break day, and he wants the people of Georgia to see her.

M'CULLOUGH GOES FREE. The Condusion of the Murder Trial at

GRIFFIN, Ga., August 16 .- [Special.]-The ury in the McCullough case returned a verict of not guilty today at 12 o'clock, after fourteen hours and ten minutes deliberation. The verdict was received by the vast crowd without any outward demonstration whatever, but so soon as McCullough reached the ground he received an ovation at the hands of his friends. He was literally transported on the shoulders of several men from the courthouse gate to Hill street. It may be said, I think truly, that the verdict was generally approved, though every-body regretted the deed which caused the necessity for any verdict. For Jack Powell, like other men, had his faults, and likewise his virtues. One of these was his true devotion to friendship, his noted generosity to charitable objects. No man in Griffin would go deeper in his pocket to relieve a distressed or stranded wayfarer than would Jack Powell. The man who goes free today for taking Powell's life was known only to a small circle of friends, owing to his quiet disposition and retiring manners, although he was born and aised in the city. He regrets the killing as much as any one can, but thinks he was forced do so to protect his own life. As to whether he was or not is not for me to say. BURGLARS IN SKIRTS.

They Are Men, and Take This Way of Concealing Themselves. SAVANNAH, Ga., August 16.—[Special.]—The west side of the city has a sensation over the doings of two mysterious burglars, who go about dressed as women. They have had success this week, and a watch is being kept for them. At 2:30 o'clock this morning Mrs. Alonzo Merchant, who keeps a boarding house at 11 Orange street, heard some one try her door and then the windows. She suspected that burglars were trying to get in, and she slipped quietly to a window and saw two figures on the outside. Then she went to a door and opened it noiselessly. The burglars were several feet away and were talking in low tones. Mrs. Merchant was surprised to see that they had on dresses and ong hair, which fell down to their shoulders.

She thought it all very strange and opened the door a little wider to get a better look. The door made a noise and the pair started off in a hurry. One of them caught his foot in his skirt and stumbled and as he picked up the bottom of the skirt to get it out of the way of his feet, Mrs. Merchant saw trousers underneath. Each man wore a wig, which accounted for the long hair. The men ran down a New Count.

Colorabus, Ga., August 16.—[Special.]—It is not yet settled as to whether Columbus will secure a new count. Special Agent Ray has returned to Washington, and Colonel James Atkins takes his place as a representative of the government. The original reports of the census enumerators have been received from Washington, and the lists are being carefully examined to ascertain the number of omissions. Thirty omissions were found in one district yesterday, and the examination of the lists for the district was not concluded. Hon Tom Chappell has been appointed to assist in the work.

Supervisor Bethune said last night that the result of the investigation might give Columbus a new count.

The Griffin Depot.

GRIFFIN, Ga., August 16.—[Special.]—The contract for building Griffin's new passenger depot has been awarded Messrs. Bennett & Westbrook, contractors of this city. Captain Westbrook informed The Constitution this afternoon that he had expected the lumber for the building to arrive today, but it had no come. So soon as it does work will begin and be pushed to completion. The structure will be handsome and adequate to Griffin's needs.

GEORGIANS IN BOSTON. The Atlanta Delegation at the G. A. Celebration.

Boston, August 15.—This Grand Army of the Republic encampment, is to Boston what the great Cleveland day at the Piedmont Exposition of 1887 was to Atlanta; and when it is remembered that "The Hub" is five times as large as the "Gate City," some idea is gathered of the hosts who are here. Into this living sea of humanity from everywhere, as a little rivulet, the Atlanta delegation came Monday afternoon at 5 o'clock. It is due this delegation to say that none of the excursions

Cincinnati, attracted much attention. He is a bright and discreet little fellow of thirteen years, and some man of means could not do better than to give him a collegiate education. Our excursion train carried thousands of streamers and circulars advertising the Piedmont Exposition and Georgia, and the liberal and judicious distribution which is being given them will result in bringing a great many northerners to see us this fall and winter.

These northern Georgians, I mean these northern-born people who have made Georgia their homes, are doing our state more good in the north, I verily believe, than any selection that can be made of twice their number of native Georgians. At every station where we stopped many of them would get off the cars, and to the crowds of people who would be attracted to our train, they would picture the many advantages of Georgia, and the nobility of our people among whom they have made their homes. Our state is to be congratulated upon the valuable acquisition to her citizenship she has in her north-born citizens.

At the head of the parade rode General Russell A. Alger, commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. Prominent among his the head of the parade rode General Russell A. Alger, commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. Prominent among his aides rode Major C. T. Watson, of Atlanta. The procession occupied five hours in passing a given point and it is estimated that there were 37,000 veterans in line. The Georgia delegation was a small one; only thirty Grand Army of the Repulic veterans are in the city from Georgia, and only about half appeared in the procession. Atlanta sent 17, Savannah 10, Macon 1, Augusta 1, and Tallapoosa 1. Charleston has two veterans here also, Alabama sends 60 and a load of fourteen pieces. Florida has a delegation of about fifty in line. Massachusetts has the largest delegation of about has a delegation of about fifty in line. Colonel A. E. Buck and Colonel C. M. D. Brown, of Atlanta, are conspicuous. The three banners borne by the Georgians attract much attention. One reads "Marching from Georgia, post 3 Savannah." The second, "The Picket Line, post 3 Savannah," and the third is the handsome banner of the Atlanta post which reads, "O. M. The grandest parade the Grand Army of the Republic has ever had was this one, and it is claimed that Boston has eclipsed other cities in the magnificence of the entertainment given. It is probable that more people were in Boston today than on any previous day of her history.

At least two hundred thousand visitors are here, and likely this is a low estimate. Of this number forty or forty-five thousand are veterans, and about thirty-seven thousand of them appeared in the parade.

PRELIMINARY HEARING OF THE

The Full Story of the Shooting Told for the First Time—The Causes Leading Up to the Tragedy.

Augusta, Ga., August 16. - [Special.] The charge under which Mr. S. H. Pattillo is now held for the killing of Charles H. Hudson, is now voluntary manslaughter, and Mr. Pattillo is at liberty under $3,000 bond, with Hon. Patrick Walsh

The preliminary hearing on the charge of nurder consumed all day. Judge Twigge and Foster & Lamar were counsel for the defense, and Edward Hunter and E. J. Hudson, both of Jefferson county, represented the prosecution.

Magistrates Davis and Picquett sat as the committing court. The case made out by the defense was a strong one. It showed that, while in the immediate encounter, Pattillo had been first fired upon, Ithat even in the course of his hostility to Hudson he had been actuated by an honorable and chivalric motive even though a misguided and legally unjustifiable one.

It was shown that Hudson had made call on the lady, who was Mr. Pattillo's divorced wife, after midnight, and she had been led to believe it was an improper visit and reflected on the character of the lady. The visit was explained honorably to all parties in the testimony today, but had not been so explained to Pattilio.

It was for this visit that he denounced Hudson as a d-d scoundrel. when he uttered the words Hudson shot him. He returned the fire and in the shooting Hudson was killed. This was established by eye-witnesses.

Chawford, Ga., August 12, 1890.—Editor Constitution: Please allow me to say that, if I said (as reported in yesterday's Constitution) that Mr. Olive's friends in the congressional convention would, if necessary to break a dead lock, go to Judge Lawson, it was said wihout authority from Mr. Olive or any of his friends, or without the slightest intimation of anything of the kind from him or his friends. I know nothing whatever about what Mr. Olive or his friends would do in such event. His delegates from Oglethorpe have not yet been appointed, and as to who shey will be I have no knowledge whatever.

In the conversation reported there was some speculation about a deadlock, a dark horse, etc. If I then said that Mr. Olive's friends would go to Judge Lawson I do not remember it and certainly did not intend to say so. There might have been some surmising and guessing as to what would be done if neither of the candidates went to the convention with a majority, and your reporter Dr. Gibson Writes a Card.

As to what they will do in the event that Mr. Olive cannot get the nomination I know nothing whatever. Yours truly, HARMONY GROVE, Ga., August 15.—[Special.]—Dr. L. G. Hardman, of Harmony Grove, returned home on Wednesday night after an extended absence in the north and also in Europe, where he has been perfecting himself in the noble science of medicine. The doctor left home about five months ago and went to New York city, where he took a post graduate course in medicine in the famous Polyclinic Medical College. After completing this course, the doctor saled for London, where he engaged in the study of his chosen profession in Gray's hospital. He crossed the channel to Paris, where he continued the study of his rofession under the most eminent specialists of that city.

It is being whispered around in political circles now that Hon. T. H. Niblack will oppose Hon. W. T. Bennett, the present able and efficient cierk of Jackson superior court, in the coming election. Hon. "Bill" Bennett has given universal satisfaction during his term in office and he numbers his triends by the brushest of the county.

BEAUTIFUL TRIBUTE

A Memorable Scene - Eloquent Words Spoken of One Much Beloved - Scenes and In-cidents at Chautauqua.

The "Recognition Day" of a Chautaugus assembly is the commencement day of that assembly; and so it may perhaps be termed the most interesting day of all the days, to the true Chautauquans who really find out and profit by the good things of Chautauqua. I mean those things that are found apart, at times and places remote from the regularly advertised exercises in the great auditorium where the more formal lectures and entertainments are enacted for the benefit of the moving masses that come and go and never realize anything of the enthusiasm or inspiration that comes from the depths of the little centers whence radiate the truer wider currents that encirel the purer, more earnest, more sincere work and workers at Chautauqua.

It was a company of such workers engaged in such work that attended the reception tendered to Dr. A.H. Gillett at the close of Chautaugus. tauqua Day by the Gillett Chautauqua League, invitation was broad and general, extended to all interested in Chantauqua Literary and Scientific Circle work. There is no exclusive-ness at Chautauqua, no effort to shut one's self up within the narrow circle of caste; yet while this invitation was general, it would be difficult to find a more select party of more cultured people than the one which assembled promptly to greet the worthy and uch-loved superintendent of the Piedmont Chautaugua.

To present the names of the distinguished guests who graced the evening would not be in keeping with Chautauqua life, but they were guests worthy the occasion, and some of the best and proudest that Georgia could boast. And the hall was full to overflowing of a very merry, cheerful company.

The walls of the hall were lined with branches of oak leaves, which leaf is the emblem and badge of Chautauqua work and workers.

The posts through the center of Peabody hall were garlanded with the same oak boughs and around each was constructed a temporary chandelier. The picture of the lamented chandelier. The picture of the lamented Grady hung over the speaker's desk at the end of the hall, and was surrounded by the same bright green. Yes, Grady was there, there in spirit, we think, there in pictured power. The social day, as well as the work day or the memorial day at Chau-tauqua, would not be complete without a thought of Grady.

Among all these green boughs there glimmered many lights which had been softened and mellowed by beautiful Chinese lanterns. which lent to the scene a picturesque glow.

At 7:15 o'clock p. m., according to a previous promise to the committee of arrangements, Professor Leopoldt came with the Weber band and martial music to pay their tribute in a serenade to their honored chief. Then Mr. W. A. Hemphill stepped to the centre of the hall and after asking every one to get a glass of lemonade from the abundant supply placed upon the many small tables that nestled about the room under the oak bowers, he offered a toast to health, happiness, long life and great usefulness of the wise and able

Rising to their feet with uncovered heads the company of Chautauquans present drank this toast, while gratitude welled up their hearts—toast, while gratitude welled up their heartsgratitude for the blessings of Chautauqua; gratitude for the efficiency of the superintendent at Piedmont; gratitude for the liberality of the men who grant this blessings to Georgia and her sister states.

The response to this toast was given by Dr.
W. S. Currell in his own inimitable style, which was applauded to the echo, and then the band struck the key-note of the evening.
Never did "God Be With You" sound sweeter or more appropriate than when played by this fine reed band, with the accompaniment of human voices, that but echoed its pure notes and sweet words from the depths pure notes and sweet words from the depths of sincere souls.

This service closed the hour set apart for the reception of Dr. Gillett, but it did not close the day nor the social life of the day, nor yet the pleasure of the work of the Gillett Chautauqua League.

There are so many good things at Chautau-qua, and all are so harmoniously arranged that even an evening of social pleasure or a formal reception can be broken into and sandwiched with a lecture without a discord or the loss of a moment of enjoyment. When the hymn, "God Be With You" was when the hymn, "God Be with You" was finished the entire company repaired in a body to the great tabernacle and listened with earnest attention to the lecture by the able Egyptologist, Dr. Dickerman, who was then the center of attraction at Chau-

After the lecture, however, the company of Chautauquans, with others who had been getting supper from 7 to 8 o'clock, p. m., returned to Peabody hall and the grove around it to witness the Chautauqua camp fire which it to witness the Chautauqua camp fire which had been promised.

The beauty and weirdness of the scene around this camp fire I cannot describe. An effort would only prove a failure, but some things I may attempt to tell.

The organ in the hall was moved to the door, and genuine Chautauqua songs were sung with genuine Chautauqua spirit. The last song selected was Mr. Grady's favorite, "Arise and Shine," and this, too, was sung by voices that echoed an added trill, because the hearts that sung held an added thill when they remembered Henry Grady and felt how true it is he yet lives in Chautauqua.

Grady and felt how true it is he yet lives in Chautauqua.

At the close of this song, Dr. Gillett, from the steps of Peabody hall, spoke to the waiting multitude on the outside; spoke of Grady; spoke there, at that time and in that place, because he felt that it was to this company of real. Chautauquans that he wished to speak of his friend, and not to all the people who would come only on Grady Day.

Of that short speech we will not write. Some things are too sacred to reproduce, even if one could do so. Those who heard it will not forget.

Some things are too sacred to reproduce, even if one could do so. Those who heard it will not forget.

After this heartfelt tribute to the memory of Henry W. Grady by his friend A. H. Gillett, there was yet in store great good for the Chautauquans on Chautauqua Day.

It was a fitting close for Chautauqua day—that tender prose poem by John Temple Graves, addressed to Mrs. A. H. Gillett. It was impromptu, as are all the best things of our eloquent young Georgian, but it was just what was needed to complete a perfect day. He presented a simple gift—an offering of fruit and flowerslonly—but in the presentation he paid such a glowing tribute to the worthy help-meet of a noble Chautauqua leader, as only John Temple Graves can pay, and only the wife of such a man can deserve.

I have thus written the full account of one evening of social life at Chautauqua, but let no reader of The Constitutions think for one moment that this is the only social day of the assembly. Every day has its social features. Every day is a reception day to those who some here and stay, and throw themselves into the life and spirit of Chautauqua in its broadest truest sense.

Chautauqua will be a success only when it

Chautauqua will be a success only when it has a great number of cottages and a large resident population of regular attendance.

YESTERDAY AT CHAUTAUQUA.

Mrs. Felton's Address-Professor Vincent's

Closing Lecture.

It has been a good day. That is what every one said at Chautauqua last night. The crowd was not large, but it was interested and enthusiastic. At 11 o'clock a. m. Mr. Vincent concluded his work by the delivery, without notes, of a lecture on "Ruskin," which in point of finish,ease of delivery and brilliancy of coloring was easily the best of the series.

largest audience of the day and night, and well did she improve the opportunity to speak for a great cause. The one thing which impresses every one when this lady arises to speak, is the loftiness and sincerity of her spirit. She is in carnest and every one knows and feels it. The address was an cartest appeal to all who listened to join in the effort to rid the land of the curse of intoxication. The language was beautiful, and the style finished. There were flashes of genuine wit, and bits of sarcasm with the edge of a Damascus blade, though softened by a voice tremulous with a deep and loving interest in the truth. There were frequent and spontaneous demenstrations of approval, which indicated the hold the speaker had upon his audience.

At the close there were many earnest requests that the address might be put in permanent form for careful reading.

At the close of Mrs. Felton's address, Miss M. H. Stokes, the secretary of the state Women's Christian Temperance Union, read an interesting paper on the origin and work of the association. It is proposed to arrange for a headquarters on the grounds and a training school for Women's Christian Temperance Union workers before another assembly shall be held.

The following are some of the lectures for this week:
Professor J. G. Camp, one of Georgia's brightest young men; Dr. W. C. Davidson, D. D., of Cleveland, Ohio, who needs no introduction to the people who have visited Chautauqua; James A. Green, of Cincinnati, who is pleasantly reinembered. Mr. Grady paid him the highest compliment of any illustrious lecturer who visited the Piedmend Chautauqua in 1888. Hon. John Temple Graves needs no introduction to the people of Georgia or the south.
His speech on the Grady Memorial Day will be the crowning effort of his life. Mr. Marcus P. Hatfield, of Chicago, Ill., is a very fine lecturer indeed.

There will be several concerts, at least one or There will be several concerts, at least one or two concerts by the Weber band and orchestra, assisted by the assembly chorus class and soloists every day this week.

The Grady Memorial Day will be the day of all days of the Chautauqua. Atlanta should turn out en masse on that day. The best programme that was ever provided for at Chautauqua is on Grady Memorial Day. Arrangements have been made to run special excursion trains from Carrollton, and reduced rates over the Columbus, Rome and Carrollton railroad.

The Crisp and Butterworth Debate. It is probable that the great debate between Hon. Charles F. Crisp, congressman from Georgia, and Hon. Benjamin F. Butterworth, congressman from Ohio, will take place at Chautaqua the latter part of this or the first of next week. The management is trying to get both of the above gentlemen to speak on the same day. No one can afford to miss hearing these two eminent states-men, representing the two political parties of America, in their masterly effort to sustain the political party that they respectfully represent.

As to the Railroad.

As to the Rallroad.

The management has been in a consultation with the authorities of the Georgia Pacific railway and the Chautauqua Company is authorized by the management of the railroad company, to assure the public that there will be no more delays, or a repetition of last Wednesday night's occurrence. Cars have been provided and trains engaged to give every passenger a seat; it makes no difference if the crowd amounts to six thousand or more persons that day. They say they will redeem the unfortunate accident as far as possible, that occurred on last Wednesday night. The trains shall be on time and ample accommodations provided from now until the close commodations provided from now until the close of the Chautauqua, if there are men and trains enough in the Richmond and Danville service to do the work. enough in the Richmond and Danville service to do the work. Wiseman did this at the instigation of the woman, whom Hawkes, in his capacity as an officer, threatened to arrest for not paying a fine the mayor's court had assessed against her. His bondsman surrendered him, and his trial for the killing of Hawkes took place in Belton last week. Although every witness Wiseman presented was impeached, yet, to the surprise and indignation of all the county, the prisoner was declared not guilty.

FERLING AGAINST WISEMAN was very high in Temple, and many of the best citizens here considered that if Wiseman returned, there would be more bloodshed. Such was the feeling that it was talked openly that if Wiseman put in an appearance he would

STONE DEAD.

Wiseman's body was leaning forward across the woman's lap, with charges of buckshot in the shoulder, breast and face. The woman's corpse embraced the body of her paramour, and her powder-burned face was rendered more ghastly still by the horrible appearance of the top of her head, which was literally torn in two. The skull, all but a little place, was raised off the brain. The bodies were brought into town and an inquest held. Nothing could be learned as to who did the shooting. Temple breathes easier now that two of the most dangerous characters in the country have been removed. The people took justice into their own hands, and Bob Hawkes and a long line of Wiseman's victims are avenged.

THE ROAD FROM TIFTON TO THOM

The Contractor at Tifton Now-Celebrating the First Through Train on the Knox-ville Southern.

Tifton to Thomasville!

The trade is made. The road will be built.
Work will begin in earnest Monday morning.
The road has been talked of for months, and its construction has been for some time an assured fact. The people of Thomasville and that territory wanted it, and they were bound to have it, even if the Georgia Southern and Florida hadn't taken hold of it.

But there is no longer any doubt about it. The contractor is in Tifton now with a com-plete equipment and a large force of hands. "My contract," said he, "calls for the com-pletion of the road inside of eight months. I think we can do it in less time than that. "We start to work bright and early Monday morning, and will push the building just as rapidly as possible."

Atlanta to Port Royal.

This letter, from a well-known railroad man, explains itself:
EDITOR CONSTITUTION: Some months ago mention was made in The Constitution of the advisability of Atlanta building an independent air line to Port Royal.

At that time, the building of the Kansas City, Chattanooga and Port Royal road, which has been chartered by Augusta parties and others, was being agitated, the building of which would affect Atlanta no little, and leave us out of the route by 251 miles, as it takes an air-line course from Augusta to Chattanooga, and thence to Kansas City, the estimated mileage of which is 916 miles, as against 1,167 miles over roads now in operation.

against 1,167 miles over roads now in operation.
It would be fifty miles shorter from Chattanooga to Augusta via Atlanta.
The route suggested for the Atlanta and Port Royal air-line was as follows:
Atlanta to Eatonton-60, (via Lithonia railroad).
Eatonton to Sparta-25, (via Middle Georgia and Atlantic).
Sparta and Gibson-20.
Gibson and Waynesboro-35.
Waynesboro and Port Royal-80.
A total of 228 miles, crossing the Georgia road at Sparta, making the distance to Augusta fifteen miles shorter, crossing the Augusta, Gibson and Sandersville road at Gibson, making the distance to Augusta, also 156 miles, then cross the Central at Waynesboro, on to Port Royal, 228 miles.
The present milage to Port Royal, via Augusta, from Atlanta is 285 miles; a longer route by fifty-five miles.
Colonel E. C. Machen, who like the Pinkertons.

from Atlanta is 285 miles; a longer route by fifty-five miles.

Colonel E. C. Machen, who like the Pinkertons, "never sleeps," evidently foresaw the great advantage in the construction of a road by this route, for he seized the opportunity and hegan building the Middle Geergia and Atlantic road, which is traversing almost the identical territory, but destined to terminate at Savannah, diverting at some point on the new route to Port Royal.

The Middle Georgia and Atlantic road in and out of Covington, north and south, and it is said will tap a point on the Marietta and North Georgia road, passing north of Atlanta.

By the building of the Atlanta and Lathonia railroad to Lithonia, thence to tap the Middle Georgia and Atlantic at Machen, and the completion of the latter from Sparta to Port Royal, it would give Atlanta a new and independent line to the sea.

would give Atlanta a new and independent line to the sea.

Port Royal is the best port on the Atlantic coast, not excepting New York, and the construction of these lines would not only pay handsomely to its projectors and make At-lanta one of the largest commercial cities in this country within a few years, but would place her in a position to meet competition from all quar-ters.

There are steamship lines already plying between Port Royal, New Vork and other cities, which, in connection with foreign vessels, would give the new line a splendid footing for ocean traffic.

A Believer in Port Royal.

A Pleasant Send-Off. THOMASVILLE, Ga., August 16.-[Special.]-The Railway will present their brother engineer, Mr L. S. Morris, with a handsome and costly silvet tea-set, the occasion being the parting of Mr. Morris with his old comrades, as he has resigned his position here to go into the brick business near Brunswick. Mr. Morris is one of the most PARAGRAPHIC PENCILINGS. "Malthus On Population" was a book that in its day produced a wide sensation. It is now rarely heard of and never read, except by a class of students who search after "forgotten lore." Of course the basis of his theory sound. There is a connection neither fanciful nor remote between food supply and increase of population. The potato rot has greatly lessened the population of Ireland and similar mishaps producing destructive famines have depleted the vast empires of India and China. The same cause has helped to make the immense continent of Africa, throughou much of its extent, a trackless region. Under favorable conditions, the reproduc-tive capacity of the negro is marvelous. The writer has known one polygamous negro, not exceptionally vigorous, who eight children. There are well attested in stances in which negroes have given birth! to thirty children. This fecundity is well-nigh equaled, however, by the Canadian French. We have seen it stated that in the province of Quebec there are one thousand famlilies in which there are twelve living children. These results are largely due to early marriages—say in care of the mother from fourteen to sixteen years of age. On the other hand, in portions of New England the aboriginal Plymouth stock is ac-England the aboriginal Plymouth stock is ac cording to the census enumeration barely holding its own. Late marriages, frequency of divorces and frequency of feticide will in part account for this onemaly. These vices, for so they may be character ized, are some of the evil fruits of the higher civilization. It is perhaps well that the races that become debased by luxury and idleness, should perish with the Incas of Peru and the long-haired Lombard kings of France.

One of the most remarkable men of my acquaintance was Colonel Tennent Lomax, who resided in Columbus, Ga., in the fifties. In his physique he was quite like Dr. Hawthorne, of this city, except that he was of stouter build. Colonel Lomax succeeded John Forsyth as editor of The Columbus Times. During his connection with the John Forsyth as editor of The Columbus Times. During his connection with that paper he displayed a journalistic ability of a very high order. Not a great while before the war he removed to Montgomery, Ala., and went to the front with one of the first Alabama regiments. His war record was exceptionally good. He was conspicuous both for his gallantry and his ability as [a disciplinarian. As we now remember, he fell at the head of his regiment in the thickest of the fight at Seven Pines. But for this untimely taking off, Colonel Lomax would have reached the highest political distinction. His social qual

When Franklin, in flying his kite over Boston common in the face of an electrical cloud, felt a tingling sensation in the hand that grayped the cord, he did not dream of the latent possibilities of that simple discovery. Nor when Galvani, in his lab oratory at Bologna, touched with his wire the muscles of a half-dissected frog, and the dead batrachica jumped like a thing of life, he did not forecast the wonders of modern science. Electricity in its manifold uses and adaptations is the antitype of the Proteus of classic mythology. It propels our street cars, works our telegraphs and telephones, lights our churches and bed chambers and electricizes our Kemmlers and other great criminals. Only as an electricide has it failed to mee public expectation. We have yet to learn what precise voltage is necessary to extinguish the vital spark without such disgusting scenes as were witnessed in the Auburn prison. Dr. John E. Edwards, of Lynchburg, Va., has been in the Methodist ministry for nearly sixty years. In a late number of the Christian Advocate he discourses at length on "Hobby-Horse Riding in the Pulpit." His admonitions are aimed chiefly at a class of young di-vines who substitute lectures on moral reform for the preaching of the gospel. He speaks from personal recollection of one not deficient in "gifts and graces" of a kind who harped perpetually on the evils of dress and the perils of personal adornment. Says the venerable Dr. E.: He never preached a sermon anywhere, no matter what the occasion, that he did not have something to say in reprobation of fine clothes, and even of ordinarily genteel and fashionable attire. A little breastpin, or a simple gold ring, worn by a lady, especially if she was a church member, fired him to a species of pious exasperation, and, driving the rowels into the flanks of his obby-horse, and wielding the lash with merciless vigor, he rode rough-shod over his defenseless victim. A silk velvet vest, after the old style, or a silk cravat, or even a gold watch key, worn by a young preacher or other church member, exposed the wearer to the hoofs of the hobby. His own attire was scant, and exceedingly cheap and plain. What became of him? He went to Africa as a missionary, where the people to whom he ministered wore no clothes. His special vocation, as he seemed to regard it, was at an end. He came back crest-fallen. His hobby had thrown him and left him afoot. He sank out f sight, and died without having achieved anything worthy of the name. is a fresh rendering of the Shakespearian phrase, "Othello's occupation's gone."

Smollett is credited with the phrase, "The Chapters of Accidents." There is a philosophy in it unless we are prepared to accept the mos rigid predestinarianism. It is sometimes a necessity "to trust to luck," however unseemly the practice may appear. The axiomata in morals and mathematics are few in number and limited in scope. Perhaps it is Herbert Spencer who says that the proposition that two and two makes four may not be true in all worlds. At any rate there are occasions when we are so blind that the highest wisdom consists in shutting our eyes and dashing forward every muscle as a Malay would race a-muck. A special providence seems to care for children, and fools are proverbially lucky. A sacred writer tells us that "it is not in man that walkath to direct his steps." Another has pointed us to "the ravens that neither sow nor reap," That after all there may be a profounder philosophy than we supposed, in sometimes trusting "to the chapter of accidents."

In the last number of The Forum, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, animadverts on what she styles, "The Decollete of Modern Life." The custom, whether for better or worse, is by no means a novelty, but as old as the Garden of Eden. Mrs. Phelps is right in opposing the style, but she is herdly warranted in saying that it has poisoned literature and corrupted our politics. This is one of those sweeping generalizations that seriously disfigure the logic of her sex.

It would require very sharp eyes to see any connection between nude statuary and the abominable force bill. Nor can we readily perceive what relation exists between the lownecked and short-skirted dresses of our highbred matrons and maidens and the worst feature of the McKinley bill. If Mrs. Phelps intended to be sensational she has succeeded admirably. After all, that is about the sum and ubstance of her Forum article.

That genial gentleman and sweet poet, Charlie Hubner, is off on a month's visit to Whittier, the Quaker poet. The latter is an old-time abolitionist, with the sting extracted; the former a red-het secessionist, trying, as Bill Arp says, to be reconstructed. There will be ambrosial nights when the two shall sit under the light of the harvest moon and talk about Goethe's Faust and Schiller's Wallen-

stories Believed by Fresh People Up

From The St. Louis Republic. It is a curious fact, but nevertheless a that any sort of a story told about the people of the southern states will be believed out hesitation by people anywhere north of the Ohio river. The story told of even barbarous Ohioriver. The story told of even barbarous or half-civilized people in any other part of the globe would be doubted, but let it be told of our southern people and it is accepted as gospel truth. A day or two ago the Man About Town was coming down Lafayette avenue on a cable car, when a young man, apparently about 29 years old and quite intelligent-looking, boarded the car, and in a little while another young man about the same age also got on, and the two greeted each other very cordially, evidently being intimate friends. The last arrival, as appeared from their conversation, had just returned from musical company or band on a sort of pleasure excursion, the exact nature of which was not explained, but it seemed it was a social visit, in which the St. Louis band was the guest of a similar Memphis company.

explained, but it seemed it was a social visit, in which the St. Louis band was the guest of a similar Memphis company.

"What sort of a time did you have in Memphis?" asked the one.

"Fine; just the biggest time you ever saw," replied the second comer. "I tell you what, Charlie, the people down there just beat the world. On Sunday you can't get anything at all; everything isshut up; you can't even get shaved, and you can't go, anywhere except to church. Everybody has to go to church. But killing people—oh my! We reached there on Friday. They killed a man that day; killed one on Saturday; on Sunday they couldn't kill any because they had to go to church; on Monday they killed one and on Tuesday up to 2 o'clock they killed two. We left at 2 and I don't know how many they killed after that."

"Naw; white men—election times, you know.

"They were negroes, I suppose, who were killed?"

"Naw; white men—election times, you know. They just shoot 'em right down for the fun of it. But I tell you, Charlië, they treated us splendidly. They turned out in big crowds to see us. We were not allowed to pay for anything at all. If we would go into a saloon to get something, when we offered to pay some-body would just step up and say: "That's all paid for.' Same thing on the street cars and everywhere we went. We were our uniforms and they knew we were the St. Louis band. The people there had never seen anything like us before, and it seemed like they could not do too much for us. But I tell you they kill folks lively."

And Charlie believed every word of it.

TALKS WITH SOUTHERN MEMBERS ABOUT AFRICA

Bishop Turner's Interview Discussed at Some Length—A Variety of Opinions on the Question. WASHINGTON, August 16 .- [Special.]-The interview with Bishop Turner printed in THE CONSTITUTION some time ago, in which he speaks out in favor of a federal appropriation to transport all the negroes who will go, to Africa, and in which he says great masses of them will take advantage of the opportunity, has created some talk among the southern Of course the force bill has been the main topic with them for a long time, yet they have discussed other matters, and Bishop Turner's alscussed other matters, and Bishop Turner's plan of deportation is among them.

The four southern states in which the negroes perhaps number most in proportion to population are South Carolina, Mississippi, Arkansas and Alabama. Thus the views of the senators from each of these states on Bishop Turner's idea will be interesting.

Here is what they say:

the senators from each of these states on Bishop Turner's idea will be interesting.

Here is what they say:
Senator Wade Hampton, of South Carolina—I have read with great interest Bishop Turner's interview on the proposed emigration of the blacks in this country to Africa, and in the main I concur fully with the views he has expressed. No one is better qualified to speak with authority on this subject than himself, for besides being one of the ablest men of his race in America, he has proved his devotion to the interests of his people, and his words should have great weight with them. I have been and am an earnest advocate of the policy he advises, and I shall willingly contribute all in my power to bring it to a successful issue, believing, as I do, that the best interests, the welfare of both the white and the black race, would be promoted by providing a home for the latter in the native land of their forefathers. We owe a great debt to the negro. fathers. We owe a great debt to the negro, and I for one am anxious that our government should repay it, in part at least, by aiding him to form a state and to build up a nationality, where he can work out his own destiny free from the drawbacks which surround him in this country.

Senator Walthall, of Mississippi—I have read Senator Walthall, of Mississippi—I have read Bishop Turner's interview in The Atlanta Constitution upon which you ask my opinion. Several months ago, in discussing southern affairs in the senate, I had occasion to refer to race separation as one of the solutions of the negro problem which had been proposed and briefly expressed my views upon it.

The following extracts from my remarks will show you that I have but little faith in the success of any project for the deportation of colored citizens:

the successor any project for the deportation of colored citizens:

Race separation has been proposed, but if so gigantic a project were feasible the dominant party here would not favor it because it would imply a confession that the country must be freed from a great evil due to that party's action.

The most tangible form in which this proposition comes is to accomplish, in some mode not yet made to appear practicable, the con-centration of the body of the black race in some locality over which they may exercise political control.

Since the days of Mr. Jefferson the colonization of emancipated blacks has been discussed from time to time and experiments have been made and failed, though tried, when the undertaking was not a hundredth part as stupenduous as it would be now. The experiment of the American Colonization Society, who spent millions of morey and Society, who spent millions of money and made great exertions to foster their enterprise, has shown that no relief can come from any has shown that no relief can come from any plan of doportation.

The colony planted in Liberia in 1822, backed up by wealth and the intelligent efforts of philanthropists, with many local advantages and much aid from without, probably has in it now fewer negroes from America than moved into the Mississippi valley from states east of it during the year 1889. That experiment, it may be added, made under circumstances most favorable to its success, has proven, as all others have wherever tried, that the negro is hopelessly incapable of self-government, a fact sufficient of itself to deter those who would see him elevated from forcing him, even if they had the power, into a condition where, in time, he would relapse into barbarism.

If the effort to rid the old slave states of free negroes by colonization produced no ap-

If the effort to rid the old slave states of free negroes by colonization produced no appreciable effect when their number was inconsiderable, it seems idle to think of trying the experiment upon eight millions of negroes, all as free as we are. Where is the power to make such a scheme effective; where is the inducement to the negro to cut loose from the white man, whose taxes support the government he lives under and educate his children, and what temptation would take him, an agricultural temptation would take him, an agricultural laborer, from the richest lands in the world to quarter of the earth?

Senator Pugh, of Alabama—The presence of the negroes and their unavoidable association with the whites as citizens enjoying equal Senator Pugh, of Alabama—The presence of the negroes and their unavoidable association with the whites as citizens enjoying equal civil rights in our country and our state and federal governments cause all the evils and all the difficulties in finding a remedy. The separation of the races would end all the evils resulting from their being together as they are in this country. History teaches nothing practical or useful in qualifying us to solve our race problems, as the two races never lived together in any other country as they are associated in this country. I have never considered it possible to induce the negroes to leave this country and go to Africa, or anywhere out of the United States. The negroes would be very unwise to leave this country. They will never do so voluntarily. I am satisfied that the negroe race is not capable of self-government. Separate it from the white race and put the negroes to themselves to govern themselves, and the race would descend rapidly into anarchy and barbarism. Believing, as I do, that the races must dwell together in this country through coming time, I have become convinced from personal observation and experience that the negroe can reach the highest destiny for which nature qualified him from the example and influence of the white man. Wherever you see the negroes living together in large numbers, as you find them in ceveral southern states subjected to the vices, influence of ignorance, profanity, and vulgarity prevailing in nearly every negro family; you find them going down in the scale of humanity. There can be no improvement in that condition. Wherever you find negroes in small numbers and in the service and under the control or influence of the whites they are generally doing well—industrious, well dressed, and well behaved and good citizens. The only remedy I suggest for the alleviation of present race troubles is to break up in some way the large negro masses in the south and distribute them in white communities, where they will be in the minority, and there ca civil rights in our country and our state and

OUR NEW WAR SHIPS. They Will Embrace All the Best Featu of Modern Naval Construction.

The three sea-going battle-ships for which the present congress has made appropriations embody all the best features of the most recent war vessels of the same type in England cent war vessels of the same type in England and France.

They have the heaviest armor and the most powerful batteries that can be carried for their displacement of 8,500 tons. With a sea speed of fifteen knots they carry coal enough to steam about five thousand knots, their engines being triple expansion, capable under forced draught of developing 9,000 horse-power. They have four double-ended, main boilers, each one of which is in a separate water-tight compartment. The vessels 2,26 built on the bracket system, with a dyable buttom, sontaining many subdivisions, Every approved device for the safety of the vessel and the health and comfort of the crew will be found provided. The ships are 332 feet long, 69 feet beam and 9,000 tons displacement at a draught of twenty-four feet. The main battery is four thirteen-inch rifles, with an auxiliary battery of four eight-inch and four six-inch guns and a secondary battery of twenty five-pounder and six one-pounder rapid-fire guns and two gatlings. In addition, there will be a complete torpedo outfit of Hotchkiss or Hall torpedoes and an electric-lighting plant, with other electrical appliances. Each battle-ship will carry a complement of 420 men and thirty officers, and when in commission they will be fitted as flagships and will probably be stationed on our own coast, both in the Pacific and Atlantic.

It is very problematical at present as to who will build them, as they are the largest vessels thus far proposed, and it is doubtful if more than one, or at most, two private firms have the plants equal to so great an undertaking.

GRAPE CULTURE IN GEORGIA.

The Piedmont Section Favorable to It-

Other News. Other News.

Mr. AIRY, Ga., August 12.—[Special.]—
There is a section of Georgia lying on both sides of the Air-Line railroad, in the county of Habersham, extending from near Currohee mountain to Lula, and known as the Chatta hoochee ridge.

This section of Georgia is a high table land, not more than half a mile wide, and constitutes a shed dividing the streams that flow into the Atlantic and the Gulf.

This crest of land has an altitude, from the top of Currohee to Lula, of from 2,500 to 1,500 feet above sea level.

The Air-Line railroad runs along the apex of this ridge, arriving at its highest elevation at Mount Airy. The point thus gained is the highest elevation that has been obtained in Georgia and the highest on the line between New Orleans and New York. This ridge proper is only about sixteen miles long, near the center of which is Mount Airy. Its soil has long agen considered of little value in an agricultural point of view. But in the last few years there has been developed and there is being developed an agricultural enterprise that promises to cover the hills with beauty and the people with plenteousness. It is the grape—the fruit of the vine. A few years since a small number of Swiss people, of humble-station and very limited means, commenced the cultivation of the grape near Mount Airy. For two years their efforts were made sport of, but behold, the vines commenced to bear and were laden with luscions fruit. The eves of the natives were opened and vineyards are being planted on the hillsides near Mount Airy. It has now been five years since the first of these small vineyards have commenced to bear fruit. There has never been a failure and the grapes seem to be subject to no disease incient to other localities.

With most inferior cultivation and no fertilization the product of the vine is enormous, yielding from three to four tons of grapes per acre and from six hundred to eight hundred gallons of most excellent wine.

The soil of the Chattahoochee ridge seems to be especially adapted for the vine. The eleva-tion is such and the atmosphere so pure that

blight, rot and mildew seem to be unknown.

The grapes have a flavor peenliar to themselves, that can only be expressed in the word delicious. They can be converted into the very best wine without the use of any sugar, and when properly made can hardly be called an intoxicating beverage.

This is no picture of fancy, but one of reality. The grapes in the vineyards around Mt. Airgure in full bearing, and fully ripe from the 10th to the 20th of August.

It is worth a long journey to see the beautiful clusters clinging to the vines. A gentleman counted upon a vine in the small vineyard of Mr. Davis Smith, a vine only three years old, fifty-four large clusters of Concord grapes. It can only be a short time in the future when the value of the land on the apex of the Chattahoochee ridge will be well known and vineyards will cover the hills upon which will reside a prosperous population, breathing the pure air that encircles this section of Georgia.

Grape and wine producing countries have ever been noted for the temperance and intelligence of their inhabitants, and this we fully believe will soon be the condition of this favored section of the Piedmont region.

The audience became excited.

Next the bus—dress improver came off. It had no longer any dress to improve, and its occupation was gone.

The audience began to speculate as to where the disrobing process would end, and a pistol shot or a dog fight would not have served at that moment to distract its attention.

By this time the lady on the wire had got down apparently to the snowy garment which, as adapted to the male form, is known as a shirt.

The audience craned its neck, so to speak, and as the lady showed an intention of removing even that garment, strong men held their breath in dis-may, wender and curiosity, while the weak and modest ones covered their faces with their hands. Well, the what d'ye call it came off, and nothing more shocking was revealed than a hand-some and very shapely young woman clad in the regulation tights and trunks that all well-regu-lated slack wire and trapeze artists are wont to

From The Illustrated American.

Had London society in the latter part of the 70's been told that some fifteen years later it would be clamoring at the doors of Westminster Abbey to gain admittance to "Dolly" Tennant's wedding it would have laughed the prophet to scorn. Who was there in New York twenty years ago that would not have jeered at the idea that Henry M. Stanley, The Herald reporter, plighting his troth in front of a reredos, on the other side of which stood the throne in which all the sovereigns of England had been crowned since the time of Edward I, and lay the stone of Scone, which, tradition says, was the pillow on which Jacob slept at Hethel? But truth is stranger than fletion, and no wedding, not even a royal one, has created such universal interest in our days as that which took place on July 12th, in Edward the Confessor's abbey of St. Peter's. How the hero of "Darkest Africa" was taken sick on the eve of his marriage, probably the result of being over-lionized; how he sat through the ceremony in the abbey; how all the world and his wife, including our own Chauncey M. Depew, saw one of the most famous of America's adopted sons joined to one of England's most charming daughters, has already been told in the daily press. How many women, refused the explorer before Miss Tennant accepted him has been discassed, but never decided. On the anthority of Hubert Herkomer, the artist, to whom Stanley confided the secret, we are able to settle the question. The number was eight. Who they were is, of course, confidential. But any one who knows people worth knowing in London of today recognizes the fact that Henry M. Stanley had never struck a better streak of luck.

"Annie Rooney" and the Salvation Army.

"Annie Booney" and the Salvation Army.
From The Washington Post.
The Salvation Army has adopted the tune of "Little Annie Rooney" to the work of salvation of sinners. The familiar words of "She's my sweetheart, I'm her beau; she's my Anais, I'm her Joe," have been translated for the purposes of the army to read;

"He's my Jesus, He's my Lord;" He's my Savior, He's my God."

Some people may have an idea that this is a bla acrilegious, but the army believes in "anything p save sinners," and so "everything goes."

ATLANTA, GA., AUGUST 17, 1890.

The Dying Force Rill. When THE CONSTITUTION took occas about a month ago, to enter its emphatic protest against the passage of the force bill, and to make an earnest appeal to the business interests of the country to bring about its defeat, we did not think that the results that have been accomplished would be brought about as soon as they We have never believed that the sentiment of the country, if directed to the force bill, would approve of the iniquitous measure, and consequently, we proceeded, as best we could, to fasten the attention of the country on the horrible crime which the republican party was just in the act of perpetrating when public sentiment called a halt.

If we were emphatic in our position it was because emphasis was necessary.

If we were extreme it was because only an extreme protest could meet the most extreme measure that has been introduced in congress since the war.

If we were sectional, it was to meet and resist in a peaceful way the most monstrons piece of sectionalism that the republicans have undertaken since they were forced to abandon a similar measure during the days of reconstruction.

Stop and reflect a moment on the cor dition of that bill when THE CONSTITU-TION started the whole country to talking about it. It had passed the house, receiving every republican vote but one, under rules specially prepared for its pass age. It had gone to the senate, had been referred to a committee, and the friends of the bill openly announced that it would be rushed through the senate as easily as in the house. The president, having urged the house to pass it, was eager for the senate to do likewise, and stood ready to attach his signature to it. The country was apathetic, and before it knew it this horrible monster was coiling itself around the vitals of the government.

It was our object to call attention t the infamy of the bill, and to the purpose for which it was devised-that of stirring up strife and renewing dissension between the sections, and rekindling sectional prejudices resulting from a war fought a quarter of a century ago.

We were earnest in our effort and w had no desire to threaten the good men of the north. But if the bill had passed, especially in the objectionable shape in which it was rushed through the house, our people would have deserved all the oppression that it contemplated if they had not resisted it in every legitimate way. There is not the shadow of a doubt, whatever croakers may say to the contrary, that if the republicans had persisted in their determination to fix upon the south the horrors of bayonet rule. our people would have, organized home league clubs in every militia district in the south to have combated by peaceful resistance the unjust action of republican

Happily the response that came to our appeal was all that could be wished. The true object of the bill began to be apparent, and the conservative sentiment at the north made itself heard. Protests began to flow in from Maine to California. The business men of the north, democrats and republicans, sent petitions to the senate demanding the defeat of the measure, and the republican majority in the senate soon saw that to run counter to such an overwhelming opposition would be to give their party up to absolute and certain defeat.

We do not claim that the northern business men were afraid of the boycott, or that they were intimidated. Nor did we expect that they would be.

They acted conservatively and promptly in protesting against the measure, for they saw in the course being pursued by the republican leaders great injury to the business of the north and south. It was this protest that has resulted so successmisrepresented by his esteemed contempor fully and is likely to defeat the bill.

We are very much gratified at the re-

The republican senators who have listened to these appeals, and who have re fused to be driven by the lash of party leaders, are to be respected for their manhood, and to them we feel grateful.

We are grateful to the whole country for the earnestness of its pro test, and to the press-even to those who have conscientiously had so much to say in criticism of THE CONSTITUTION'S position-we likewise owe a debt of grat-Itude for having assisted us in riveting the attention of the country to the monstrons measure of Mr. Lodge and his conspira tors against the peace and prosperity of the country.

For some of our contemporaries in the south who calmly assumed that there was nothing to fear from the despotic features of the Lodge bill, and whose position was that of countenance to the measure, we have a feeling of pity and contempt. If, in future, they will allow genuine reason to govern their attitude on public questions, instead of taking any position opposite that of THE CONSTITU-TION, they will be more respected at

There is genuine pleasure in having excited the ire of the south-haters, led by The Chicago Inter-Ocean and The New York Mail and Express. The condemnation of such as these is the best evidence that we are right. When we hear them howling at our course, we know, to somewhat alter the familiar proverb of Sam Jones, that the right dog has been hit.

We congratulate the country that there is conservatism enough in it to defeat this kind of legislation. It is a hopeful

Now let the business men of the country and the conservative sentiment of the people direct its attention to other evils at Washington. Let them call a halt in general on one of the most extravagant administrations we have had since the organization of the government. The outraged people will cry out against it just as they have against the force bill. The day of settlement is at hand, and the action of the business sentiment of the country in the matter of the force bill should be a warning to the party that is using every means to cripple one section, and to rob, in every possible way, the other.

Chattanooga 29,000-Atlanta 67,000. The Roston Herald says that "during the pas ten years the city of Atlanta has increased her population 75 per cent. This is a giant stride that puts that city among the most populous cities of the south. There are a great many of the Grand Army boys who can remember Atlanta was in a shattered and battered condition. She has recuperated, however, and proably nobody is more glad to hear of her prosperity than the boys who pitched their camp in ner smoking ruins twenty-five years ago." At lanta had 37,409 in 1880. She added 11,000 by annexing new territory, and that makes her otal gain in the city as it stood in 1880, 17,056. Chattanooga gained 126 per cent, taking the bare guess of the census bureau to be true; and she gained about the same in number that Atlanta did. Add the 10,000 in the immediat suburbs, as Atlanta did, and our gain would be about 200 per cent, and numerically equal to

The above item we clip from The Chattanooga Times.

It seems that The Times is determined to disregard actual statements in its statements about the population of Atlanta by the census of 1880 and that of 1890, and to strain all the points in Chattanooga's favor in its attempts to make a good comparison of the growth of Chattanooga and Atlanta within the past ten

Some three Sundays ago we published figures which we obtained from Supervisor Thibadeau, by which it was shown that Atlanta, instead of adding 11,000 to her population by annexing new terri tory, added 980. Inasmuch as Supervisor Thibadeau's actual count is the basis for better authority than the wild guess of The Chattanooga Times we are willing to rest the case with the United States census officer's figures, and, therefore, assert that Atlanta's growth within the past ten years was more than 27,100 in the same territory which comprised the city's limits in 1880, not counting, refore, the less than one thousar people who were annexed by the new territory, and the United States supervisor shows that within the same period Chattanooga, in the same territory she had in 1880, gained 16,300 people.

In other words, Atlanta in 1880 led Chattanooga by about 24,600 people, and in 1890, counting only her old area, Atlanta leads Chattanooga by 35,400 people. Consequently, instead of Chattanooga gaining on Atlanta, Atlanta absolutely widened the gap between her figures and Chattanooga's by largely above 11,000 people. If The Chattanooga Times is satisfied with the figures we are.

We assure our esteemed contemporary that when the official figures are published they will show that within the past ten years, in which Chattanooga has been aspiring to catch up with Atlanta, she has been accomplishing the result somewhat after the fashion of the frog in the well who desired to get out and who would jump up four feet and fall back five. Nevertheless we congratulate Chattanooga on what she has done. We rejoice at the development.

After telling us that Editor Shepard is a good man, a charitable man, a most religious and God-fearing man, goes on to say that, notwithstanding the fact that the world counts him a fool, the noted editor is far from being of that much abused fraternity.

We learn from this writer that the very methods which subject him to the ridicule of his esteemed contemporaries have really made him famous and contributed to the success of his newspaper.

We are to infer from this writer that Editor Shepard believes in advertising, and well knows that his odd actions will set the world to talking. Hence, the ex-lawyer, exrailroad manager and present Sunday school superintendent, in the belief that the odd in journalism, as in literature, would make a man celebrated, took down his Bible from the upper shelf and compiled therefrom numerons texts with which to grace his daily editorials. Editor Shepard owes much to his historian for he has set him right before a world which has misjudged him. If the man has accomplished his task without the great editor's knowledge and through sheer good nature, he should straightway be given a good position on The Mail and Express and be further promoted to a scholarship in Deacon Shepard's Sunday school.

A Little Sermon. We are told that The Macon Telegraph remarked the other day that Atlanta was making a great deal of fuss over one little frost-bitten elephant. We did not observe this remark in the columns of our esteemed contemporary, but we accept It as in the nature of a compliment to the great town that THE CONSTITUTION is fortunate enough to represent.

The elephant, we may remark, is not as badly frost-bitten as she might be. She is alive and kicking, and will prove the center of attraction at Grant park, not only for the children but for the grown people, and for the thousands of visitors who come to Atlanta every month in the year.

As to the fuss that Atlanta made over the elephant, we may say that our citizens are all proud of it. It was a very successful fuss. It gave our business men an opportunity to turn their enterprise and their energy into holiday channels for the pleasure of the people. Of the fifteen thousand visitors who witnessed that remarkable pageant—to say nothing of the sixty thousand home people who lined the streets for more than three mileswe doubt if there is to be found one who will not say that the display was the most interesting and aftistic that has ever been seen in the south.

But what is the matter with Macon? Why cannot Macon have an elephant or two? Why cannot the city utilize some of the elephants she has already? There is nothing the matter with Macon. Its merchants are liberal, enterprising and sagacious, and they deserve to be repreented by a liberal, an enterprising and an industrious morning paper-a paper that will keep the city and its interests always before the public-a paper whose every movement and suggestion shall have an eye to the glory of the town.

There is nothing wholesome in the atnosphere of a soured newspaper. Flings, and gibes, and envious splutterings of ed-itorial ink add nothing to the greatness of a city. We know very well that these things do not represent the sentiment of Macon, and it is a pity that they should be put forth by a newspaper that should be devoting all its time and attention to building up its city and its state.

There is not an enterprise in Atlanta that THE CONSTITUTION cannot point to with unbounded satisfaction, and say: Behold the results that can be accomplished with the aid of a wholesome. good-humored newspaper! Such a newspaper gives wings to the public spirit of Tolstol and Wanamaker.

As might have been expected, Mr. Wanamaker's action in prohibiting The Kreutzer Sonata from the mails, has increased the sales of that book to an enornous extent. Up to the time of this prohibition very few people had read the book, but it needed only this advertisement to boom it into millions and make its publishers happy.

may have been, has gone too far in this matter. In the language of The New York Herald, "we cannot be too jealous of any interference with the mails;" there is a limit to even official authority, and if every suspicious sealed package is broken open by the postal authorities, as it appears was the case with this especial book, the liberties of the people will be affronted and infringed. But notwithstanding the fact that the prohibition in the case of Tolstoi's novel has had the effect of increasing its sales, this of itself will excite a popular verdict of disapproval against it. After the book is read, it will be condemned and consigned to oblivion. It cannot be otherwise, except with minds that feed upon such literature and have no moral tone.

In the meantime, Mr. Wanamaker's eformation in this connection comes late; for we believe it is in evidence that when the first circulars advertising the book-at a discount-appeared, he placed a large order with the publishers, which could not then he filled. He was doubtless as well aware of the nature of the work then as he was later, when he debarred it from the mails Strange inconsistency!

A House Divided Against Itself.

An editorial in The Chicago Herald conreys the impression that there is still great ouble in the windy city over a site for the world's fair. In fact, The Herald says that, in regard to this great enterprise, Chicago is "on the verge of disgrace," and that the people will soon lose their patience, and, perhaps, throw up the sponge. "We are threatened," says The Herald, "with worldwide shame; we are already covered with Things must certainly be in a complicated state. A railway corporation bars the way to a site for the fair on one side, and private and corporate interests raise a bar-rier on the other, and from the way the matter is progressing, it is evident that nobody wants to yield a foot of ground to give the fair a place. The Herald says:

ear. If the fair is to be held here the energies of way of preparation.

This is strange talk. New York lost the fair mainly because the politicians wanted to capture it, and because no united action could be had at the beginning. Chicago ook hold of it with a "vim," and promised to rush it through; but now we are told that a year will very likely pass before anything s done! The Herald says that the director assumed very lightly a serious responsibility and have viewed it from every point that narrow self-interest could suggest.

The situation seems to be this: As a city, Chicago does not want the fair; but, as in dividuals, the people want it-every man for himself-for the present profit, and not for the future glory that may be in it. They seem to be afraid to run the risk of making money out of it in the future; they want the money now.

If this state of affairs is allowed to coninue, the world's fair will prove a flasco, and America, and not Chicago, will be dis graced. It is evident that the good people of the breezy city cannot stand prosperity, and they don't know a good thing they see it. A great reformation is in order. And may it be speedy!

Atlanta as an Example.

Atlanta's example has a wholesome effect upon her sister cities and towns in the state. Comments on her pluck and enterprise are blown abroad through Georgia, and not through Georgia alone, for the cities of the vast industrial south take note of her, and find in her example the inspiration for higher and nobler achievement. In the language of trade: "We lead, where others follow."

In no spirit of vain boastfulness is this said. The promise of the time when, from the shadow of her war-dimmed hills and desolated streets, she rose with new, illimitable life to front a frowning future, has been more than fulfilled, and the fame and splendor of the new Atlanta, from that day to this, have been the wonder of the states.

There is no end to Atlanta's energyto her indomitable and wonderful spirit. She blows a blast upon a bugle, and the golden notes go ringing 'round the awakened and answering south, and ere the echoes die their cadences are caught and welcomed in the far hills of the north, and men hearken and respond to the call.

Let but Atlanta put her shoulder to the wheel, and there is a move, a rush in the industrial machinery which impels to great achievement and creates undreamed-of enterprises. Out of the smallest things she makes the mightiest; from seeming failure she evolves success; from little mounds she rears great monuments. which mark her path progressive.

Atlanta does not hold herself up as an example to the south; but her work has een appreciated and approved, and the south points to Atlanta as an example. And it is an inspiration to her people to know that the world takes note of them: that the press of Georgia and the south has planted Atlanta's standard high, and that from day to day and year to year words of encouragement and approval are wafted from near and far, while the enterprises of other towns take on new life in contemplating ours.

"Atlanta is united!" cry the people; "Atlanta is united!" speaks the press It is this spirit of union, say all, which as made Atlanta great: whi her an example to the cities and the love and pride of her citizens. Let but this union of hearts and hands be perpetuated, and Atlanta will rise to heights undreamed of in the bright and unimaginable future!

THE BOSTON HERALD says there should be no superfluous sympathy wasted on the man that murdered his wife by pushing her over : There is no limit to sentimental slobber. Thousands of people want murderers to go off on downy beds of ease, and there are plenty of folks all over the country who would e glad to turn the Georgia convict system into picnic with piano accompaniments.

WITH THE POLITICIANS.

A. J. Snelson, the Meriwether man who, hatever else he has done or failed to do, has neceeded in making his name a familiar one in Georgia, sat in the Markham one day last week and gave me in detail his claims to the sixth district senatorship. When he was here n the house he wore a rather pronounced big. checked suit of clothes, but now the quietest and most unostentatious black. He is a man of apparently forty years of ago, with a very full black beard, streaked with gray, and a pair of restless, peculiar eyes are his most distinguishing features. His voice is soft and gentle, and he is, indeed, as mild a man as ever cut short the political ambition of an opponent.

He had been in his room but a few minutes when I knocked. As I entered I found him seated in an easy chair, his shoeless, bestockened feet resting upon an other.

"Is it true that you are going to run as an independent against Terrell?' "Not as an independent," he answered quickly. "We already have one independent andidate. If I am nominated at Fairburn, I will make the race as the party nominee." He went on at some length to explain how that would be. He claimed that the Douglas county convention gave him the power to select the delegates to the senatorial convention from that county and that he appointed Dr. Whitley at his own request. "The appointing power has the right to revoke the ap-pointment," he says, "and finding that Dr. Whitley did not seem disposed to go my way I revoked his appointment.

So much for his authority to make that change. The credentials committee of the Fairburn convention seems to have disagreed with Mr. Snelson on that point and so, indeed, do many democrats from Douglas who claim that while Snelson did read out the names of Douglas county's delegates, the convention acted upon them and in reality named them; that being the case, they claim, Snelson had no power to make a change.

Then Mr. Snelson objects to the chairman of the convention which seated Dr. Whitley. "But wasn't that," I asked him, "a case of your own man falling into a trap by making a tion to adopt the minority report?' "I don't care about that," said the gentleman from Meriwether. the defeat of the minority report which favored Lang, carried with it the adoption of the majority report, which fav-ored Whitley. I don't believe there is any authority for that in the world. But our case hasn't yet been furnished the public. We are going to have it fully prepared and distribited, so everybody will know how we stood." "And you expect to be elected?"

"Yes, I do. You'll find that I am when the votes are counted.'

Hon. C. H. Brand, of Lawrenceville, came down Wednesday night from Gainesville, where he had taken a prominent part in the convention which selected Colonel Tom Winn as the standard-bearer of the ninth district

"You may set this down as a fact," said brilliant young lawyer, "that we are going to elect Tom Winn. He will start into the campaign under more favorable auspices than Allen Candler did in his first race, and he will make a stronger race against Pickett than Candler did. Pickett came to the Chattanoochee with 1,500 majority in the thirteen. counties above the river. Gwinnett, Jackson, Hall and Banks overcame that majority and elected Candler. Now you will see that Winn will get twice as many votes in four counties as Candler got, and that Pickett will not get nearly so many as he did in the other counties. It was a noticeable fact that in our convention today there vere a good many men who had supported

"What about Winn's strength as a man?"

"He is a strong man and an able one. He will, if elected, prove an efficient and useful member of congress, and he'll be elected." Hon. Carter Tate, of Pickens, who gracefully did not allow his name to be presented to the convention, but made it all harmonious, was discussing the situation in the District Attorney Darnell, the republican candidate, joined the party.

"You may tell them, Carter," he said, "like.

Emmett Womack's unfortunate coon hunter, I say, 'Hold the dogs; I'm a-comin'.'"
As he moved off Carter retorted, "You needn't think we'll do that. "We'll have been in Atlanta several days on busin "The alliance," said Colonel Felder yesterday, "is going to play an important part in politics in the northwest. the third every student of history knows. When a man stands before you who has a well-filled wine-cellar at home, and tries to prove that prohibition is a good thing for "the damned foreigners," but fails to observe it for himself, it is difficult to think of him in any other guise than that of a political prohibitionist. It has become so the custom to drink in private and deny it in public, that the people who do so are really excusable—the custom has grown the problem.

would not believe existed, though his tongue might detect in them remarkable similarity to all the three and four "X's" in the country.

It is in her carpetbag erop, however, that Maine excels. When the southern states lay bleeding in defeat, the prostrate forms were pounced down upon by a grand army of carpetbaggers. They were of different varieties and degrees. The New York carpetbagger had evidence of having had something to eat at home. Pumpkin pies had tickled his palate, and rich Tennessee valley butter had given him adipose tissue. The Pennsylvanian gave out an odor of cheese and sausage, while the New Jerseyman had fattened on truck. There was one carpetbagger, however, who resembled, more than anything else, the blood-sucking mosquito.

With long bill, he pressed into the vitais of his victim, and anything else, the blood-sucking masquito. With long bill, he pressed into the vitals of his victim, and the singing in which he indulged when satiated with blood, was as void of music as the donkey's bray. This was the variety of carpetbagger furnished by Maine, and of whom the notorious John E. Bryant was a fair specimen.

Bryant's first appearance in Georgia should be put on canvas for the admiring eye of posterity. Horace Bradley could render the state no better service than to limn the form of this pseudo-philanthropist, who found more this pseudo-philanthropist, who found more pleasure in the society of negroes than he did in that of white people. It would be an object lesson for all time to let the people know what manner of men Maine sent south in the few years following 1865. The type of a midnight mischief maker, arraigning class against class, he appealed to the worst elements of the colored race in order to create circumstances which might bring him usufruct -politically, of course! Bitter as was his hatred of the people upon whom he imposed his presence, yet when he saw a chance of promotion he sought the speakership of the Georgià house of representatives from the demo-crats. Failing in his plot against his own party, he fawned back into its councils, and grew more intense in his hatred of a people who were responsible for neither the state of his liver nor his existence. As was Bryant in Georgia, so were the other carpetbaggers from Maine in the other states. If the different stricken communities were polled it would be found, almost without exception, that the carpetbagger who gnawed the bone cleanest was a native of the state of Hidebound as are her hypocrites, ravenous as were her carpetbaggers, it is in the display of fossils that Maine stands unapproached and unapproachable.

It is the home of Hannibal Hamlin! Somewhere, in ancient history, it is recorded that one Hannibal Hamlin was elected vicepresident of the United States on a ticket headed by Abraham Lincoln. For more than a generation before this dried-up citizen had been an office-holder, holding on to the public teat with death-like tenacity. He was chiefly remarkable for a spike-tail coat, badly frayed on the edges, which he inherited from his paternal grandfather, and for an old high hat, which had been battered and worn through half a dozen owners. Though his assumption of office brought on war and he bore a military name, Hannibal kept at a safe distance from bullets, and passed through the conflict without a scratch. He was one of the bravest men—on the stump—ever produced by the state of Maine; and his prudence was Hways to be counted on.

Hannibal was no giddy young creature, foolishly risking his life in the front, though he was effective in urging others to go. He saw the war assume its fierce proportions, and terminate in the death struggle of a mighty nation. He saw his own vanity erushed when Andrew Johnson pushed him out of the way for the second term. He saw his chief go down in assassination, and within the span of his life Andrew Johnson, General Grant, General Lee, President Garfield, Conkling appear as passing figures. It looks as if everything came to him but death. Since the war he has been twice resurrected to hold pub-lic office, once going as minister to Spain. Men might come and men might go, but Hannibal

At last the race for life dwindled down to wo-Hannibal Hamlin and Jefferson Davis. But there the comparison ends!

From his quiet home on the gulf the con-federate ex-president road of the death of friends and enemies as well. He saw Lincoln, Lee, Grant, McClellan, Aleck Stephens, nbs, all pass away before him.

But there was no use in waiting for Ham-lin, so Mr. Davis quietly fell asleep, and left the Maine fossil to the tender mercies of the next century.

From a gentleman who lives near Mr. Hamlin I learn that he has dried up into shoe lesther. The piercing winds cannot touch him. The summer's heat can draw no perspiration. He is as perfectly mummified as any old stager from the days of the Pharaohs. He still cherishes hope of office and takes to himself great credit for his career during the It is still cherishes hope or omee and takes to imself great credit for his career during the arc.

office-holder; who has misled people at times into thinking that he was a statesman; who has drawn hundreds of thousands of dollars as salary for public services. Yet, after all is told, what has he done? There is nothing by which his name will be remembered, save what is reflected from Lincoln.

He was merely an industrial politician, who resorted to every scheme and prejudice to "keep in," and now that he is laid on the shelf he is known as Malne's greatest fossil.

A Festival Echo.—One of the prettiest floats in the procession last Thursday was that of Mr. J. J. Faber. In the center of the car, which was twenty feet long, there was a monument eight feet high, on the top of which was seated a young lady dressed in costume to represent the Goddess of Art. At her right side stood a camera and on her left a globe, while the sides of the monument were adorned with life-size portraits of Atlanta's most prominent citizens. On the platform just behind the monument, cabinet photos of "Our Little Ragamuffin" were being mounted, finished and given away by two beautiful young ladies in costume. The display was designed by Mr. Faber and built under his supervision. It certianly did him credit as an artistic piece of work.

It is said.

At Home to Their Friends.—The elephant, lion, monkeys, white deer and other inmates of the zoo are at home to their friends today. Many calls were made on them at Grant park during the week, and they will have on their Sunday best today.

A Great Improvement.—The changes made in the Metropolitan Dummy line on Fraser street and at the junction of Fraser and Fair, where a serious accident happened last year, have im-proved the track greatly, making easier pulling for the engines and removing all danger of a run off or other accident.

At Home Sick—Rev. Paul Hornady, of Madison, Florida, is at his father's home near Hapeville quite iil. His many friends sincerely trust that his recovery may be rapid and early, add society

Mr. Hinman's Taste.—One of the most attractive floats in the festival parade was that of the Atlanta Furniture Company. It was gotten up by Mr. G. S. Hinman, superintendent of the company.

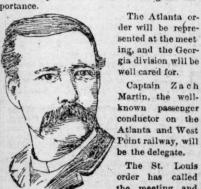

From the First Ward.—Mr. B. H. Austin, the well known Wall-street broker, has announced himself a candidate for council from the first ward, at the solicitation of many friends. Mr. Austin has been an Atlantian for years, and, if elected, will do his best for the interest of Atlanta.

It Has Reached 20,000.—The growth of the Southern Alliance Farmer is something remarkable. The paper now numbers more than twenty thousand subscribers. Editor Harry Brown deserves much credit for this rapid increase as well as for the general merits and many excellencies of his paper.

Finding the Money.—The following additional parties have reported finding $5 each in the catalogues distributed by Burke, the old book store man, from his float: Mrs. W. D. Kimbrough, Eatonton, Ga.; John P. Shannon, Elberton, Ga.; Miss E. Pelot, e7 Windsor street, city; Major Frank Warren, Mills street, city; Charles Mann, colored, Hill street; Lucy Innis, colored, Whitehall street; Wii Smith, colored, Peters street. Mr. Burke requests that others who have found money report their names to him. It is, indeed, interesting to note to what distances some of the money went.

The St. Louis order has called the meeting and CAPTAIN ZACH MARTIN. sent out invitations to the divisions all over the country asking that representatives be sent to the convention During the meeting matters of great interest to the order will be discussed, and as every conductor knows what will be consider nearly every division in the country has decided to be represented by its best man.

In Mr. Martin the Atlanta division has a sentative who will guard their interest zealously. Mr. Martin is a native of this state zealously. Mr. Martin is a native of this state and is known as extensively as any man in Georgia. For twenty years he has been with the Atlanta and West Point road, and during that time has made a record of which any man may be proud. He is always the same affable, pleasant, genial gentleman and will make many friends while away as he has here at home, where he is best known.

SHALL IT BE SOLD?

A PROPOSITION TO THE DIRECTORS OF THE LIBRARY.

The Matter Discussed at a Called Meeting Yesterday Evening—Two Sides to the Question.

Shall the Young Men's Library building be

The board of directors of the Young Men's Library was called together yesterday evening to consider a proposition from parties washing to buy the library building.

There were present President W. M. Slaton, and directors Ellis, Hirsch, Mayer, Hopkins, Cooper, Nutting, Haight and Forbes.

The president stated that he had called the board together on the request of Treasurer DeSaussure, who had written him a note stating that Mr. Clem Harris, in behalf of property. A messenger was sent to notify Mr. Harris that the board was in session and would hear what he had to say, but it turned out that Mr. Harris had left his office for home.

Inasmuch as the board had been approached through the treasurer it was decided to appoint a committee of three to confer with Mr. Harris, receive his proposition and report to the next meeting. The committee was also instructed to ascertain whether for the sum offered a suitable lot could be bought and as good a building erecteed upon it, and report the result of its investigation to the board at a meeting to be called by the president.

During the discussion of the matter Mr. Joseph Hirsch expressed the opinion that the library property, which has a frontage of seventy-five feet, is worth $1,000 a foot. Captain Ellis called attention to the fact that property two blocks away brought $1,300 a foot and he said the increase of taxation would soon force the erection of good buildings about the library. He thought it would be a hard matter to take the proceeds of the sale and do as well for the library in another place. He thought it should be left to a vote

Captain Forbes said he felt sure that if fair price could be had a large majority of the membership would vote for a sale of the property and removal of the library to a more congenial neighborhood.

It was the sense of the board that nothing should be done hastily, but if the library could be sold for enough to get as good a lo and put up as good a building in a more fa-vorable locality, it would be wise to sell.

With Captain Ellis's amendment, directing the committee to see whether they could take the sum offered and do as well elsewhere, the motion was unanimously passed.

President Slaton appointed Directors Hirsch, Ellis and Forbes a committee to confer with

Mr. Harris.

A Boom in Membership. Secretary Farbes read a list of seventy-five members reported by President Slaten since the last meeting. Forty-five of these were brought in since last Sunday. This makes 147 of the 200 President Slaton promised to bring in during the year. The reading of the list was followed by ap plause and added to the enthusiasm of the board.

Regulations.

ATLANTA, Ga., August 16.—Editor Constitution:
During my absence at Rhea Springs, Gatekeeper Branch published a card in your paper giving his version of the occurrence on August 2d, when he denied me admission to the depot to assist my departing guest, with his little boy and some packages in getting on the cars. That the gatekeeper could have forgotten the fact that I had to stand there and look after Mr. Dunbar's valise and package until he could carry the other valise and leave it and his child in a car among strangers, and then return for the things I had, is hardly to be supposed. I do not ask a personal controversy with this man, and if I am to have one, I very much prefer to have it with whever one, I very much prefer to have it with whoever makes these arbitrary rules, and puts Keeper Branch there to enforce them. I only know personally two men at the depot, one is Mr. J. S.
Porter, and there is not a more polite and efficient man in Atlanta than he, and if such men were at those gates with any kind of discretion allowed them, there would be none of this trouble. The other is Mr. Armstrong, and I am confident from what I know of him that if he could watch Keeper Branch through his administration of his position there would soon be a change. On August 7th Mr. Woodward, our efficient clerk, and I went off. Mr. Woodward was just ahead of me, I did not see him enter, but when followed in a few minutes Mr. Branch was at th gate. Mr. Woodward's note will explain that though he stated he was sick this keeper refused his servant admission to help him. Mr. J. C. Reynolds, a prominent real estate agent, makes statements that are conclusive in agent, makes statements that are conclusive in denial of other parts of the gatekeeper's card, and the letter of Mr. Dunbar, a high-toned and widely known citizen of South Carolina, is in direct contradiction of what the keeper says. In fact, if you could spare the space I could furnish you with columns of instances like those cited by Mr. Fleusch in his published card, instances of unnecessary hardship. Another citizen of Atlanta was at the depot to see Mr. Dunbar off, he saw Mr. Dunbar when he came into the depot and he will testify to a square contradiction of the gatekeeper's story. This gentleman had a ticket and did not have any bundles, but he was inside the depot when I got there. I have not been able to see him since my return from Rhea Springs, although I saw him in town on the morning Mr. Dunbar left, and as a member of the council, I was always for giving railroads full justice, as Mr. Werner, of the Georgia railroad, who served with me well knows. As solicior, I prosecuted vigorously persons who stole or injured their property. As a legislator, I opposed all measures tending to interfere with their rights or to unjustly tax them. I have defended them many times in the courts. I have often declined to take damage suits against them. I recognize their rights to control their property, but this management at the depot is wrong, harsh and unnecessary. It might do for New York, Boston, or other crowded centers, where necessity alone will justify it. It is not necessary here. It is not done in Chattanooga, or Augusta, or Charleston and I believe no where else in the south. It is just such things as this that has set the people against the railroad commission or the council should investigate it.

But will not the officials who prescribed these rules let us know what they are. The public ought to be informed, and then we can know what to expect. We will know what Keeper Branch can do and with the rules before us, we can report him if he violates them. I regret to intrude so much on your space. Very truly, denial of other parts of the gatekeeper's card, and the letter of Mr. Dunbar, a high-toned and

OFFICE OF CLERK OF CITY COUNCIL, ATLANTA, Ga., August 16.—Captain W. D. Ellis, Atlanta, Ga.—Dear Sir: In compliance with your request I will state the circumstances connected with entering the depot the day you and I left the city for Shea Springs, August 7th. I have been sick for some time past, and on arrival at the depot I had a man to carry my valise. The gatekesper refused to pass him in after I axplained that I was unable to carry it. After some delay and trouble permission from some other person was obtained for the person with me to enter.

Key & Bell. WE DESIRE TO SAY TO THOSE WHO CONtemplate buying a home or for speculation, that now is the time, as property is rapidly adtilizing in price. Agricultural prosperity is always followed by activity in trade, which was fully demonstrated the past season.

Now, the news comes up from every quarter, that the trops are exceptionally fine, and that the farmers are in a more prosperous condition than for many years, and we confidently look for greater activity in real estate this fall now next spring than has ever been witnessed in Atlanta before. Therefore we would arge upon all who expect to buy the importance of attending to that matter at once.

And as our sales are better, and the demand.

And as our sales are better, and the demand greater than ever at this season before, we would respectfully ask those who wish their property sold to list it with us. We have now a cash customer for a $5,000 home on the south side, and and one for $5,000 to $8,000 on the north side, besides numerous parties who want from $1,000 to $2,000 places. Bering in your property with description if you want the money for it.

We have several nice farms which we can sell cheap, from $500 to $20,000. Come and let us talk to you about them; we can suit you if you want a farm.

We have 300 feet front within three, blocks of the capitol, that we are authorized to close out at a great bargain. Come and see it. We have one of the nicest homes on Pryor street that we must sell let us show it to you. Nice homes also on Capitol avenue. Whitehall, Luckie, Houston, Peachtree, W. Hunter and Crow, in fact, we have bargains on almost any street in the city. Conveyances always ready to show property. Respectfully, Key & Bell, No. 6 Kimball house.

WHAT ARE YOU DOING FOR

HAT BOY OF YOURS? RE YOU GIVING HIM A TRADE OR PRACTICAL EDUCATION?

RE YOU SENDING HIM TO RICHTON'S SHORTHAND SCHOOL?

F NOT, WHY NOT? DON'T YOU KNOW THAT CRICHTON'S IS headquarters for shorthand; that his school is live, wide awake and progressive; that he has scores of graduates in good positions; that he devotes his entire attention to teaching, and that all nis pupils succeed? Remember, we are living in practical age. Young men with practical edu-ations are in demand. We must train them for usiness pursuits.

HOW ABOUT YOUR DAUGHTERS? F YOUR DAUGHTER IS THROWN ON HER own resources tomorrow, could she earn an honest penny? Whose fault is this? The possible need to be self-supporting should enter into the scheme of every girl's education. Crichton's Shorthand School, 49 Whitehall, has made special provision for ladies. It will pay you to send for catalogue.

SOCIETY NEWS AND SUMMER COSSIP.

SOME OF FASHION'S FADS

Which Show the Tendency Toward Masculine Dress.

THOUGHTS ON DRESS REFORM

Then Some Gossip About People You Know.

Metamorphosis From The Boston Courier.

In tulle and ribbons bright,
And heard her read in accents slow,
An essay on "The Night." And when she closed and took her seat.

With her bouquet, in state, I heard them call her the "sweet Girl graduate." I saw her just the other day, More beauteous than before, Upon the sands where wavelets play, A bathing suit she wore.

And later when I saw her splash

Among the rollers whirl, I heard them calling her the "dash-Ing summer girl."

The latest fad in night gowns was shown me the other day by a young woman who is making with her own dainty fingers all the undergarments for the wedding trousseau which she will have occasion to use in the autumn. We have followed the fashions of men in everything save their night dress, until now, but these robes seemed to prove that the gentler sex will follow masculine attire almost to the letter for some time to come. The gowns shown me were all made like night shirts, except some minor details. There were gowns of silk and finest linen and French nainsook, all made sack fashion, with shirt sleeves, and deep cuffs, finished with lace or embroidery, and having the front trimmed in the same simple way on either side the buttonholes, while a deep pocket contained the fair owner's monogram, daintily embroidered. The collars were broad and plain and finished with a chord and tassel.

But women will be dainty and much be-trimmed no matter what fad they affect, and there was as much fine hem-stitching and lace on these robes as the style would allow. The ink, cream and blue robes of china silk were fit for the garmenting of an angel. One of pure white silk had the collars, cuffs, pocket and front embroidered in lilies of the valley and edged with valenciennes lace, while about the monogram on the pocket were embroidered the same flowers; the collar was embroidered the same flowers, the tied with a heavy silk chord and tassel.

"I may effect masculine attire in blazers, divided skirts and night gowns," said the fair young woman, "but there's one feminine garment that I shall never relinguish, it is this." She held up a long robe, low-necked and short-sleeved. "I hate," she continued, "these abominable tittle gauze shirts that the women are wearing now. I haven't one in my wardrobe. Women will say they are cooler; well, of course they are, as there's absolutely nothing to them. They are immodest sort of affairs, and you can't dress or undress comfortably in one. As for these dainty things, look how modest, how essentially feminine they are. I have two dozen, all silk, linen or nainsook, all edged stitching and other fine handwork." I unfolded and looked at each one sepa rately with intense admiration. The newest in style were the Josephine. One of the finest linen reached almost to the ankles, and had the skirt finished simply with a deep hemstitched hem, and shirred on to the short waist by a chord only two or three inches below the arms. The waist was made round with puffed sleeves about four inches deep. with tiny bands of briar stitching and a narrow lace edge. This waist was buttoned in front by three exquisite little medallion buttons, female heads, surrounded by pearls.

At the Seashore.

From the World. Daughter-Mamma, Tom tried to kiss me on the beach last night. Mamma-You did not permit him to do so.

Daughter-No. mamma-

Mamma-I'm glad of that, my child. Daughter (resuming)—He did it without per

It is rank heresy on the part of the progressive woman of today to say that she doesn't believe in divided skirts and corsetless gowns and physical culture.

I wouldn't say without qualification that I think these things absurd and useless, but they are absurd and useless to many people who pick them up as a fad. It is the fashion to advocate them now, but the fashion will pass way as all fashions do to give way to others. If a woman is poorly developed and delicate, and if the exercise for the development of her muscles is prescribed by her physician, why, let her take physical culture. She will probably gain health by it. But what does the healthy overy-day woman want to be swinging dumbbells and skinning the cat every morning for? Let such a woman take a good bath, eat a hearty breakfast, attend to her household duties and take a long, brisk walk any time of the day she finds will suit her best. It is natural for women to walk and ride, but a daily routine of physical exercise is not natural, and to a healthy woman is a useless waste of time.

To be a healthy woman one need not train herself like a prize fighter, and the healthy woman doesn't need physical any more than she needs

Dress reform is another fad which is carried to an absurd and useless extreme, and the most absurd of all the dress reform garments s the divided skirt.

What is it but a skirt on two legs? Notwithstanding its division it's a long skirt just the same—just as long and just as much in the way as if it was made all in one. To go corsetless is sensible when a woman is too sick to wear anything save a wrapper; but a well made corset sensibly worn is a support rather than an injury to a healthy woman. Many of the followers of dress reform compromise upon an underwaist full of whalebones, which is, af-ter all, about the same as a corset, but the ost extreme followers of common sense in dress wear no whalebones at all, and their clothes, in consequence, wrinkle and fit badly about the waist and have the set obtained by a backwood's dressmaker. Corsetless wor cannot look well in gowns which fit closely to the figure. No matter how perfect a woman's form a tight-fitting waist, worn without a corset or any whalebones whatever is sure to have some wrinkles, No dress-maker can prevent these breaks.

The dress reformer will never be a success save in the draperies of the Greeks or the short-waisted gowns of the first empire. With such costumes the corset is an abomination; but the woman who would go corsetless in a modern gown is neither artistic nor sensible.

To be Regretted. From the Boston Courier.
And sweet is the breath of the clover,
But it brings littly joy to the beautiful maid,
For her nose is freekled all over.

Miss Leiter, the Chicago heiress, has been the great American belle of the London sea son, and many of her fair compatriots as well as many English beauties have managed to say many spiteful things. She has about her the usual number of impecunious who seek American heiresses.

Miss Leiter has a charming personality, being unaffected, bright and extremely pretty. She was the center of attraction at a recen sall given by Mrs. Marshall O. Roberts. THE WEEK IN SOCIETY.

News of Atlanta People and Their Friends News of Atlanta People and Their Friends Who Are Visiting Them.
Nothing to tell about this week in the way of amusements. Everybody who is at home has had some cousins or friends with them during the midsummer festival. The people away are thinking about bringing themselves home soon, and by the time the first good theater entertainment comes everybody will be seated in his accustomed place at DeGive's. The prophecies concerning the winter all tend towards a gay season. A number of popular and prominent society folks will go into new homes made for the purpose of elegant entertaining. Everybody will be glad to get back and do the same old things, talk about the same set of people, and eat and drink the same kind of refreshments.

All those interested in the musical career of Mrs. Miriam Armstrong Glenn will be delighted to hear all the many pleasant things about her which come from friends of hers in New York. Mrs. Glenn has had everything to make her feel assured of a brilliant musical future. All the musical teachers in the city are enthusiastic in praise of her voice, and the Boston Ideals have offered her a fine position to trayel with them next reason. This offer is one of the highest compliments any vocalist could receive, and the fact that Mrs. Glenn has never tested her talent professionally makes the compliment all the greater.

Mrs. Donald Bain and family have returned

Major and Mrs. Fitten and family leave for Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Evans gave a delightful phonographic recital last Friday evening in honor of their beautiful and charming guest, Miss Brooks, of St. Louis. Delightful refreshments were served during the evening and the entertainment was charming in every respect. Mrs. John A. Gee and her daughters, Ruby and Maude, are spending the summer at Charlottes-ville. Va.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Saloshin left yesterday for Sa-vannah for a few weeks visiting their daughter, Mrs. M. Lang.

Miss Lizzie Thornton, one of LaGrange's favor-ite young ladies, is visiting Miss Annie May Hall, 29 Houston street. The many friends of Miss Kate Abbott will be cleased to know that she has returned home after a delightful visit to her sister, Mrs. J. T. Hester, Mrs. Sam Stovall has returned to her home in Conyers, Ga., after a pleasant visit to friends in the Carolinas.

Why should we seek pleasure in a far distant state? Why should we pour our wealth into the coffers of the north when beautiful Tallulah is at our very door?
Anybody who has ever traveled, knows that Tallulah is the most beautiful spot on earth. Anybody who has ever been in good society knows that the best society in the world is at Tallulah this summer.

Of course you want to know about the belles and beaux, who are the prominent figures.

Out of four hundred guests stopping at the Cliff, it would be a difficult task to mention even half of those who attract attention.

Of the beauties Miss Effie Pope, of Washington, Ga., heads the list. Miss Shellman, of Savannah; Miss Cohen, of Augusta; Miss Noble, of Athens; Miss Pou, of Madison; Mrs. Williams, of Athens, But, oh, dear me, I grow completely bewildered as the vision of beautiful faces passes before my eyes.

Miss Alexander, of Rome, is greatly admired for her beautiful faure and graceful bearing.

Miss Blalock, of Barnesville, wins all hearts by her charming manner, and by her recitations in the parlor, before the dancing begins in the ballroom. Miss Stokes, of Augusta, is especially gifted in conversational powers.

Among the young married women who are greatly admired, are Mrs. John James Hill, sister to Miss Pope, of Washington, and Mrs. W. S. Gardner, of Angusta.

Here and there along the piazzas are groups of married women, representing some of the best blood of the south. They are enjoying social chat while listening to Bearden's band, which, I venture to say, is the best at any resort in the state. Among these ladies you may see Mrs. Dr. Miller, of Atlanta; Mrs. Hamilton, of Athens; Mrs. Joel Billups, of Madison; Mrs. Cohen, of Augusta; Mrs. George W. Scott, of Decatur.

Editor Knowles, of Greensborro, and his beautiful young bride were among us for a few days.

TALLULAH FALLS, Ga., August; 16.— [Special.]—The boys from Atlanta gave their third german last night, which was participated in by all the dancing guests, and was enjoyed very much by all present. COLONEL WINN ACCEPTS

THE DEMOCRATIC NOMINATION IN THE NINTH DISTRICT.

His Views Given at Length-A Challenge from Mr. Pickett and Colonel Winn's Reply to the Same.

This is an off year with the politicians and men who have never had any experience in politics before are brought to the front. A plain farmer who never held important office before goes to congress from the ninth and a man with no more political experience was man with no more political experience was nominated in the fourth.

Colonel Thomas E. Winn, the democratic nominee in the ninth district, is as different from his predecessors as a man could well be. Born and raised in Gwinnett, he lived on a farm most of his life except when he was in the war. He was raised to farm work and was kept hard at it when not in was kept hard at it week not in school, until he was eighteen years of age. Then he went to Emory and Henry College, Virginia, and remained till he graduated. He had hardly been admitted to the bar in the Walton superior court before the war broke out. Law and everything else was forgotten in the peril of the hour and he went to Virginia as first lieutenant of Company F, in the Twenty-fourth Georgia regiment, which Colonel Robert McMillan commanded. He was with the regiment and took active part in every battle where he was engaged, from Malvern Hill to Appomattox. There was not a better soldier in the army and

THOMAS E. WINN. his gallantry won him successive promotions to the majoralty and lieutenant colonelcy of

When the war closed he returned to Milton county and resumed the practice of law, but was forced by ill health to seek a more active life. Since 1867 he has devoted himself to farming and has regularly tilled the soil with his own hands.

Colonel Winn has taken a deep interest in educational matters, and for the last fourteen years he has been county school commissioner

Though at all times interested in public aflairs, he never took an active part in politics until the state campaign of 1886, when he did good service in his county for Governor Gordon. The governor has recognized this service of his old friend by appointing him on his staff, a position Colonel Winn still holds. Colonel Winn was in the city yesterday and submitted to an interview in which his views are forcibly and plainly explained.

"The first vote I ever cast," said he, "was for John Bell in 1800. Since the war I have always been an organized democrat and never scratched a democratic ticket. My sympa thies are all with the democratic party, and I thoroughly believe in Jeffersonian democ-

"I have always taken an active interest in agricultural matters, and was always alive to everything affecting the interests of the farmers; so when the jute bagging trust was formed I fought it with all my power through our local press, and attempted to enlist the farmers against it.

"About thistime the alliance was being organized in my section and being in sympathy with the movement, I connected myself with it at the first opportunity. I was elected president of the suballiance and president of the county alliance when it was organized. Since member of the bagging committee for the ninth congressional district and did all I could to defeat that infamous trust which was organized to rob the farmer."

"What brought you in the race?"

"I am not a candidate of my own motion, II was led into it in this way: The fight the alliance is making of course led us to take interest in political affairs; for we felt that we could not accomplish the objects of the alliance if we as citizens remained passive. My county alliance endorsed me without my seeking and put me forward for the nomination. "Carrying my own county by an almost

"Carrying my own county by an almost unanimous vote, the endorsement of my people with my activity in the fight for the alliance attracted the attention of the farmers throughout the district and to them I am indebted for the democratic nomination.

"My nomination was by primary election, an unprecedented vote was polled and out of about nine thousand ballots I received about 7,500. This was the first primary election we ever had in the ninth district, and there is absolutely no excuse for a man, calling him-

the nomination of the party to which he is pledged."

"What is the outlook?"

"It is very flattering. There is a demand for industrial representation on the part of the farmers and laboring men, and, being a farmer and an active allianceman, I will have the support of the bulk of the farmers and laboring men who'are democrats.

"I will also get a great many independent voters who belong to the alliance. A great many of these men will vote for me both because I am an allianceman and a sure enough

Colonel Winn's Platform.

"I am a thorough tariff reformer. The legislation of this country has had the effect of building up the manufacturing interest at the expense of the agricultural interests, and we now want legislation that will begin to build up the agricultural interests. I believe the government transcends its power when it proposes to tax one class of citizens to build up another, which has been the policy of the government under republican rule for the last twenty-five years.

"I am in favor of the remonetization of silver and of the free coinage of silver. I am opposed to the contraction of the currency, which has been going on since 1873 and is still going on. A great deal of the want of thrift among the farmers might be attributed to the want of money to do the business of the country.

want of money to do the business of the country.

"I am is favor of suppressing all monopolies and trusts that would have the effect of oppressing the people.

"I am opposed to the national banking system as being expensive and burdensome. I want the money to go direct to the people without paying tribute to the banks and loan associations. This question is before the people and is being thoroughly discussed and I hope some measure will be adopted that will bring relief, whether it be the subtreasury bill introduced in the present congress or some constitutional measure which will provide a currency adequate to do the business of the

"I believe a great swindle has been perpetrated on the government by the Pacific railroad. The government has lent them sums of money to build the road, besides giving them land, and they have not even paid the interest on the money, and it seems improbable that the government will ever get the principal back. I am in favor of their being brought to a strict account, and I am opposed to the squandering of any more land on rail-roads or other claimants. I believe it ought to be held for actual settlement. I believe that if all our people could own homes, it would bring about a state of affairs devoutly to be wished, and would create among all classes of our people a love for the government which is impossible while the masses see the public property squandered on princely favorites.

"I am opposed to the corrupt use of money to carry elections or control legislation, and so far as I am concerned I propose to make this race without the use of a dollar except in bearing my legitimate and rightful expenses. I believe the time has come when the question is to be decided, which shall control the United States, the citizen or the dollar.
"I am nothing but a plain farmer, and I am coming before the people with a plain farmer's talk. I propose to conduct this campaign in a straighforward, honest way, and shall appeal to their judgment for their support and suffrags."

frages. A Challenge from Mr. Pickett.

A Challenge from Mr. Pickett.

A Ball Ground correspondent seads a copy of the following challenge which Mr. Pickett has sent Colonel Winn:

BALL GROUND, Ga., August 15.—Colonel Thomas E. Winn, Lawrenceville, Ga.—Dear Sir.; I am a candidate for the fifty-second congress, subject to the free ballot of every qualified voter of the ninth congressional district, to be cast next November; at a time provided for by law, at which election we have the guarantee of our grand old state, that our ballots shall be duly protected and fairly counted, and the candidate receiving a majority of the votes shall be declared elected.

This is all that I shall ask for and, but for corrupt men whose ambition is to serve their personal greed, by crying the partisan spirit, to sever the strength of the toiling masses; to make of them hewers of wood and drawers of water, while they themselves desire "a seat of luxury," I say, but for such cerrapt demagogues we can safely trust, not to bayonet but to honest ballot; the pride of American liberty and the price of American blood.

We have now come to the place in our political reform, that it will require the moral courage of every honest man to lift his hands, and pull down, and raise his feet, and stamp underneath every corrupt method used to obtain public office, which is a public trust imposed for the protection of every citizen.

If we would have good government we must have good men to make the laws to govern.

If it was not for my claim and right to run this race, made so by the voice of ten thousand liberty-loving citizens who cast their votes for me two years ago, you would now be congressman, made so by test than one-fifth of the qualified voters of the district. Your claims to this were:

First. As an allianeeman, which if the principle shall speak for itself, declares "in a strictly non-partisan spirit."

Second. In a strictly partisan spirit your-e-nter and start again, nedering yourself to partisan partisan spirit."
Second. In a strictly partisan spirit you re-enter and start again, pledging yourself to partisan politics.

Although you have gone to Gainesville twice to start to congress the route is by ball ground.

You are now as dependent on the whole people as I am independent of the few who try to rale

We are both afoot again.

I now invite you to enter into a joint discussion of the issues involved in the campaign.

The financial policy of the government is new questioned.

The searcity of money as a circulating medium, and how to increase it; the burden of taxation borne by the laboring masses, and how to lessen it; the indebtedness of the farmers, and how to relieve them. These, together with other public questions, the people have a right to demand and hear discussed by their candidates. I assure you, sir, as a brother allianceman, so far as I am concerned, the discussion shall be carried out on a high plane of dignified courtesy.

I now name Captain P. H. Lyon, Dr. C. Pickett and Captain John B. Richards, who will act as a committee for me to meet a like committee of your choice, who will name the times and places of our meetings.

As this challenge comes from a mountaineer, its motive is as high as the loftiest peak of the mountains from whence it is borne, and its purpose is as pure as the waters that go from their base, and by their course find their way to and act as clariflers of other streams. Awaiting an early reply, I am, yours truly,

This letter was shown Colonel Winn yesterday and he promptly gave the fellowing reply:

Hon. T. Pickett, Ball Ground, Ga.—Dear Sir: In reply to your letter of the löthinst., it would afford me pleasure to meet you and discuss the questions you submit therein, if I could consistently do so. I have received the unanimous request of the convention of the democratic party, asking me to be a candidate for congres in the approaching election. I have received the carnest support of the farmers all over the district, and I have consented to accept the nomination.

I am informed that the republican party will nominate a candidate at an early date, with the purpose of defeating the domocratic party in my district. For me to accept what you term a challenge to discuss the various issues named in your letter, would be to ignore the earnflate the republican, and for me to divide my tune in a discussion about. While you may not have intended it in your letter, you will see by a short consideration of the subject that it would be just what the republican candidate would want, and it could not fail to benefit that party for me to accede to your re-

For this reason I must decline to confer further with you on the subject. Respectfully.

Thomas E. Winn.

Colonel Winn Accepts the Nomination.

To the Democrate of The Ninth Congressional District: We were appointed a committee to notify Hon. Thomas E. Winn, of Gwinnett county, of his nomination as the democratic candidate for congress in the ninth congressional district, by the democratic convention, which assembled in Gainesville on the 14th instant. We have addressed him a letter duly giving him official notice of the action of the convention, and have received from him a reply accepting the nomination.

The convention that appointed the committee also authorized us to issue an address to the democrats of this district.

The convention was unanimous in its action, and presented a man who is above reproach, a farmer and a man who has been an earnest, honest democrat all his life, and faithful in the discharge of every duty that he has been called upon to perform.

He was selected because he was such a man.

farmer and a man who has been an earnest, honest democrat all his life, and faithful in the discharge of every duty that he has been called upon to perform.

He was selected because he was such a man. The issues that confront us are of vital importance to the democrats, not only of this district, but all over the state, and, we may add, all over the country. The devastating war, that cast a gloom over the whole south, has been ended for a quarter of a century. There have been reforms and improvements in almost all matters of federal legislation, and the signs of the war are rapidly disappearing. But for a few conditions that now confront us, we could safely say that the outlook is as hopeful as we could expect.

We are carrying now a tariff, made onerous and burdensome to the farmer, equal to all demands for money when a large standing army was in the field. It is a war fariff tax that is felt by every poor man in the land, at all times and under all circumstances. It curtails the price of his products, and the wages paid him, and enhances the price of every article that he buys. The action of the republican party makes it apparent to all thinking mea that they propose not only to keep up this enormous drain, but to increase it in every possible way.

The jresent financial system of the government was at war, and without a proper regard for the mass of farmers over the land, it has been oppressive, and greatly detrimental to the agricultural interests, and, with the tariff, has made the rich richer and the poor poorer.

The result following from this injust war tariff and this unequal financial system, has made it possible to build up and foist on the people gigantic and unjust monopolies, combinations and trusts that bear hardly on the people, and the tax payers of our district feel it in every walk of life. Recognizing that this state of affairs is greatly injurious to our people, we have selected a man to be the democratic nominee from the rains of

He requests THE CONSTITUTION to say that he is not a candidate and will not be one under any disconnectors.

A NEGRO GIRL SHOT. Jim Sims and Della Watkins Scuffle Over a Pistol.

Della Watkins, a negro girl about eighteen years old, was shot in the knee with a thirtyeight caliber ball last night.

The shooting, the girl claims, was accidental, though she does not know whether she did it herself or whether the pistol was in the hands of Jim Sims, a negro boy, with whom she was scuffling over the weapon.

The girl lives on Fraser street. Last night

Sims came to her house and in the course of the evening the two got to fooling with a pistol, which had been lying upon the mantel-

In a tussel over the possession of the pistol, which belonged to the girl, it went off, the ball passing into her leg just above the knee, passing round the bone. The boy claims that the girl shot herself and she in turn says he had hold of the pistol when it was discharged.

After the accident the girl walked to the boy's house on Grant street, where a physician boy's house on Grant street, where a physician was called to see her. Some difficulty was experienced in finding the ball, but the wound, though in a bad place, is not considered seri-

A LITTLE ONE DEAD.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Wylle extend to them deepest sympathy for the great affliction which has just befallen them in the death of their dear little two-year-old daughter,

The friends and acquaintances of the family are invited to attend the funeral of the little one from the family residence, 180 Randolph street, at 10 o'clock this (Sunday) morning.

COL. POLK WAS THERE.

THE COBB COUNTY ALLIANCE IN SESSION. - EM Meeting of the Executive Committee Last Night—This Is An Important Weck.

Cobb County Alliance held a big meeting yesterday in a grove near Marietta. It was a regular alliance love feast, and was much enjoyed by a large crowd. A fine basket dinner was served, and the alliancemen were entertained by speeches from rominent members.

Hon. L. L. Polk, president of the National Farmers' Alliance, was present, and addressed the meeting. His speech lasted two hours, and was highly interesting throughout. He reviewed the organization and growth of the alliance movement throughout the country. PRESIDENT POLK'S SPEECH. In a very happy little speech by Judge Lester, Colonel Polk was introduced to the

The colonel said he had just reached Atlanta this morning from the meeting of the State Alliance of Tennessee, where he was promptly conscripted and pressed into service by Brother H. C. Brown, of The Alliance Farmer, and, although greatly fatigued by continuous travel and labor of forty-seven days, he readily yielded to the dema

So per cent of the taxes. Agricultural values have diminished in thirty years 92 per cent. This simple statement should arouse profound inquiry and investigation, not only among our statesinen, but among all classes of our people. History falls to show a single instance, where a republic has been perpetuated, where any one of the material or essential elements were dominated by the others. Today if the agricultural interests of the United States enjoyed the same favoring conditions, and was on the same plane of prosperity with the other great interests of the country, we would be the most independent and the happiest people on the face of the earth. Why is it not so? This is a question that has brought into being the grandest labor organization ever known in history. We have reached the point in our industrial development when we must have a readjustment of conditions. He cited the downfall of the republic of Rome of Carthage, Tyre, Babylon and Egypt as examples. He showed that our republic was based upon such natural conditions that it cannot survive justice and equity in the enactment and enforcement of laws for the government of the Ipeople with equal rights to all and special favors to none, which is the very foundation stone upon which rest our governmental structure. He met land successfully refuted the delusive views of such as present minor causes for the present condition of things. The primal cause of this government. It must and will be corrected. Lead, kindly light! amid the encircling gloom— Lead thou me on,
The night is dark, and I am far from home, Lead thou me on.
Keep thou my feet; I do not ask to see
The distant scene; one step enough for me.

I was not ever thus, nor prayed that thou Shouldst lead me on.

I loved to choose and see my path, but now Lead thou me on!

I loved the garish day, and spite of fears, Pride ruled my will. Remember not past years!

ABOUT THE CAPITOL.

JUDOR HOOK'S LETTER ABOUT THE COLORED PEABODY INSTITUTE,

Which Opens Next Monday at Milledgeville

-A Chatham County Man Pardoned
by the Governor.

The Colored Teachers' Peabody Institute opens tomorrow at Milledgeville. Every effort has been made to insure a large ttendance of teachers.

The session will be an interesting and in-structive one. Judge Hook has prepared this letter or information concerning it, for publi-

The colored teachers' department of the Peabody institute will be held in the colored Baptist church at Milledgeville, from August 18th to August 30th, inclusive. The demand of Dr. J. L. M. Curry, general agent of the Peabody trustees, that the annual report for Georgia shall be submitted by September 1st, renders this advance in the date previously announced for opening the institute absolutely imperative.

The institute will be held under the direction of Professor Lawton B. Evans, superintendent of public schools for Richmond county. The following is the list of instructors:

Professor Lawton B. Evans, "School Doctrines," "School Management."

Professor John Neely, principal Tubman high school, Augusta, "Primary Numbers," "Arithmetic."

Professor Henry L. Walker, president Colored Teachers' Association for Georgia, "Grammar," "Geography."
Professor Thomas A. Johnson, principal Mitchell street colored school, Atlanta, "Penmanship."
Mrs. Adella Hunt Logan, "Reading and Spell-ing."

Mrs. Adella Hunt Logan, "Reading and Speling."

Mrs. Adella Hunt Logan, "Reading and Speling."

Mrs. A. D. Cary, secretary.

In addition to the regular course, other lectures on the subjects. "Kindergarten." "Industrial Work," "High School Work," etc., will be delivered; among the lecturers being Miss Lucy C. Laney and J. W. Lyons. There will be evening concerts, social gatherings, etc., that will make the occasion pleasant as well as profitable.

The same railroad rates have been secured for the colored institute at Lithia Springs; namely, 4 cents a mile-full fare being paid going, and return tickets costing 1 cent a mile. Colonel M. Slaughter in givins this rate, prescribes the following directions for securing return tickets:

The teacher must purchase a ticket at full fare to Milledgeville at his nearest depot, requesting the agent from whom he purchases to give him a certificate of purchase. These certificates will be furnished all agents in the Southern Passenger Association by their respective roads. If the teacher cannot buy a through ticket to Milledgeville from his own station, he must obtain a certificate of purchase from every agent from whom he buys a ticket. These certificates will be properly signed at the institute, and on presentation a return ticket will be sold at 1 cent per mile.

Professor H. L. Walker, by my direction, has made every preparation necessary for the accommodation and comfort of the visiting teachers at Milledgeville, having succeeded in securing board at the low rate of $2 per week.

Any further information with reference to accommodation, etc., may be obtained by addressing either of the following representative colored citizens of Milledgeville, who form a committee of arrangements:

He was sentenced in the superior court of Chatham county, in May, 1887, for ten years, charged with assault with intent to murder.

The pardon was recommended by the jury, solicitor general, and judge before whom he was tried, and by a great many citizens.

The grounds given are his youth and his extremely delicate health.

STRAY NOTES.

The rainy weather has been playing the mischief with the arrangements of the Governor's Horse Guards for their quarterly parade and annual tilt.

Two weeks ago the turnout was to have occurred, but the continued rains put the tilting grounds in such a measly condition that the tilt and parade had to be postponed until last week. But it rained again on Friday, the day upon which the Horse Guards had set for their demonstration, and now another postponement carries it over until this week sometime, provided the weather will admit.
When the parade and tilt does occur it will be an exhibition worth seeing. The tilters are all good ones, and the nature of the contest insures the exercise of their best skill.

Last night the police commissioners were to have held a special meeting to report on the advisability of adopting a police signal system, but the meeting was postponed until tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, when Commissioner Lester, who has been in New York for a week or more past, is expected to be present.

It is very probable that a signal system will be adopted, and the chances are that the council, which will be asked to furnish the necessary money at the meeting Monday afternoon, will approve the action of the police commissioners.

The meeting will be held Monday morning so that the matter can be gotten before the council that the matter can be gotten before the council without delay. Should the council order the signal system immediately, the representative of one of the companies which showed its apparatus says he will have a circuit in operation by the time the exposition opens.

A number of councilmen who examined the apparatus on exhibition are heartily in favor of it, and say that we will have a signal system without delay.

Patrolman Frank Christophine is somewhat original in his manner of making reports.

Here is about the way he puts it when the sergeant gives him a call on his beat, which is away out in Brooklyn: "Well, Frank, how's everything?" the sergeant

If he has had a quiet time, Christophine's reply nsually is:

"Well, sa'geant, it look a' like a' dey all a' back

The Black Maria is now on constant duty for The Black Maria is now on constant duty for police calls. It is no longer used to transport prisoners to and from the stockade. The old patrol wagon, drawn by a pair of new mules, now does that duty, relieving the police department of much trouble and inconvenience. Heretofore the department was without the use of the Maria about three hours every day while it was gone to the stockade. Several accidents to officers have occurred on this account.

"Speaking about the movement among the alumnt to endow the State university, why can't the young graduates and matriculates have a hand in the business?"

The speaker was Mr. W. S. Upshaw, who graduated from the university with the noted class of '86, and who has always manifested great zeal for '86, and who has always manifested great zeal for the best interests of the college.
"It looks easy," he continued, "for the young men of Atlanta who are interested in the movement to call a meeting and take some step to help the endowment fund. If they were to have a committee appointed to solicit subscriptions to the fund, I believe they could materially help matters along.
"It cannot be expected that the young men can themselves donate liberally, but they could do much by working for the general endowment fund."

The suggestion was quickly seconded by Mr. Charlie Rice, who said there could be much obcharies rate, who said takes could be much obtained in this way.

"If the young men, not only of Atlanta, but every other city would take the matter in hand, so soon as Hom. Peter Meldrim names his plan of work, I believe they could greatly assist that commit-

And there are many others who think the same way.

Hon. P.JW. Meldrim will name the committee of trustees and alumni soon, and this committee will meet in Atlanta to take up the work.

There is being much talk just now about the There is being much talk just now about the city clock on the old capitol building.

"The matter of reparing the clock rests upon the condition that the city will give $600 to that end," said Colonel Albert Howell, chairman of the committee on public buildings and grounds yesterday.

"The amount allowed by the city at the last meeting of the council was $250, but Messrs. Venable say the improvements contemplated cannot be made with that appropriation as the city's part of the cost.

"The clock will be placed in the center of the building and the dial will be covered with a glass front. An electric light will be put on each side so that the clock will do night service."

The committee will report favorably for the $500 appropriation at the cut meeting of the council.

THE INTEREST IN THE FLOWER SHOW.

The exposition men spent yesterday for the most part arranging the amusement part of the great programm re was a meeting of the executive com mittee in the exposition office yesterday.

The meeting was held chiefly for the pur pose of entertaining the agents of fireworks companies who called to make offers for the contract to furnish the pyrotecnic displays at the exposition. There were several firms represented at the meeting, and to judge from the gorgeous pro-grammes they submitted, it may be safely re-lied upon that this part of the show will be fully in keeping with every other feature that has been so perfectly arranged thus far.

The executive committee will consider the bids of each of the firms and report the action to the regular weekly meeting of the directors next Tuesday night.

The management will see that the very best fireworks display to be found on the continent will light the exposition grounds with variegated beams whenever the programme calls for such an entertainment.

THE FLOWER SHOW.

Everyday|the interest in the chrysanthemum show increases and there are right now more than a hundred ladies in Georgia who are figuring on the first prize, confident that the will again.

Such is the interest, not only in Georgia, but throughout the entire south.

There will be the most beauteous collection of flowers in the flower hall of the exposition ever beheld there before.

THE TEXAS FARMERS.

The Southern Horticultural Journal, of Dallas, has taken up the matter, and puts it before the Texas people thus:

The Piedmont Exposition Coupany, of Atlanta, Ga., are deserving of the good will and approbation of every chrysanthemum grower in the south.

Their exposition each fall is well known for its greatness, and its success is the delight of all familiar with the association.

Situated in Atlanta with railroads entering from every direction, in the midst of the richest section upon the globe, the enterprise, the charms and hospitality of its people is a proverb. What place could be more apprinted or association more fitting to espouse the cause of the autumn queen?

Five days of the exposition are set apart for a chrysanthemum show, and substantial prizes are offered for the best efforts of the florest and gardener alike, that can be produced either in plants or cut blooms of this new famous flower.

We have had chrysanthemum displays in, many of our cities for the past few years, but a competitive exhibition where such magnifiscent prizes are offered we never before heard of in the southern states. It is but the beginning of a series of such expositions, and we trust all growers will unite to make it the occasion of the season, and an affair that the projectors of an enterprise so refining and beautiful may well be proud of. From October 28th to November 1st, inclusive, are the dates. Programmes and premium lists can be had by applying to Mr. Charles Arnold, secretary.

THE AGRICULTURAL DISPLAYS.

Never was there such an opportunity for the south to show off her agricultural, resources to greater perfection than is now promised for the Piedmont exposition.

The crops all over the south have been brought out most flourishingly by the copious showers and warm sunlight of the past few weeks, and the applications for space in the agricultural hall of the exposition have doubled since the seasons set in.

Every farmer who has a "brag" cotton patch wants to display it to the world, and it is proper that he should.

A letter was received yesterday from the agricultural exhibitors of Floyd county, asking for increased space.

This makes the third time their space has been increased, and if the farmers of Floyd fill up their quarters as well as they did last year, it will indeed be a great show within itself.

There was a letter received from a farmer in North Carolina yesterday, asking for increased

The matter of greatest importance just new is the arranging for the accommodation of the great crowds.

He is a young man about twenty years of age, and has been for many years subject to dreadful epileptic attacks. It was from the effect of one of these that he committed the deed for which he was convicted. His mother is an old woman, and belongs to a highly respectable family in Savannah. Mrs. Fogarty was stopping at the house of a friend on Spring street, and a neighbor thus describes the scene which took place when Mr. Clifton carried her the news:

"I happened to be passing," said he, "when I saw the poor old woman come out to receive the news, as Mr. Clifton reached the house. When he told her that he had her son's pardon, she threw both her arms around him, kissed him, and wept like a child. It was a most affecting scene, and hers were not the only tears that were shed."

IN MEMORY

Of Mrs. O. W. Bush, of Chauncey!

Georgia. How dark is the future when joy of life is gone, How desolate is home when a grave holds all it had! How full and heavy are hearts when there is no relief! Mrs. O. W. Bush is dead, and sorrow

Though He slay us, yet will we trust in Him.' Mrs. O. W. Bush, nee Miss Roberta Frances Crutchfield, daughter of Robert F. and Martha J. Crutchfield, was born in Greene county, Georgia, February 5, 1865.

In addition to careful home training, which had so much to do with her brief life, she had the advantages of both academic and collegiate edu-cation, having attended the Southern Female college, LaGrange, Ga., and the Packer institute, Brooklyn, N. Y.

These advantages played an important, and indeed, useful part in the young lady's life, fitting her to think, plan and execute successfully her own affairs independently and satisfactory. She had prepared herself for bookkeeping, music teacher and literary, as well economical and easy housewifery. In the meantime she had so woven strictly honest business principles into her ac-curate and carefelly planned matters, as to make all dealings with her clear, easy and satisfactory. Early in life, even in her thirteenth year, she joined the First Baptist church, Atlanta, Ga., and was baptized by the pastor, Dr. D. W. Gwynn. Her church life was consistant and active. She was attentive to her Sunday school, either as student or teacher; competent in both and good in either. She was prompt and regular in her church meetings, playing the part of true helper to pastor and people. In 1887 the people of Chauncey, Ga., learned to regard her for her real worth, as shown by her untiring devotion to her afflicted ant teacher in Chauncey academy. Here she was reliable, she was trustworthy and she was honest. Afterwards she was employed as principal of Chauncey academy, where she continued till preparations for her imarriage made it necessary

On the 20th day of June, 1889, she was happily married to O. W. Bush, of Chauncey, Ga. In selection of a husband she was the same true selection of a husband she was the same true woman—far-sighted and discriminating, with judgment sufficient to reject any but an honest, upright honorable gentleman; such as she found in Mr. Bush, who was so true, so kind and so devoted till the day of her death.

Her wedded life, so hurried and so sadly short, furnished only a few months in which to found hopes which were never realized, lay plans never to be executed, and foundations never to be built on.

"I hear a voice you cannot hear, Which says I must not stay; I see a hand you cannot see, Which beckons me away."

Which beckons me away."

The devoted couple had life's sun of happiness blotted out by a collision of trains on the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad, near Scotland, Ga., October 25, 1889. From this injury she never recovered, but lingered until the 22d of July, 1890, when she died at their home in Chauncey, Ga. Her peaceful remains were laid gently away in Chauncey's quiet little cemetery.

[Thus passed away a good and conscientious woman, a devoted wife, an active and faithful church member, a loved and loving daughter and a true friend. During her long illness and intense suffering she was ever bright, patient and cheerful, with her

"Hopes built on nothing less

"Hopes built on nothing less Than Jesus's blood and righteousness Than Jesus's blood and rightedishess.

She lived a pure life and died a Christian. She sang the Great Physician "Now is Near," and urged the family to meet her in heaven, bid them adieu and she awoke with her God for "Death's but a path that must be trod If man would ever pass to God."

A LOVING TRIBUTE.

How often we pause in life and fondly gaze upon the scenes of other days, as memory, true to her prerogative, vividly reproduces them. Yet sometimes we must look through tears to see them, and then the occasion makes doubly dear that which comes back with renewed vitality. Such an experience had the writer a few days ago while standing beside the lifeless form of one who had been called to her reward. A telegram ago while standing beside the lifeless form of one who had been called to her reward. A telegram had conveyed to me the sad intelligence that Mrs. M. C. Kiser, of Atlanta, was dead, and that my presence was desired to conduct the funeral. At an early morning hour while the funeral. It is not beside the caskut that contained the body of my friend.

Mrs. Kiser, the wife of my friend and brother, M. C. Kiser, was introduced to me in her young girlhood. She was Miss Hessie J. Scott, of Newton county, and entered Conyers Female college while I was the presiding officer of that institution. From her studious habits, accurate recitations and faultiess deportment, it was easy to perceive that she intended to obtain a thorough education. This 'she old, and graduated from the showe college with the first honor in June, 1873.

For awhile during her collegiate course she boarded in the family of the writer. Herentrance into the household was an occasion of great pleasure. Her quelt demension, and evident desire to make every one happy in the home circle, made her an agreeable companion in her hours of recreation as well as a faithful, papil in hours of study. It is pleasant indeed to swell in memory upon such things, and to realize that she was never the occasion of any apin, either in the college or in the home circle.

In the winter of the same year of her graduation, she became the wife of our brother, M. C. Kiser, of Atlanta. Here 'the joined the First Baptist church, yielding herself a willing, loyal subject to that Savier whose cause she ardently loved, and whose honor she delighted to promote.

subject to that Savior whose cause she ardently loved, and whose honor she delighted to promote.

The latter part of her life was one of great suffering. For many weary months severe affliction rested heavy upon her, but her hand she had sheed in the hand of her Savior, and he sustained her by His all-sufficient grace. Her tongue was paralyzed and she could not speak as the end drew near, but her eyes often rested with satisfaction upon her loved ones as they stood beside. her bed, and a smile of pleasure beamed upon her face as some act of kindness was performed for her comfort.

He "who doeth all things well," has called his suffering child to himself nevermore to suffer. The pain of earth exchanged for the pleasure of heaven. Happy with the Lord, and happy with the two children that proceeded her! On this side of death great pain and sorrow; on the other side bliss and glory. On this side weeping loved ones because of the separation; on the other side rejoicing loved ones because of the reunion. How the blessed Savior has provided for his people! This is enough to comfort the bereaved. May the husband, to whom she was a faithful wife; the aged mother, to whom she was a faithful wife; the aged mother, to whom she was a faithful wife; the sufficient for you;" and again, "I will not leave you comfortiess." May those clea who wasted so long and so faithfully by the side of the deceased, receive a disciple's reward. Sincerely.

A GREAT DEAL.

An Atlanta Firm Largely Interested in New Developments Looked For—The Probable Effects of this Purchas

Mr. J. J. Haverty, of the firm of Rhodes & Haverty, has just returned home after an extended trip through the west and east. He has been looking after the interests of his firm. In speaking to a reporter, yesterday, he said: "On the 12th, a conference was held in Louisville, Ky., between the buyers who are interested in the twenty-three Rhodes concerns throughout the south and west. The various parties agreed to pool their interests in the purchase of future orders in furniture and carpets. This pool purchase aggregates about $500,000 per annum, and pays cash for all goods. All purchases are made direct with the manufacturers, and no commissions are paid agents or jobbers. In many instances the entire products of a factory are arranged for by the purchasing committee. At the Cincinnati exposition we placed one order for $15,000 worth of goods with the various exhibitors. These goods were bought mostly for the Atlanta house, and are now being received by us. They are not ordinary goods, but were made especially for exposition purposes, and are finished in better style than the regular lines. We bought them at about 25 per cent under regular prices, and customers are assured that no such goods have ever been in Atlanta at the prices we are now showing them at. This stock embraces dining room, bedroom, parlor, and miscel-

we are now showing them at. This stock em-braces dining room, bedroom, parlor, and miscel-laneous articles of furniture, and fancy wares. It is especially strong in office and dining room out-fits, both in sixteenth century, mahogany and oak. From Cincinnati we went to Chicago and Grand Rapids, placing large orders in both places, notably among the parlor goods manufacturers in Chicago, where we purchased three hundred Turk-ish suits, in broccatelle and tapestry. These goods are made up in superb manner and are exhibited on our new parlor floor. Parties wishing high class goods in the parlor line will find it to their interest to examine this stock before buying. In Grand Rapids we had the choice among all the factories. Our combination gives us considerable leverage over small buyers and long-winded customers. We asked no favors, but simply made our proposition to the manufacturers, and in no case, did we fail in getting a deduction of from ten to twenty per cent from ordinary wholesale prices. Our orders for oak bedroom suits in Grand Rapids aggregated ten ear loads. We also bought some rare beauties in the way of dining room out-fits and fancy cabinets. These goods are being its and fancy cabinets. These goods are being received by us each day; from one to three dar loads being opened by us every twenty-four hours. We are making a specialty this season of bedroom suits ranging from $20.00 to $75.00 each in Grand Rapids makes. There is nothing in the furniture line that is desirable that we can not aud do not show upon our floors, furnishing in most cases."

styles that are exclusively our own and cannot be handled by other dealers in Atlanta. From Grand Rapids we went to the chair factories in Massachusetts, and there made contracts for 10,000 chairs to be sold during the next year. We then went to New York and Philadelphia to make con-tracts for carpets and draperles. In our carpet tracts for carpets and draperies. In our carpet department "we are the people." Our experience in handling the carpet trade for the past fifteen years, enables asto be the best judges of the wants of the people of this section over all other dealers who handle this class of goods in Atlanta. This department, as well as our furniture department, is conducted by practical people who are interested in the #rm and who are careful of the interests, wants, and wishes of our numerous cusinterests, wants, and wishes of our numerous customers. The styles and quality shown in our carpet department this season will excel all of our former efforts. The stock having been carefully elected, the styles being the best that could be found, and all goods having been bought from the manufacturers entirely, they will be sold at prices that will convince the most skeptical that they cannot be touched by any other concern in Atlanta. There will be nothing lacking this sea lanta. There will be nothing lacking this season in our entire concern to make it the most complete and most satisfactory exhibition of desirable goods that can be shown. We have made special and successful efforts, first to get goods suitable to our section; second, to secure the best styles, and next to get goods for the least money, quality considered. An ordinary examination will convince anyone of the fact that we do not recognize petition this season at all, and that we can competition this season at an, and that we can save in every line that we handle from 10 to 20 per cent on every ordinary purchase. What special advantage does the syndicate buying give you? It simply places us in the same position with the factories as the large jobbers throughout the country, and give us the advantage in handling larger quantities of goods and, consequently, get-ting the inside price, neither of which could be done by a single house or or by the average retailer. Instead of placing an order for $1,000 worth of goods in one line of goods, our orders, in most cases, range from $5,000 to $25,000, and sensible people will realize the fact that orders of this amount secure the best prices. Then again, the combination agreed to pay cash for all purchases. This gives us a tower of strength over long-winded or six months buyers, who are bound to pay for the time, and who must add this difference on the price of goods, and in the end make the customer pay for their financial condition. We desire that our customers get the prices of other merchants and compare them with ours. We feel complimented for them to do this, and we are certain that it will be to our advantage to compare others' prices with ours. We guarantee to save at least 10 per cent over every one's figures. Our calculations for this sesson's trade are that we will have the biggest business that has ever been done in the south, and we have bought goods accordingly. These goods, as we stated before, we are receiving each day, and we are bound to sell them. We are obliged, in order to get inside of our calculations, to sell $35,000 per month until January let. This means business and we are certainly going to show no quarter to unhealthy competition. We have got the goods. We have bought them at prices that can not be equaled by any other southern house. They are for sale, and our customers will get the benefit of our judgment, if they will give us a showing. We are determined to uphold our reputation of being the foremost Furniture and Carpet House in Georgia, and we are unquestionably the leaders of our line in Atlanta."

The Rhodes & Haverty Furniture Company are evidently in carnest about this matter, as may be seen from the size of the sample stock now being shown by them, and the bulky appearance of the invoice and bills of lading for goods which are yet to come. A hurried glance through their show rooms on Whitchall street and also on South Broad street, would convince you that semething was going to "drap." They are now preparing a catalogue which they hope to be able to send to dealers by September.

The recent meeting of the executive committee was arrenthusiastic one, and it is hoped that Chairman Northen's call for tomorrow night's meeting will be responded to by a large outpeuring of young democrats.

Business of importance to the league will come before the meeting.

Besides the ratification of the constitution and by-laws, and the transacting of other business relative to the perpetuation of the league and the extending of its interests and influence, it is expected that some decided action affecting the present condition of city and county politics will be taken.

There was some talk of political action of this kind among members of the league yesterday, but just what the meeting is expected to do that will bear on the political situation is not public.

It was rumored that candidates for city and county officers will be endorsed and supported by the league.

NOT FOR TILLMAN.

The Atlanta Society of South Carolina on the Campaign. "We are having quite lively times in our ociety just now," remarked a member of the South Carolina Society yesterday.

"You see we are taking a great dear of interest in the campaign now raging overin the Palmetto. State, notwithstanding the fact that a very large majority of us are anti-Tillman men. In fact, out of a membership of about one hundred and seven, we could poll only eight Tillman votes. So you see the Carolinians away from home still cling to their straight democratic principles.

"We have many spirited debates on the situation among ourselves regardless of the odds against the Tillmanites, who gallantly champion the cause of their favorite leader.

"There is no disputing the fact that Tillman has done a good deal of work for South Carolina, and that makes him strong, especially among the country people. One reason that the Tillman element is so largely outnumbered in our club, is because the bulk of our membership is composed of city men, who are arrayed against the country, just as the alliance is regarded in Georgia. The situation in Carolina is very much similar to ours here.

"But while we, as a club, take much interest in the two phases of the contest, it is all in a friendly way, and really serves to keep our society alive and interesting to our members, which, of course, we are all glad to see."

The Elegant Floats of the Standard Wagon

Company in the Great Process Did you ever see anything more beautiful in your life than the floats of the Standard Wagon Company in last Thursday's procession's It is almost impossible to conceive how anything could be more unique, and at the same time show up the products of the Standard Wagon Company in a better style. Their float was considered, by many, the prettiest in the parade. It is impossible to describe it. There was one feature, however, about all the floats of this company that attracted a great deal of attention. It was the beautiful and appropriate way in which they were decorated and ma Major Barna, who is one of the most progressive business men in the south, had everything fixed up in the right way.

In his several carriages, phaatons, buck-boards and buggies, there sat the prettiest girls he could find in Atlanta, dressed in snow-white costumes. As they moved along the streets, you could hear people exclaim on every side: "Well, that is the prettlest thing I have seen today. Whose float is that? Oh, yes, it is the Standard Wagon Company's. Don't you see their, names there? My goodness! ain't that a fine carriage? And isn'i that the sweetest girl up there you ever saw in your life?"

Such expressions could be heard everywhere. So much for the beauty and appropriateness of the floats.

Now come down to business. You have seen the great procession. It was the biggest thing Atlanta has ever had. If you want to buy carriage, a buggy, a buck-board, a landau, or anything in that line, Major Barna will sell you these goods at the lowest possible prices, and guarantee to give you something that is

Ten years ago Lord George Campbell worked in the mines at Leadville and received no more in the mines at leadville and received no more renumeration or consideration shan he would had he not possessed a title. Baron Rosencranz came to Leadville from Denmark, and in spite of his nohle name Leadville's citizens declared that he was as poor as a mouse. Count Roup, a Russian nobleman, was at mouse to a higher place—that of but afterward rose to a higher place—that of manager of a smelter. Count Roup now resides at Butte, Mont., and honors that city with his titled name. It was even impossible to have assaying done by a nobleman ten years ago, as a Hunga-rian lord had an assay office perched upon one of

"One of the wildest characters that graced the Leadville mining camp was the nephew of Lord Coke and Lady Leslie. The young man wished to be considered bold and bad, and the airs he assumed out-cowboyed the cowboys. His cos-tunes were considered remarkable, even for the Leadville of ten years ago, but were not of such a character as would be permitted to grace the home character as would be permitted to grace the home of his lordly relatives.

"The visitor to Leadville today would never dream that the hobblity from the other side of the Atlantic had sent its representatives to the Cloud City, yet such is the case, and the citizens of Leadville, strange to say, do not feel at all proud over the determination of so many lords, barrons and counts to seek their booming camp. It is not with pride that Leadville's citizens point to the nobility that have honored their city, but rather with amusement and just a trace of pty."

Bid for Monument.

THE LADIES CONFEDERATE MONUMENT Association invite bids for the construction of a monument at Pensacola. Plans can be had upon application to the undersigned. Those persons who desire to submit plans of their own can do so. The general idea of the association is to have the monument about eight feet square at the base, with tablets upon each face and a shaft upon the base, making the whole monument forty-two feet high. The monument to be placed upon a concrete foundation four feet thick and nime feet square under the ground.

Scaled bids (endorsed "bids for monument") should be addressed to the undersigned, to be opened on Tuesday, November 4th, at 5 o'clock p. m., next. The monument to be constructed of Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee or Kentucky stone. The base of the monument to be constructed of blocks with chiseled joints. Suggestions will be received in regard to shaft, as it has not yet been decided whether the stone in the shaft will be all of dressed stone, or merely the joints dressed as is provided for in the base. The association reserves the right to decline any and all bids. Mrs. Annie J. McGuilre, secretary. THE LADIES CONFEDERATE MONUMENT
